DEBTS PAYING DELAY IS PLAN OF ROOSEVELT

Will Ask Congress To Delay June Settling.

HERRIOT TALK NOW ON ARMS

Security Plans Would Not Commit U. S. to Guarantee.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

President Roosevelt will send to Congress before the end of the present session, and in advance of the World Economic Conference, a special message with recommendations for disposing of the problem of intergovernmental debts. The nature of the President's suggestions was purely conjectural yesterday, but following reports from Paris it was believed that he will ask Congress to postpone the June 15 debt payments from Great Britain and France until the end of the Economic Conference.

Since debts are going to be discussed within the framework of the conference, and since they will probably be disposed of there, the end of the most disturbing element in postwar history may be said to be in sight. Great Britain is due to pay $75,850,000 then on interest, and France has a total amount of $40,718,568, of which $21,457,135 is for principal. France also owes for her December 15 payment of $19,200,000.

French Security Concern.

It is expected that a special committee will be appointed by Congress to wait on the President and confer with him regarding the details of his proposed debt measure. At about the same time the President is expected to be in possession of the unusual powers for fixing international tariffs that Congress will shortly vest in him.

The President and the former French premier, Edouard Herriot, spent yesterday afternoon in consultation on the phases of the problems of disarmament. While they were reviewing the possibilities in this field for joint action, the French and American experts were meeting at the Department of State.

Bargaining Has Begun.

The bargaining process that had been couched in the diplomatic terminology of "quid pro quo" may be said to be already begun between the President and his French visitor M. Herriot is known as the stanchest and perhaps the sole man in French public life who can personally champion the cause of payment of France's deferred debt to this country. However, he will require certain tangible advantages with which to lay the criticisms of his political enemies.

The French preoccupation in

Daladier Ready to Pay On Moratorium Promise

Paris, April 26 (A.P.).—Premier Edouard Daladier today was represented by a member of his immediate circle as being willing to ask Parliament for credits to pay the $19,000,000 war debt interest due the United States last December 15 if President Roosevelt would offer a war debts moratorium for the duration of the world economic conference.

Premier Daladier, it was said, feels that if President Roosevelt can obtain such a holiday from the present Congress he believes conditions made when the French Parliament on December 14 refused to authorize the payment will be fulfilled.

Disarm First

Davis Breaks Up Geneva Parley by Advising Talk—on Security Later.

Geneva, April 26 (U.P.).—Norman H. Davis, special representative of President Roosevelt in Europe, broke up this afternoon's session of the arms conference by plain talk calling on Europe to disarm first and talk security afterward.

Davis sharply called on the European states to cease their endless arguments about political aspects of disarmament and get action. He spoke frankly and to the point in a fashion seldom heard in meetings of world diplomats, shocking the session into life at what had been looked forward to as another dull conference.

The speech by the American "roving Ambassador" caused a sensation among the delegates, and they refused to continue discussion of the security

7 ANGLO-AMERICAN POINTS IN HARMONY

Cooperative Program Listed as MacDonald and Miss Ishbel Sail for Home.

"I came as a prime minister; I depart as a friend."

Ramsay MacDonald with these words took leave of Washington yesterday, where he had constructed with President Roosevelt the foundations of a new economic order in world affairs to combat the present general depression.

The prime minister and his daughter, Miss Ishbel, sailed at 11:18 last night on the Berengaria for England.

In his five days here Mr. MacDonald had made an extended review of all the points to be considered at the World Economic Conference. He and President Roosevelt, however, pursued their objective in its particular implications as they affect the economic relations of the United States and Great Britain. The scope of these understandings will be widened at the London conference to include similar treatment of the interests of other nations as well.

The Anglo-American program reposes on the following seven broad bases:

First—A general increase in commodity prices in the two countries.

Navy Abandons Akron Salvaging Operation

The Navy Department yesterday announced that Akron salvaging operations have been discontinued because of the "great hazard to divers" working in the tangled mass of wreckage. The portion of the airship now located lies in 100 feet of water and is badly disintegrated so that the wires, cables and girders offer great handicaps to underseas rescue work.

Authorities do not feel that any of the bodies are to be found in the portion of the ship now located. The search for the major part of the Akron will be continued from the surface and salvaging work continued when better conditions are present.

A. W. Wickey Arrested On Conversion Charge

Arrested through the vigilance of Detective Sergt. Earl P. Hartmann, Edward W. Wickey, former special assistant to the Attorney General of the United States, yesterday was being held for $25,000 bond in East Chicago, Ind.

Wickey, it was said here, is under indictment on the charge of converting to his own use three checks for $1,679 with which he had been entrusted as attorney for the administration of three estates in California. Wickey, according to Hartmann, was attached to the office of the Alien Property Custodian. Attempts will be made today to bring him here for trial.

Sheriff and 6 Deputies Hurt in Eviction Riot

Seattle, April 26 (A.P.).—Sheriff Claud G. Bannick and six deputies were injured by a crowd of 200 unemployed persons who hurled rocks and wielded iron pipes in an attempt to prevent the eviction of the Frank Franzen family from a five-room house under foreclosure proceeding today.

SILVER MONEY PLAN VOTED IN INFLATION BILL

Passage of Measure at Today's Senate Session Assured.

FILIBUSTER CHANCE NOW SEEMS REMOTE

Glass Creates Sensation by Deserting Administration Money Plan.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Unlimited coinage of silver at a sliding gold ratio to be fixed by Presidential proclamation was added to the Moley-Thomas-Pittman inflation measure in the Senate yesterday.

The vote was 41 to 26, forecasting passage of the currency and credit expansion section today. This would virtually complete Senate action on the administration's omnibus farm bill.

Under a unanimous consent agreement recorded immediately before adjournment last evening, the Senate will meet at noon today, proceed under unlimited debate until 2 o'clock and then continue under a special order limiting debate to fifteen minutes by any one senator on the bill and all amendments, until a final vote is reached. Under this arrangement adoption of the inflation measure appears assured before nightfall.

Robinson Leads Drive.

A printing-press bonus payment is among the amendments yet to be disposed of in the Senate.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, the Democratic leader, turned on the heat shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday. Within two hours the way had been cleared for decisive action on the inflation amendment.

An attempt will be made today to strike out all the silver and gold provisions of the bill. Other amendments may be offered. Several have been threatened by uncompromising Democratic opponents of inflation. Under the agreement, however, they may be disposed of rapidly, unless a well-organized filibuster should be launched by the now hopelessly outnumbered defenders of sound money.

In view of yesterday's silver vote, this eventuality appears remote indeed.

On the Wheeler silver amendment, 4 Republicans voted with 36 Democrats and the lone Farmer-Laborite, Shipstead, in favor of the added presidential authority, while 7 Democrats joined the 19 Republicans in opposition.

Glass Opposes Measure.

Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, who had announced earlier in the day his opposition to the inflation measure, was absent. He had made it clear, however, he would be recorded against the bill on final passage.

Senator Glass' open abandonment of the administration proposal on easy money created a political sen-

Montreal, April 26 (A.P.).—The signal service of the department of marine tonight received a report that the liner Dominica had requested assistance at the eastern end of Northumberland Strait. It was believed here the vessel had become lodged in an ice field shortly after leaving Charlottetown, Prince Edward Isle.

She sailed from here last Saturday for Charlottetown, St. Pierre et Miquelon, St. Johns, Newfoundland, Halifax and New York.

The N. B. McLean, an ice breaker, reported she was proceeding to the assistance of the Dominica, 14 miles west of Cape George and near Pictou, N. S.

Curtis Hereafter Makes Legal Home in Capital

Topeka, Kans., April 26 (A.P.).—Former Vice President Charles Curtis has served notice of a change in his legal residence from Topeka, where he lived from early boyhood, to Washington, D. C. In a letter to D. H. Huntington, Shawnee County assessor, the former Kansas senator called the assessor's attention to the fact that he had changed his residence to Washington and that his tax returns in the future would be made there.

Curtis, who served as representative and senator for many years prior to his elevation to Vice President in 1929, previously had announced plans to open a law office in Washington.

House Plans Probing Of Ilsley Case Ruling

Smith's Impeachment of Judge Lowell Causes an Inquiry.

HATTON W. SUMNERS.

Chairman Hatton W. Sumners will call his House Judiciary Committee "in a day or two" to map its investigation of Federal Judge James A. Lowell's action in freeing George Crawford, colored, wanted for the murder of Mrs. Spencer Isley and her maid at Middleburg, Va.

By a vote of 209 to 150, the House yesterday directed the committee to determine whether the Boston judge committed any high crime or misdemeanor in releasing Crawford.

The vote was taken on a resolution introduced by Representative Howard W. Smith (Democrat), Virginia, who exercised his constitutional privilege to impeach Judge Lowell from the floor of the House.

"We will proceed in due order without any precipitous haste," the Texas chairman of the House Judiciary Committee said, following the vote.

"Our first duty will be to determine the facts as to what actually transpired. Up to the present, there doesn't seem to be any great controversy over the facts. It is possible we may not have to hold any sessions outside the District."

Presenting seven articles of impeachment, Representative Smith asked an immediate vote on his resolution calling for a Judiciary Committee inquiry, charging that Lowell had wilfully violated his oath of office as a constitutional judge and abused his powers.

Although Representative Robert Luce (Republican), Massachusetts, arose to the defense of Lowell, and Hope to Protect Each Other From New American Financial Policy.

(Copyright, 1933, by United Press.)

London, April 26.—Great Britain and France are on the verge of an agreement under which they hope to protect each other from the new American monetary policy, the United Press was informed by a trustworthy source tonight.

Working with the utmost secrecy during the last three days, representatives of the two nations are understood to have virtually completed an arrangement of cooperation with their combined immense financial resources. Such an arrangement is designed on the one hand to save France from being forced off the gold standard and, on the other, to allow Britain to throw the full weight of her enormous equalization fund against the United States dollar.

This fund, according to the advices, would be larger than first anticipated and might approximate upward of 300,000,000 pounds sterling.

The Anglo-French arrangement, as presently projected, would provide for

JUDGES' FORCED PAY CUT URGED IN HOUSE

Amendment to Constitution Would Trim $450,000 From Big Salaries.

Constitutional judges who have refused voluntarily to reduce their own pay would be forced to take the same cut as other Federal employes under an amendment to the Constitution introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Clifton A. Woodrum (Democrat), Virginia.

Only four judges whose salaries are protected under the Constitution have made any gesture toward cutting their own pay to comply with the economy act invitation, Representative Woodrum told the House. He said their refunds total only $716.

"Every Federal attorney who appears at his bar, all the personnel in his court and the janitor who cleans his cuspidor is contributing 15 per cent of his compensation to help rescue the country from its economic plight," said the Virginia representative.

"And yet the judge of the court, a symbol of justice, equity and fair dealing, serenely protected in the sheltering folds of the Constitution, is content to let his fellow man bear the whole burden of this economic disaster."

If Federal judges were forced to contribute from their salaries on the

Unpaid Chicago Police Club Unpaid Teachers in Rioting

Patrolmen, on Horses, Injure Many Women as Hundreds Again Stage Protest in Loop Area for $30,000,000 Due on Pay.

Chicago, April 26 (U.P.).—Unpaid policemen clubbed unpaid women school teachers to the pavements today when the teachers launched new "raids" upon Loop banking institutions.

The teachers, on their spring vacations, swarmed into the Loop by thousands to demand $30,000,000 due them in back salaries.

Unpaid for months, the teachers were desperate. Hundreds of them centered their attack on the First National Bank and the Chicago Title & Trust Co., chanting "pay your taxes" and "we want food" or "we want our money."

Bankers determined to prevent a repetition of last Monday's "raids," when teachers created so much confusion that three banks were forced to close their doors temporarily.

Mounted police patrolled the streets outside the banks that dot the financial district. Regular and special police were on duty in the corridors.

As the wave of angry teachers surged upon the bank, the unpaid policemen went into action. Some of the teachers carried school books, which they hurled at the mounted officers. A huge plate glass window caved in under the pressure. Officers began wielding night sticks. Women screamed. Five teachers fainted. Two fell to the pavement under blows from the clubs.

Regular police claimed later that all the stick wielding had been done by special bank officers. Teachers claimed that regular city police struck the blows.

Repelled at the bank, hundreds of the teachers hurried to hte board of education officers in a building overlooking the Chicago River. The board had announced it would decide today whether to close the schools.

The teachers disbanded for the day after the board of education announced it had voted against closing the schools early. They left muttering threats that they would continue their Loop raids until they received their money.

CURBS SOUGHT ON POWERS TO KILL CONTRACT

Douglas Modifies Plan Upon House Group's Suggestion.

ALSO MAY REPHRASE RETIREMENT SCHEME

Younger Federal Employes Heard in Favor of 30-Year Withdrawal.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

The administration yesterday was called on to specify just what classes of contracts the President wants the right to set aside under his sweeping request for power to cancel any contract entered into by the Government.

Budget Director Lewis W. Douglas was questioned closely by members of the House Deficiencies Appropriations subcommittee, who feel the unrestricted authorization carried in the independent offices bill is too broad.

Members were quick to point out that the wide field of Government insurance, or even Government bond issues, might be considered contracts, subject to cancellation by the President, under strict interpretation of the proposed change in the law.

30-Year Substitute.

Budget Director Douglas agreed to modify the proposal by adding additional language stipulating specifically what types of contracts might be reached under the authorization, The Post was reliably advised.

The rewritten clause, which will be laid before the subcommittee this morning, will limit the authority to foreign ocean and air mail contracts, domestic air mail contracts, and contracts for public buildings, it is understood.

House Appropriations Chairman James P. Buchanan's substitute for the automatic 30-year Federal retirement propoeal of the Budget Bureau was turned over to Director Douglas, who may rephrase the proposal and submit it again to the deficiencies subcommittee this morning.

The revised draft would give President Roosevelt discretionary authority to retire 30-year employes where it would be in the interest of the service.

Younger Workers Heard.

As originally drafted, the provision would have required the compulsory retirement of all Government workers after 30 years, unless excepted by Executive order.

A last-minute reaction in favor of compulsory retirement manifest itself before the deficiencies subcommittee yesterday in a flood of correspondence reflecting the sentiment of the younger group of Federal employes.

Chairman Buchanan estimates that 500 letters were received from individuals and a few organizations, urging that 30-year employes be auto-

U. S. Saves $100,000 In Rent and Scales

Employes Kept in Postal Economies Already Effected.

The Postoffice Department has already saved more than $100,000 through abolition of one division and reductions in rent paid, it was announced yesterday by Postmaster General Farley.

More than $83,000 was saved by doing away with the division of scales, which maintains weighing machines for mail in postoffices. There are about 250,000 scales, and about 35 men to take care of them. The work done by these 35 will continue to be done by a force of 9 men. The rest of the employes will be assigned to take the places of temporary clerks. Supervision of the scale work will be turned over to the superintendent of equipment and supplies.

A further saving of $21,135 was made by negotiating new leases for postoffice quarters or garages in 21 cities. In each case the rent was reduced at least 25 per cent, the average reduction being 35 per cent. In Mounds, Okla., new quarters were secured for only 30 per cent of the rent formerly paid.

Rocco, police said, told them that was all he knew about the matter.

Gold Recovery From Ship Kitchener Died Upon Bares Struggle.

New York, April 26 (A.P.).—A four-year struggle to clear the name of a man accused of having had a hand in sending Earl Kitchener to his death in the World War had its reward today in the recovery of £15,000 in gold from the wreck of H. M. S. Hampshire.

Kitchener, famed British soldier and statesman, lost his life in the sinking of the Hampshire off the west Orkney Islands almost seventeen years ago. He was en route to Russia on a secret mission, to aid in bolstering the Russian armies in the cause of the Allies.

For some time after his death there was considerable controversy as to whether the Hampshire was torpedoed or had struck a mine. Finally

U. S. TO PROBE TALK CAUSING BANK RUNS

Cleveland Reserve Governor Says False Rumors to Be Traced to Earth.

Cleveland, April 26 (A.P.).—E. R. Fancher, governor of the Cleveland Federal Reserve Bank, announced tonight the U. S. Treasury Department had advised him it has detailed a special corps of Federal investigators to this city to "investigate false and malicious rumors about Cleveland banks."

In another statement Fancher said that all Cleveland banks which have been licensed since the national banking holiday "are sound" and "will have the full support of the Federal Reserve Bank."

His announcement followed a dramatic action taken today by Harris Creech, president of the Cleveland Trust Co., largest Cleveland bank, when a number of depositors started withdrawing their money.

Creech clambered to the top of a counter and told those in the lobby of the main office they could have two extra hours after the regular closing time to withdraw their money if they wanted it. The depositors greeted his remarks with applause and some of their numbers departed.

BATTLE PLANS HAD BEEN LAID

Pair Is Surprised by Burke's Men at Rendezvous.

Carefully laid plans, approaching a near climax in a desperate plot to stage a daring daylight holdup of the Washington Savings Bank, 721 Tenth street northwest, were thwarted by the office of Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, chief of police detectives, yesterday when a mighty mobilization of his staff crippled the robbery attempt less than two hours before its planned enactment.

Shortly after 10 a. m. word of the holdup attempt reached Inspector Burke. He immediately swung into action, summoned nearly every member of his plain-clothes staff, and while they waited at police headquarters for final instructions, he hurried to the bank.

Trap Laid for Bandits.

Stunned by Inspector Burke's information, Robert A. Sisson, conservator of the institution, called a hurried conference of other officials to learn of the detective chief's plans for frustrating the holdup. For some time the group remained closeted to lay plans of action.

Working on information that the robbery attempt would be made exactly on the stroke of 2 p. m., Inspector Burke returned to his office to issue final instructions to his men. It was decided to "plant" a strong force of detectives in and around the bank, then wait until the actual holdup was in progress and spring a surprise attack.

With their chief's parting instructions, the detective detail, one of the largest ever mobilized here, waited for the "zero hour." Just before the squad, armed with sawed-off shot

Father Is Hunted In Fire Death of 8

Woman and Seven Children Perished in Flaming Farmhouse.

Harris, Minn., April 26 (A.P.).—A tragedy revealed by a burned farm home in which eight persons were lost led County Attorney S. B. Wennerberg today to express the opinion the victims had all been slain.

As a result, Wennerberg said he had started a two-nation hunt for Albin Johnson, 43, a farmer, the husband and father, who has not been found since fire destroyed his home April 11.

The victims were Mrs. Johnson, 46, and her seven children, ranging in age from 4 months to 10 years.

Wennerberg said his conclusion was based on personal findings and those of Dr. C. A. Erdmann, University of Minnesota anatomy professor, whom he called into the case.

CAPITOL HILL BODY TO INSPECT MACON

Capt. Dresel Denies Data on Weather Given to Akron Was Bar to Flight.

(Associated Press.)

Decision to send a joint congressional committee to Akron, Ohio, to inspect the new U. S. S. Macon was reached yesterday just as Commander Alger H. Dresel, captain of the new dirigible, told a naval court of inquiry here that the weather maps furnished the U. S. S. Akron did not justify postponement of the huge airship's disastrous trip.

Commander Dresel, facing the court investigating the destruction of the Akron on April 4, told the high naval officials in a slow and painstaking manner that most of his ideas on handling a lighter-than-air craft in a thunderstorm were obtained from books.

The Macon's commander added, however, that he was "conservative," and that he did not concur in statements he had heard often "that a new ship can stand any kind of weather."

Lakehurst Trip Avoided.

"The maps of April 2 and 3 are, to my mind, somewhat doubtful," he added, "but in spite of this the one of April 3 does not, to my mind, present any danger which an airship of the type of the Akron might not avoid."

Representative Delaney (Democrat), New York, who announced that the joint congressional committee appointed to investigate the Akron catastrophe would go to Akron, said the inspection of the new ship probably would be made on May 5 or 6.

Delaney had requested that the Macon be sent to Lakehurst, N. J., berth of the Akron, but said he had been informed by the Navy Department that the new ship had not been accepted "pending further trial flights and that it would not be practicable to have the ship at Lakehurst at the time designated."

The committee, he said, would go into "the future of the dirigible as far as the Navy is concerned," seek to determine whether the Akron was sent out without proper safeguards, and summon Capt. Dresel and Lieut. Comdr. Rosendahl, formerly commander of the Akron and Los Angeles, as witnesses.

Dresel Refuses Opinion.

When asked yesterday by the judge advocate of the naval inquiry court, Lieut. Comdr. Ralph G. Pennoyer, if he thought Commander Frank C. McCord, who lost his life on the Akron, was qualified to command the ship, Capt. Dresel replied emphatically:

"I considered him an excellent officer in every respect. Had I not thought him qualified I would never have recommended him for the Akron command."

When asked further about the qualifications of the other officers and the men on the Akron, he declared that he considered the officers skilled in their duties.

A surprise question was put to the witness at the afternoon session, when Judge Advocate Pennoyer asked Dresel point blank if, in his experience, he had formed an opinion which might have a bearing on the loss of the Akron.

"I do not," replied Dresel, evenly. "In order for me to form an opinion, it would be necessary to be in possession of more data than I have now."

Dr. Karl Arnstein, vice president in charge of engineering of the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation, Akron, Ohio, took the stand late in the afternoon, telling the court that the strength specifications of the Akron had been most carefully figured out, and that the lessons learned in all previous airship disasters had been taken advantage of in her construction.

MacDonald Sees America And Britain Side by Side

Prime Minister Declares Alliances Are Useless When Hearts Beat in Harmony, in Addressing Pilgrims of United States.

New York, April 26 (A.P.).—Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald expressed the hope tonight that the United States and Great Britain will "sit on the same side of the table" at the forthcoming international economic conference.

Addressing the pilgrims of the United States, the prime minister said "no greater blessing can come upon the nations of this world than that Great Britain and America should remain in affectionate relations."

Coming to New York late today after his economic conversations with President Roosevelt, the prime minister bade America farewell amidst a brilliant setting.

Notables of the financial world surrounded him: J. P. Morgan, Andrew W. Mellon, Thomas W. Lamont. Society crowded into the boxes of the Waldorf-Astoria's grand ballroom. Toasts were drunk with water to "the President" and "To His Majesty, the King."

The prime minister's daughter, Miss Ishbel MacDonald, entered the center box as the band played "Dixie." This was their last night in America. After the banquet, they boarded the Berengaria for the return to England.

In asking for international cooperation between the nations, Prime Minister MacDonald said he did not want alliances—"nor do you."

"An alliance is a bargain," he said. "Of what use is a bargain except for hampering purposes when hearts are beating in harmony?"

In his Washington conversations, the prime minister said, President Roosevelt "hinted at the power of personal contact and diplomacy. We can not do without that now."

One of the things the President and he mused over, MacDonald said, "was that your problems are our problems. So far as that is concerned, there might have been no Atlantic at all and no American Revolution, in that we are a family whether you like it or not."

The prime minister concluded his address lavishing praise on behalf of his daughter, Miss Ishbel MacDonald, as well as himself, for "the quiet, the genial, the so touchingly eloquent welcome that we got in the White House from your President, and right away long down to the pleasant, smiling-faced girl who stood on the pavement to wave us a godspeed as we went past."

PRESIDENT WILL ASK DELAY OF JUNE 15 DEBT PAYMENTS

foreign policy outside of their debt to the United States has mainly centered around security. A proposal has been under discussion between the President and M. Herriot which will respond to the demands of the French government for security without committing the President to any form of guarantee. With this safeguard, France will be able to proceed to make the cuts in her armaments and her military budgets to secure the success of the disarmament conference.

Double-Barreled Plan.

The proposal is in two parts: First, that the United States agree to the abolition of neutrality in time of war; secondly, that the United States consent to serve on a permanent commission of disarmament, which would be charged by the League of Nations with the supervision of all armaments and the investigation of all violations of the disarmament pledges of the nations.

In this way France could consider the menace offered to her security and continental stability by the rapid rise to power of a Hitlerite Germany offset. The presence of an American delegate on the commission of control would be sufficient. Even more comforting for the French susceptibilities would be the promulgation by the President of the implication contained in the Pact of Paris as heretofore explained by former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson. In his speech before the Council of Foreign Relations, Col. Stimson had argued that as the Pact of Paris had outlawed all war and had put a cordon sanitaire around the nation or nations convicted of violating it, such a nation or nations automatically became outlaws and deprived of the enjoyment of all international rights. This would mean the end of the doctrines of neutrality and freedom of the seas, it is believed.

Paris Debt Proposal.

The President yesterday, however, declined to expand his discussions with the former premier. The opening of the disarmament conference in Geneva again today will take up the discussion of these solutions of the international problem.

France is ready to make a payment on her debt to this country June 15 or even before, provided that the payment be the last. This was the condition on which the French Chamber last year indicated its method of meeting the payment. At the present time it is believed that France would make good her arrears of $19,200,000 on June 15, particularly as the French payment normally scheduled for that date is more than twice the total of the "deferred" December 15 installment, namely $40,718,568.

President Roosevelt will be able to accord France and Great Britain consideration in the matter of their debts, which will be the surest way of securing no less advantages for this country in the spheres of disarmament and stabilization of gold exchanges.

At this press conference yesterday in the White House the President had M. Herriot on his right-hand side. In the background were French Ambassador de Laboulaye with Undersecretary of State William Phillips. The President had invited the 24 French newspaper correspondents, who are with the Herriot party to this conference, too, and at the conclusion he shook hands with each one of them and chatted with several of them in French.

LONDON AND PARIS NEAR MONEY PACT

the loan of French treasury francs bought by Britain in official exchange operations, in return for France's guarantee that Britain would suffer no loss on the loans on foreign exchange.

Ordinarily Britain would be able to sell the franc which, under the present situation, might precipitate a run on the franc.

The arrangement likewise would obviate the necessity for the British to earmark French gold. This, in turn, would tend to neutralize any danger to French gold-holdings obtained from private operations.

Despite such safeguards, in the event a run did develop, it could easily be halted by the British buying francs at the aforementioned guaranteed price. However, this contingency is felt to be extremely unlikely, since it is understood the British franc balances are sufficient to cover the French treasury's deficit.

Despite British official assurances to the contrary, financial quarters here are still unshaken in their original conviction that the American departure from the gold standard was a political move and an attempt to force Britain to stabilize the pound sterling at a point suitable to the United States.

An imminent increase in the equalization fund would be hailed unanimously as indicating Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain is determined to resist losing Britain's advantages in the world markets through a depreciated pound.

Therefore, if Britain can hold France, and the remaining gold standard nations, to gold—preventing an unmanageable rise in sterling through a wholesale flight of capital to Britain—the British will then feel their position has been greatly strengthened so far as dealing with the United States is concerned.

PARLEY BROKEN UP BY NORMAN DAVIS

provisions of the British arms scheme, under consideration.

Arthur Henderson, British chairman of the general commission of the conference, abruptly adjourned the session until tomorrow, when he sensed the attitude of the delegates, following Davis' dramatic speech. Henderson, on advice of many delegates, then canceled tomorrow's meeting, as well, abandoning security talk for the time being.

The statement by the chief American delegate was regarded as of special significance in view of the importance of disarmament emphasized in the Washington conversations among the British, French and American statesmen.

Davis bluntly told the delegates that the extent of "consultation" they want from the United States in event another European war threatens depends entirely on how willing they are to disarm.

The British, French and German delegates in rapid succession had announced their inability to take any decision on the security chapter of the arms plan until Washington's position is finally known. The European delegates declared the arms parley had again reached a deadlock because they felt there was no hope of obtaining any disarmament until security is defined.

U. S. Consul Sentenced For Embezzling $7,500

Kansas City, April 26 (A.P.).—Digby A. Willson, 43, pleaded guilty to a charge of embezzling $7,500.21 of Government money in 1930 while serving as United States Consul at Bristol, England, and was sentenced in Federal district court here today to three years in the Leavenworth penitentiary and fined the amount embezzled.

The embezzlement was discovered after Willson had left Bristol.

MRS. ROSS CHOSEN DIRECTOR OF MINT

Senator Reed Holds Up Her Confirmation as Matter of Precedent.

Wiping off the slate candidates for Civil Service Commissionerships, the administration yesterday nominated Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross as Director of the Mint, although a move for her immediate confirmation in the Senate was blocked.

At the same time it was authoritatively learned that Charles E. Addams, of Arizona, would not be nominated as chairman of the Civil Service Commission. Several weeks ago both Mrs. Ross and Mr. Addams were definitely selected for the commission.

Mrs. Ross was shifted from the commissionership because it was felt that she was better fitted for the post at the mint. Mr. Addams is losing out because he comes from Arizona, and another important position, Director of the Budget, has already gone to Lewis W. Douglas, an Arizonan. Nothing could be learned of the chances of various other candidates for the Civil Service appointments.

Reed Blocks Confirmation.

When Mrs. Ross' name reached the Senate yesterday, Senator Kendrick (Democrat), of Wyoming, Mrs. Ross' home State, moved that it be confirmed without being referred to committee. This procedure was followed with Ruth Bryan Owen's nomination as Minister to Denmark a few days ago. Senator Kendrick's move was blocked by Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, who said that a precedent of such confirmations should not be set. Senator Reed, ranking Republican on the Finance Committee, which will report on the nomination, promised that the committee could act quickly on Mrs. Ross' name.

The Senate confirmed Ernest J. King as chief of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, with rank of rear admiral, succeeding the late Admiral Moffett, killed in the Akron disaster.

Other Names Sent In.

With Mrs. Ross' name, the President sent to the Senate the nominations of Charles Wyzanski, jr., of Massachusetts, as solicitor of the Labor Department, and Laurence A. Steinhardt, of New York, as Minister to Sweden. Other nominations yesterday were Brig. Gen. John Ross Delafield to be brigadier general in the Ordnance Department reserve, and Cavendish W. Cannon and James S. Moose, jr., to be foreign service officers and secretaries in the diplomatic service.

The President has not decided on a successor to Eugene Meyer as head of the Federal Reserve Board, it was learned yesterday at the White House. He is still looking also for men to fill the vacancies in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, it was said.

First Woman Governor.

W. W. McDowell, of Butte, Mont., has an excellent chance to be appointed Minister to the Irish Free State, it was learned yesterday. Mr. McDowell was chairman of the Montana Democratic State central committee.

Mrs. Ross was the first woman to serve as governor of a State in this country. She filled out her husband's unexpired term as Governor of Wyoming after his death in 1924. During the last campaign she served as vice chairman of the Democratic national committee. She will succeed R. J. Grant, who was appointed Director of the Mint in 1923. He has resigned to take charge of the Chinese National Government central mint at Shanghai.

KITCHENER'S VESSEL YIELDS GOLD STORES

it was recorded that a mine had blown up the ship.

The story behind the recovery of the gold treasure from the warship, disclosed today in authoritative advices from Europe, approaches closely the realm of fiction.

It began some four years ago in an effort by a relative to vindicate a man he said was accused of being a German spy in London and having given information to the Germans that led to the sinking of the warship. The man persisted in his search, notwithstanding the recording of the disaster as due to a mine.

Names of the participants in this romance of the sea have been withheld, but the relative, who can be designated as "Mr. R.," happened to meet a German who had worked aboard a mine layer which operated in the area where the Hampshire went down. This sailor had painstakingly kept a scrap book record of all the mines his ship had laid, together with their nautical positions. This was found in the attic of his home in Germany.

Spurred on by his find, "Mr. R." interested a fishing boat skipper in the quest and took soundings. After three years of intermittent effort he located what he believed to be the wreckage of the Hampshire, and confirmed, to his own satisfaction, his suspicions by going down in a diving suit and recovering part of a corroded smokestack.

But the major part of his task was still unfinished, as he had no funds with which to finance salvage operations. In his quest for backers he learned that the Hampshire had a store of gold which Kitchener was taking to Russia. On the strength of this a company was formed and salvaging operations were begun. Progress, however, was slow, as the ship was lying in the mud. The ocean floor at that point, many fathoms below the surface, is of a shifting nature, and the armorplate of the ship had to be pierced to provide an opening to the hold.

Whether additional gold remains in the wreck has not become known, but as the advices reaching here said the salvage crew was jubilant over the success thus far of the venture, apparently it has redoubled its efforts to obtain further treasure.

Two Robbery Suspects Indicted by Grand Jury

John J. Cahill and Abraham Raefer were indicted by the District grand jury yesterday for allegedly robbing the Washington Mechanics Bank, Eighth and E streets southeast, of $7,639 April 6.

Both men are in Philadelphia, where they were arrested last week by local detectives after their pictures had allegedly been identified by persons involved in the robbery. The bank was held up and robbed by a group of men, who scooped up all available cash.

MISS PERKINS ASKS NEW JOBS SYSTEM

Would Supplant Federal Employment Service With State Units.

(Associated Press.)

Almost complete abolition of the present Federal employment service and creation in its stead of an organization fashioned along the lines of the Wagner bill pocket-vetoed two years ago by President Hoover was announced yesterday by Secretary Frances Perkins.

She said the service had "proved to be too unsatisfactory to warrant its continuance." The offices of the veterans' and farm labor divisions will be continued for the present, with records of the other offices scattered over the country transferred immediately to State and local authorities.

The new service will be based upon two principles, described by the Secretary in a statement as follows:

"That the direct operation of public employment offices is best done by State and local governments.

Assisting Local Effort.

"That the function of the Federal Government is to assist State and local governments to develop and maintain and expand adequate employment services with high standards and common procedures and to weld them together into an effective and Nation-wide system."

Miss Perkins said experience had "proved the soundness of these two principles" which are incorporated in a new bill of Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, similar to the one vetoed.

The new set-up will have a Federal director in each State at a salary of $1 a year, who will be responsible for developing the State services and cooperating with the Federal unit. Provision in the State services for additional personnel may be made when needed, it was said, by agreement between the Federal service and the State agencies.

Standards to Be Set.

"First and foremost," Miss Perkins said, "the Federal Government will develop standards for the operation of State and local public offices. In the beginning these will be only the minimum standards essential to the carrying on of the organization between the units of which there is a systematic exchange and cooperation.

"Second, the Federal Employment Service will clear labor among the States and collect reliable and comparable information with respect to the demand for and supply of labor. In addition, the service may carry on researches related to the work, and in general make available to the State and local public employment offices a vigorous leadership."

Several regional clearing houses with field supervision to help administer the service also are contemplated, along with a national advisory council representing employers, employes and others.

7 ANGLO-AMERICAN POINTS TO END CRISIS IN HARMONY

field of economics and monetary policy.

Third—Moderaton of the present levels of tariffs, the abolition of tariff quotas and the lifting of exchange restrictions;

Fourth—Concerted action by the Federal Reserve Bank and the Bank of England for the preservation of their respective monetary values when fixed.

Fifth—Expansion of credit and the pumping of this credit into circulation by the action of these banks.

Sixth—The stimulation of private enterprise and the projection in the two governments of governmental programs involving expenditure of capital.

Seventh, reestablishment of international exchanges and the improvement of silver.

The prime minister left behind him his two leading experts in the field of fiscal affairs and a general tariff policy, Sir Frederick Leith-Ross and Arnold E. Overton respectively. They will remain here to confer with the American experts, and also for interviews with the French experts who will be here until Saturday.

It was learned authoritatively yesterday however, that at no stage of the conversations between the President and the prime minister was any definite date fixed for the stabilization of the dollar and the pound. President Roosevelt feels that so long as other nations, such as Italy, Germany, Japan have yet to be heard from in the discussion of fiscal problems common to all nations, any pegging of their moneys would be only temporary until a general agreement at the London Conference is made.

"Maelstrom of Europe."

In his final conference with the press, Mr. MacDonald hinted at a more developed policy of cooperation between the United States and Great Britain would react to the mutual desires of both countries for freedom from entangling alliances with third powers, but yet nevertheless leave the door open for closer cooperation between them. He said:

"Can you imagine what is going to happen if America and Great Britain can not devise a means of marching side by side? No alliances. Don't you have any fear of that. No entanglements. We are not going to be brought into the maelstrom of Europe. You are going to remain where you are, but no man lives to himself alone."

Hardly had the British prime minister left en route to New York and London, when Canadian Prime Minister Richard Bedford Bennett came to the White House as the guest of the President.

Confers With Secretary Hull.

The President will have his first real discussion with the Canadian statesman at 10 a. m. today. Yesterday afternoon, however, the Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, and Mr. Bennett met in the office of the Secretary to make a preliminary discussion of the points which will be examined in detail by the Canadian and American experts and by the President and the prime minister.

Mr. Bennett was accompanied by the Canadian Minister, who is also his brother-in-law, Maj. William Duncan Herridge, and the counselor of the Canadian Legation, Hume Wrong, and the private secretary of the prime minister, R. K. Finlayson. The American experts included the Assistant Secretary of State, Raymond Moley; the Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, Rexford Tugwell, and James Warburg. Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, was also present with John D. Hickerson, the Canadian specialist of the department of state.

A brief communique was issued after their first contact, as follows:

"The prime minister and the Secretary of State and other officials representing the two governments met this afternoon to discuss problems relating to the world monetary and economic conference and related questions of special importance to the two governments themselves. The conversations were mutually helpful. They will continue tomorrow."

President of Poland Sets Election May 8

Warsaw, April 26 (A.P.).—President Ignatz Mosciki today fixed May 8 as the date for the Polish presidential elections.

The general opinion considers the reelection of Mosciki very likely. Others mentioned for the presidency are Premier Prystor and the Senate speaker Raczkiewicz.

GREEN AND SWOPE GIVE LABOR VIEWS

Witnesses Differ on Nearly Every Angle of 30-Hour-Week Proposal.

(Associated Press.)

Spokesmen for organized labor and business pointed out yesterday to the House Labor Committee the flaws they think are ruinous in Secretary Perkins' plans for Federal control of production, wages and hours of labor.

First, there was William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who agreed with the idea of limiting work to 6 hours a day five days in the week, but contended that a Federal minimum wage law would be a "risky adventure."

Then there was Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Co., who approved the purpose of the bill—"to spread employment"—indorsed the minimum wage proposal, and accepted the 30-hour week provision, but insisted that production had better be controlled by industry itself, through modification of the Clayton and Sherman antitrust acts.

Wants More Leeway.

Swope testified, too, that there should be greater elasticity in the plan to reduce working hours. Where Secretary Perkins would permit employes ordinarily on the job 30 hours in a week to work 40 hours a week for 10 weeks, Swope proposed that a maximum of 48 hours be allowed for any one week.

He would divide the total number of hours in a six-month period by the number of weeks, so that the average would not exceed 30 hours.

Some expressions of these two witnesses on major provisions of the bill were:

Limited working hours—

Green—We (organized labor) are heartily in favor of this part of the bill.

Swope—The provisions of the bill are * * * too rigid for practical application and * * * do not go far enough.

Production control—

Green—We think that would prove a very interesting experiment, and we are willing to accept it to see what the outcome would be.

About Wage Law.

Swope—Production had much better be controlled by an agreement of industry itself, organized into trade unions.

Minimum wage law—

Green—It would be a risky adventure. While it might help some, it would tend to injure the efforts of the great bulk of labor to bring about increased standards of living.

Swope—That is particularly essential to the lower classes of labor. Unskilled labor needs your protection; it has no organization to help it.

On the proposal to bar imports made in foreign countries by workmen on the job more than 30 hours a week they said:

Green—We understand there is some opposition to that, particularly by the administration, but we believe it would be fair to prevent importation of goods made on a longer work week basis.

Swope—That would not do much good. Our difficulties now are caused by depreciated currencies abroad. Requiring a 30-hour work week on imports would increase the foreign labor costs only slightly.

SELF-SLASHED CUBA POLICEMAN MAY DIE

One of Four, Held in Plot Against Government, Says He Tried Suicide.

Havana, April 26 (A.P.).—Policeman Jose Manuel Corvo, who tried to kill himself last night after his arrest with three fellow officers on suspicion, police said, that they had "sold out" to the government's enemies, was in a serious condition today.

Hospital attaches said he told them he slashed himself with his pocketknife in a cell assigned him at Atares Castle.

It was reported that spies had approached the suspected quartet, pretending to be opposition sympathizers, and inveigled them into revealing antigovernment affiliations. Thereupon they were arrested, Chief of Police A. B. Ainciart himself taking them into custody.

Raul Maruri and Raul Ortega, newspapermen, who were arrested early yesterday, were free again today. Their alleged offense was referring indirectly to the forbidden name of Rafael Trejo, student killed by police in 1930.

Secretary of State Ferrara today said he had no official advices concerning reports that two Cubans had sought refuge in foreign legations, fearing violence at the hands of police authorities.

Abilio Valdes Daussa, young physician whose two brothers were killed by police ten days ago, was rumored to have taken asylum in the Chilean Legation.

Pedro S. Nunez, a physician, fled by the back door when plain-clothes police came to his house last night and members of his family believed he had gone into one mission or another.

What charges were lodged against Nunez was not known, but Sunday he filed application with military authorities for a permit to organize a manifestation to welcome Sumner Welles, new United States Ambassador, when he arrives. The permit was denied.

U. S. TO PROBE TALK CAUSING BANK RUNS

The bank remained open until 8 minutes after 3 p. m., paying all comers, and announced it will open "as usual" tomorrow at 9 a. m.

Later, Pancher issued a public statement concerning the Federal investigation of malicious rumors, and added:

"Anxiety concerning deposits in licensed banks in Cleveland is unwarranted. These banks were licensed and reopened for full operation after careful determination of their condition."

In a statement last March 31, the Cleveland Trust listed total time and demand deposits at $225,644,791, with total assets of $257,477,047. Capital stock is $13,800,000.

CRIES FOR MOONEY CAUSE TRIAL DELAY

Judge Refuses to Conduct Hearing With Shouts of Crowd in Ears.

San Francisco, April 26 (A.P.).—The shout of a crowd—"We want Mooney!"—into the ears of Superior Court Judge Louis H. Ward as he approached the Hall of Justice moved the jurist today to continue the newly granted murder trial of Thomas J. Mooney, convicted preparedness day parade bomber, "until this feeling dies down."

While proclaiming his willingness to give Mooney "a trial upon the facts and merits of the case," Judge Ward warned the defense he would not be a party to the raising of constitutional grounds upon which it might seek to free the noted prisoner from his conviction of sixteen years ago. He decreed that the cheers and howls of the crowd, penetrating even unto the courtroom as he spoke, would be prejudicial to fairness.

The case was continued until May 22. The courtroom was packed with persons admitted only by card.

Frank P. Walsh, veteran defense attorney, was on his feet instantly to deplore the demonstrations and point out that a statement had been issued in Mooney's behalf two days previously, requesting his sympathizers to restrain themselves lest they injure his cause.

"Any man," said Walsh, "who takes part in such demonstrations is doing Mooney harm—almost fatal harm."

Pope to Leave Vatican For Visit to St. Paul's

Rome, April 26 (A.P.).—Reports tonight said that Pope Pius is planning an early excursion from the Vatican, perhaps tomorrow, to visit St. Paul's basilica in Rome.

Vatican City prelates were unable to confirm the rumors, but said that if the visit is made it will be without previous announcement. It would be the fifth time that Pope Pius has crossed the Vatican City frontiers since he became the pontiff.

SENATE ADDS FREE SILVER TO MEASURE FOR INFLATION

sation. Should administration leaders decide to retaliate by withdrawing their support of the Glass banking reform bill, that measure would die for the extra session.

Last night there were persistent reports that Senator Glass would take the floor today to outline his position for the entire country. He feels strongly that the inflation bill is a complete repudiation of the sound-money plank in the Democratic national platform. He has a violent urge to say so for the Record. Party leaders have prevailed upon him thus far to save his breath.

Text of Amendment.

Democrats who voted against the silver amendment were Bailey, Bulkley, Copeland, Gore, Stephens, Tydings and Wagner. Republicans who joined the Democratic majority were Capper, Cutting, Norris and Nye.

The Wheeler-King amendment authorize sthe President—

By proclamation to fix the weight of the gold dollar in grains nine-tenths fine and also to fix the weight of the silver dollar in grains nine-tenths fine at a definite fixed ratio to the gold dollar at such amounts as he finds necessary from his investigation to stabilize domestic prices or to protect the foreign commerce against the adverse effect of depreciated foreign currencies, and to provide for the unlimited coinage of such gold and silver at the ratio so fixed.

Roosevelt Approves.

The Wheeler-King amendment was offered with the approval of President Roosevelt.

Immediately following the silver vote, Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, leader of the inflation opposition, called up his amendment to strike out the entire silver and gold sections of the amended Thomas text. Debate on the Reed amendment is scheduled to begin at noon today.

Next will come the amendment offered by Senator Arthur R. Robinson (Republican), Indiana, to pay the remaining maturity value of the soldier bonus certificates in greenbacks. This proposal is a resurrection of the Patman bill in the last session. It would call for $2,500,000,000.

As Senator Robinson presented it in the Senate, Representative Patman circulated a petition on the House side to force a Democratic caucus on the bonus question Monday night. The necessary 25 signatures were quickly obtained, but the caucus call was postponed pending an informed conference today between Speaker Rainey and Democratic Leader Byrns. President Roosevelt is opposed to linking the bonus payment with the inflation bill. Speaker Rainey hopes he may bring the bonus advocates to this view without a formal party caucus.

Asked if he would consult the President before making his decision on the caucus call Representative Byrns replied, "I don't want to get him into it directly if I can keep from it."

Scores of immediate-payment advocates in the House have stood with the President heretofore on the plea of economy. Now that inflation is to make ample funds available for all purposes, it may be difficult to keep the bonus sentiment in check, Patman said last night.

Representative Lea, of California, chairman of the party caucus, stated that when the Patman petition is formally presented he will have no choice in the matter of issuing the formal call.

"We feel," said Representative Patman, in explaining the revival of his project, "that in these days of talk about inflation and currency expansion we should consider the best way of distributing the new money. It is our contention that it can best be distributed through the veterans."

Long Claims Credit.

In offering his amendment to the Senate, Mr. Robinson said there could be no economic recovery until the "grave injustices" inflicted upon the war veterans by the recent economy bill were rectified.

"This is a way to rectify that unwise legislation," he told the Senate. "It will provide a means of getting the money into circulation. Now that we are to have plenty of money for all purposes, I offer the amendment."

Senator Huey Long formally proclaimed in the Senate yesterday that he had been personally influential in winning President Roosevelt and his advisers over to inflation, and that he hoped now to win the administration over to immediate payment of the bonus.

"It took considerable talking to get the administration to see the light," Senator Long said on the floor. "As one of the original inflationists, I must say this bill is most sound."

Senator Smith, of South Carolina, chairman of the Agricultural Committee, protested against loading down the farm bill with so many amendmets.

"You're forgetting the farmer," he suggested.

DR. LEWIS PRAISES OLD FAMILY DOCTOR

General Practitioner Seen as Foundation Stone of Medical Work.

Operating on Gangsters Gives Surgeons Thrills

More "kick" is to be derived from collecting a fee from operating on a gangster than from the more conservative and often less lucrative type of patient, Dr. Dean Lewis, professor of surgery at the Johns Hopkins Medical School, declared in an address last night before the District Medical Society.

Dr. Lewis told the story of his experience with a gangster—only he didn't know his patient was a gangster until he read later that he had escaped an attack by fellow hoodlums in Chicago.

"But the man paid me without delay, extracting a huge roll of bills to do so," Dr. Lewis beamed as members of the society chuckled enviously. "I operated on his wife later and again the big roll came into view. A doctor can learn a lot about human nature when it comes to fees. On the whole, I think medical fees are very reasonable. I've never had much trouble collecting them."

The family doctor was upheld as the foundation for all forms of medical service by Dr. Dean Lewis, professor of surgery at the Johns Hopkins Medical School, and president-elect of the American Medical Association, in an address before the Medical Society of the District at the concluding session of its annual meeting last night.

To this familiar and often picturesque figure, Dr. Lewis pointed as the best guide for the public.

"The middle classes and the class just below the middle class know their doctors much better than the intelligentsia, who are better at differentiating between cooks," the famous surgeon declared.

However, it was on the subject of vivisection and the cost of medical care that Dr. Lewis uttered his strongest opinions.

Defends Vivisection.

Answering the protectors of the dumb animal world against operations, Dr. Lewis observed the inoculation of a mouse has often saved the life of a man. He pointed out that vivisection of other animals has proved what diseases are contagious and how they may be controlled.

"The time has passed," he said, "when a surgeon is bold enough to declare that vivisection has not improved his knowledge."

On the subject of the cost of medical care, he asserted that "the less we talk about it the less we'll hear about it. Those who talk about it don't provide any medium for putting it into operation. I am violently opposed to State university hospitals being placed in competition with the private practitioner. But we can establish diagnostic clinics at minimum rates where patients would be admitted only by letter from their doctors or in company with their doctors, and returned to their doctors after the diagnosis is completed."

Praises Service to Poor.

Dr. Lewis admitted that he does not know quite how this plan could be put in operation. "The poor people," he observed, "are being well taken care of. I believe that the American people are getting the highest quality of medical care at a fair rate."

Dr. Lewis was introduced by Dr. Harry A. Fowler, president of the District Medical Society. He was entertained at a dinner at the Mayflower prior to the meeting by Dr. Thomas A. Groover.

At the afternoon session, Frederick A. Fenning, former District Commissioner and counsel for the District Medical Society, assailed the proposal of the committee on cost of medical care of having more doctors at public expense. He declared "this would degrade medical men by making them automatons, subject to the caprice of political expediency."

Also speaking at the day session, Dr. Maude E. Abbott, of Montreal, Canada, the world's leading authority on congenital heart disease, reviewed the contribution to medical knowledge made by Sir William Osler, with whom she was associated.

NEWSPAPER DRIVE ON TAXES IS URGED

Publishers May Crusade on Utility Rates and Free Radio Programs.

New York, April 26 (A.P.).—Newspaper publishers attending the forty-seventh annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association took under consideration today the suggestion that newspapers wage a campaign against high public utility rates and high taxes.

The suggestion, which climaxed the second day's session, during which the association unanimously adopted a resolution recommending that radio programs be banned from free publication, was made by C. M. Palmer publisher of the St. Joseph (Mo.) News-Press.

"The cost of commodities has come down," Mr. Palmer said, "but we overlook the fact that the most fixed items in everybody's budget—taxes and public utilities—have not decreased in cost."

"Pork Barrel" Bills.

Palmer recommended that fellow publishers adopt and vigorously support a policy calling for reduction in public utilities rates and taxation. He said his newspaper has adopted such a program.

Discussing taxation, Col. Frank Knox, of the Chicago Daily News, said he favored publishing the names of legislators who support "pork barrel" bills causing increases in public expenditures. He said he did not refer to relief measures. Col. Knox asserted he approved of printing the names of those representatives on the front page of newspapers.

The radio resolution, which was contained in the report of the radio committee, was offered for action by E. H. Harris, publisher of the Richmond (Ind.) Palladium-Item, chairman of the committee and secretary of the association.

Part of Radio Resolution.

The resolution reads, in part:

"Therefore be it resolved that it is the sense of this association that in the future newspapers should not publish such programs free of charge and should publish them, when offered, only as advertising matter, to be paid for as other advertising is paid for."

While it was said by an official of the association that the resolution is not binding upon members of the association, it was pointed out that since the passage of a similar resolution last year numerous papers have banned free radio programs.

R. L. M'KELLAR DIES AT APARTMENT HERE

Brother of Senator Was for Many Years Employe of Southern Railway.

R. L. McKellar, brother of Senator Kenneth McKellar, died suddenly yesterday at his apartment at Stoneleigh Court, where he had been under treatment for arthritis. Senator McKellar, who resided in the same apartment, was with him at the end.

Mr. McKellar formerly lived in Memphis, but for a number of years was foreign freight traffic manager of the Southern Railway system at Louisville, Ky. Recently that office was moved to Washington. Mr. McKellar left a widow and four children, Robert, now a student at Yale; Matilda, a student at Bronxville, N. Y., and Lucia and Douglas at school in Louisville, Ky. Mr. McKellar also leaves three other brothers, J. J. McKellar, H. C. McKellar and D. W. McKellar, all of Memphis.

Mr. McKellar was an official of the Southern Railway and its predecessor, the old Memphis and Charleston Railway Co. for about 49 years. He enjoyed a wide popularity in railway circles. He was a member of the Episcopal Church and when he lived in Memphis he was a member of numerous clubs, and at one time was president of the Memphis Merchants Exchange. While in Louisville he was a member of the famous Pendennis Club.

The funeral will take place tomorrow at Memphis.

BOLD BANK HOLDUP PLAN FORESTALLED

guns and tear gas, left for the bank, Inspector Burke decided on another course of action.

Two Seized on Corner.

He learned that alleged participants in the holdup would hold a rendezvous at noon on a street near the bank. It was there that final plans were to be discussed.

Rather than risk the chance of bloodshed and perhaps lives of his men, the inspector altered his plans. Half of the armed squad he sent to the bank. Others he ordered to the supposed bandits' meeting place.

Promptly at 12 o'clock, on a street near the bank, a scene was enacted rivaling the greatest movie "thriller." Two men, whose descriptions had been furnished police, met on the corner. They talked quietly together for a moment.

Then suddenly, apparently from thin air, appeared four detectives. The two men surrendered without a struggle.

Criminal Records Found.

Meanwhile, in the bank proper, excitement had reached a fever pitch. In less than two hours, should the other squad fail in their purpose, the holdup would be attempted. Then came Inspector Burke. It was all over, he assured them. There would be no holdup.

The two men, arrested on the street, were taken to headquarters. Held on technical charges for investigation, they said they were Arthur W. Carlson, 26, and Charles Elmer O'Neil, 29. Later in the day, Inspector Burke obtained from the Department of Justice alleged criminal records against both men. The Justice Department said their real names were Carl William Hanson and Thomas Boyle.

After an examination, it was revealed that Boyle was suffering from a gunshot wound in his foot. Inspector Burke said he believed it was received in another holdup here some weeks ago. The man was taken, under heavy guard, to a hospital for treatment.

Inspector Burke said that a search of the pair's room in a downtown rooming house disclosed an assortment of guns and ammunition. The prisoners' records revealed they were known to police in Kansas City.

SOVIET PERIL SEEN IN JAPANESE MOVE

Chinese Attribute Sudden Withdrawal to Moscow's Attitude.

Tientsin, China, April 26 (A.P.).—The sudden withdrawal of the Japanese army from the area east of the Lwan River provoked widespread bewilderment in Tientsin today and paralyzed the activities of persons who had been intriguing to set up a separate North China state.

The Chinese continued their advance along the Peiping-Mukden Railway east of the Lwan, their vanguard reaching Changli.

Chinese commentators expected that the Japanese would withdraw to the north of the Shih River near Shanhaikwan, evacuating both Peitaiho and Chinwangtao.

Fighting to the south of Kupeikow, a Great Wall pass northeast of Peiping, ceased after an all-day battle Tuesday in which the Japnaese subjected the Chinese to terrific aerial bombing. The Chinese said their positions were not shaken.

Chinese circles in Tientsin attribute the Japanese withdrawal from the Lwan area south of the Great Wall to tension resulting from the Japanese controversy with Soviet Russia over the Chinese Eastern Railway in Manchuria, and the strengthening of the Soviet attitude.

The international conversations at Washington, in which Chinese and Japanese are participating, also are cited as a factor, together with the reluctance of the Japanese government to become involved in limitless operations in North China.

More cynical observers suspect that an informal armistice has been arranged. In Japanese circles this is vigorously denied.

Moscow, April 26 (A.P.).—A dispatch from Khabarovsk, Siberia, tonight, quoting "competent sources," said that Japanese circles in Manchuria, acting with approval of the Japanese Kwantung army headquarters, had adopted a plan to seize the Chinese Eastern Railway from Soviet Russia.

Associated Press Adopts New Broadcasting Rules

New York, April 26 (A.P.).—Regulations under which Associated Press newspapers may broadcast brief news bulletins over stations located at the place of publication were prescribed today by the board of directors, in conformity with the resolution passed yesterday at the annual meeting of the news association.

The board's resolution read:

"Recognizing that any action at this time must be tentative, the board prescribes the following regulations:

"Resolved that Associated Press news of major local, national and international importance may be broadcast only by a member over a broadcasting station located at the place of publication in a brief bulletin form of not more than 30 words each, and one bulletin only on any one subject. Sports events need not be subjected to the 30-word or one-subject limitations. Such bulletins shall be broacast only within the hours of publication of the member reports and with full credit to the Associated Press and the member newspaper broadcasting.

"Such broadcast of bulletins shall in no way be connected with commercial programs; that extraordinary service material, which is not subject to limited hours of publication, is excepted, but such matters shall be subject to the 30-word limitation. And be it further resolved that all resolutions heretofore adopted by the board concerning broadcasting inconsistent with this resolution, be rescinded.

"That concerning the recommendation of the membership that added assessments be imposed upon members broadcasting, this question involving many complications, is deferred for future study.

"In pursuance of its policy to protect the news reports of the Associated Press, the suit now pending in the Federal court to prevent the unauthorized use by radio of such news reports will be rigorously prosecuted."

CHURCHMAN SOUGHT BELIEVED IN EUROPE

Priestly Brock, Accused of Posing as Cleric, Travels With Two Boys.

His activities as a cleric poseur under investigation, the "Rev." H. Priestly Brock, well known in Episcopal church circles here, was believed last night to be somewhere abroad with the two young sons of a Baltimore man in his care.

Continued inability to produce credentials from Canada certifying his ordination as a minister of the Episcopal faith brought about the investigation. He had explained from time to time that his papers and army credentials had been destroyed in a fire at Accokeek, Va., where he served as temporary pastor of the Episcopal Church.

Bishop Freeman's Statement.

Bishop Freeman issued the following statement last night with regard to Brock:

"With reference to statement concerning H. Priestly Brock, I beg to say that this entire matter has been and is still being investigated. Brock was never a rector of a parish in this diocese, but served at different times during his residence here as supply in a rural parish. He was resident in the city for several years before he was asked by one of the rural parishes to serve as a temporary supply. During this period of residence here he became known to many of our clergy and gained their confidence and respect. During this period nothing that he said or did reflected in any wise on his character. His greatly impaired throat, due, as he stated, to being gassed in the World War when he served as a chaplain, provoked widespread sympathy on my part and that of the clergy generally. He made no undue appeals to me for financial assistance, but I gave him voluntarily small sums to aid him in restoring his voice. He came and went over long periods, several times, going to and from England and Canada, and always on his return, while the parish he temporarily served was still without a rector, the vestry requested him to continue.

Gone Almost Year.

"Brock was never received as a rector in this diocese, nor was he canonically resident here. During his early stay at Accokeek, his home was destroyed by fire, together with all his belongings, including his credentials and Army citations, as he told me. He has been gone from this diocese for almost a year, and I had no knowledge of his whereabouts until recent months. During his entire stay here he repeatedly expressed his desire to return to his work in Canada."

The two boys are said to be Richard and Robert Vidall, sons of a Baltimore man. Mr. Vidall could not be reached last night for comment as to Brock's activities.

Last summer, after Brock was informed by Bishop Freeman he could no longer fill the Accokeek pulpit because repeated requests for credentials had brought no results, he established himself in a house at Cockeysville, Md., where he announced his intention of organizing a home for boys. To this end he is alleged to have solicited subscriptions of about $5,000 chiefly from residents of Washington.

Found Estate Closed.

The Rev. Guy E. Kagey, of the Sherwood Church, Cockeysville, said yesterday he had maintained an acquaintance with Brock for several years and told of the man's efforts to establish a home for boys, to be known as the St. George's Home for Boys, in the Maryland community.

Brock, Dr. Kagey said, boasted he was of a noble English family. His story was that he had been wounded in the war and on returning to his ancestral estate in England had found the place closed. On questioning the gardener, he was informed his two brothers had been killed, and the father, believing that he also was dead, had not survived the shock.

About a day before the presidential inauguration, Dr. Kagey said he packed several suitcases and trunks and left for the Capital. He had announced his intention, the clergyman said, of going to the inauguration with Robert and Richard.

Playmate Receives Letter.

The last heard of Brock was on March 5, when James Gordon, a cook at the home, who Dr. Kagey said had been in Brock's employ for about three years, received a telegram from New York City instructing him to close the establishment and return the other boys to Washington, as the home would not open for several months. In the telegram Brock is alleged to have announced his intention of going to Montreal.

That is all Cockeysville knows of the project, Dr. Kagey said, until a playmate of one of the two boys received a letter from him postmarked London, England.

Jury's Award Assesses Man Who Was Freed in Hughes Case.

As a result of the fatal stabbing of Claude Hughes by Paul Dement at Branchville, Md., February 22, 1931, Mrs. Virginia Hughes, widow of the slain man, and her four children were awarded $4,000 damages by a jury in Prince Georges County Circuit Court.

Of the total award, $3,000 was given Mrs. Hughes. The children received the remainder. Stanley received $100, Virginia $150, Kenneth $250 and Charles $500.

Although Dement was acquitted of murder by a circuit court in 1931, the Prince Georges jury held him responsible for damages sustained by Mrs. Hughes and her children through the loss of husband and father.

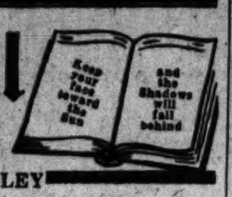
The Federal Diary



By GEORGE D. RILEY

CARRYING meat to Chicago is going one better than that stunt of toting coals to Newcastle. Yet—

Synthetic models of juicy steaks, sizzling on platters, cold lamb and oven-browned spiced hams are on temporary display in the Bureau of Home Economics. The models are so realistic as to cause onlookers to smack their lips and say, "Yum, yum, how appetizing."

These replicas, conceded by competent judges to be par excellence reproductions of each meat-food product presented, are the handicraft of Mrs. M. J. R. Roller, office of exhibits, Agriculture. Eventually the models will find their way to the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago, as a part of the general exhibit of the Department of Agriculture.

When Jacquelyn Lee visited Commerce yesterday her admirers asked her if she intended to enter Government service when she grows up. She merely yawned and seemed a bit bored. If you must know the lady's age, she is 2 months old. And we feel real mean for telling. And isn't she another argument against Federal pay cuts and name slashing of Government pay rolls? Daughter of Wally and Betty Lipscomb.

HAVING selected members of the general committee, First Annual Federal Diary Golf Tournament, J. Leland Acuff, Prohibition, last evening announced he had in mind the name of a chairman for the handicap committee for the event at Indian Spring Club May 25.

A correspondent yesterday wrote, "If ladies are allowed to enter the contest, I should like to be considered." The letter was passed along to Mr. Acuff to see what can be arranged.

Twenty-five more entrants were enrolled up to late last evening. The entry list is limited to 80 foursomes, so that delays may prevent being among the first 200.

The Federal Diary's slogan for the tournament is "Let's get better acquainted." When play starts, you'll probably be teeing off with men from other departments, so you'll meet new faces. As stated before, no entry fees, just bring the clubs and a determination to win the handsome cup or other prizes.

And, after the first annual golf tournament is over, but, wait, announcement of other big events is out of place here. Latest entrants in the golf tournament:

RECENTLY we were talking to E. J. Gardner, appointment chief, Commerce. The topic of typing and stenography came up. Mr. Gardner himself rose from the ranks as a stenographer.

Back in the days when Secretary Redfield was in charge of the Department of Commerce, when work was carried on over on the Avenue at Nineteenth street, Mr. Gardner recalled the Secretary was one of the most difficult to receive dictation from.

"I remember the Secretary rattled off the sentences and it took some real speed to keep up with him and at the same time to maintain accuracy," Mr. Gardner told us.

"Mr. Redfield would ring the buzzer. As soon as I showed up in the doorway of the Secretary's office he began a rapid-fire dictation. 'Tell the War Department that we have considered the matter very carefully, &c., &c.'

"At that time car lines crossed at the intersection and we had plenty of distractions. The Secretary's office was in the corner office. He would lean out the window, attracted by something in the street, but dictation went right on. If I missed any of it, well, I couldn't and didn't. That was my job. I had to keep right up with the running fire, the barrage of dictation.

"I remember one day I felt uncertain that I had caught all of the first paragraph. 'Mr. Secretary,' I asked, after I had recessed to my desk and had tried to form the opening of the letter from my notes, 'I am not quite sure I have the first part of this letter just as you dictated. Will you please repeat it?'

"Mr. Redfield left the impression quite clearly with me that I should not have missed a single word, that it was impossible that I could have missed any of what he had said. 'That's all right, Mr. Secretary, I'm sure I can get it all just as you have dictated' and with that I went back and wrestled with the lead paragraph again. I must have succeeded, for I never heard anything to the contrary after Mr. Redfield had read the letter."

AND speaking of typewriting and typewriters, just 60 years ago, March 28, the typewriter, so important in transacting Government detail work, was invented. Many in Federal service who have been graduated into better positions in or out of the service started with the keyboard.

A quarter million members of the Y. W. C. A. all over the country have just completed celebration of the invention anniversary. "Perfection of the 'writing machine' marked the beginning of an industry that has changed the lives and outlook of women," said Mrs. Robert E. Speer, honorary president of the association. As the first organization to recognize its value to self-supporting women, the Y. W. C. A. is the logical organization to mark this anniversary.

Biller, chairman of the forum, announced at the March meeting, the purpose is to develop resolutions on retirement for the convention of the National Federation of Federal Employes in September at Kansas City.

However, time will be given to recent developments relative to retirement after 30 years of service and suggestions for 15 and 30 year optional retirement.

The forum meets tomorrow at 8 p. m., suite 604, 710 Fourteenth street northwest.

Snowstorm at Buffalo, Streams Frozen Over

Buffalo, N. Y., April 26 (A.P.).—A driving snowstorm brought white roofs to Buffalo this afternoon. Niagara Falls and Jamestown also reported it was "snowing hard," and some streams were frozen in the Jamestown area.

TRADE CHIEFS TOLD ORIENT GOOD BUYER

Farrell Sees Cash Stability as Best Guarantee of Early Recovery.

Pittsburgh, April 26 (A.P.).—Diagnosing their ailing commerce, American industrial leaders at the twentieth annual National Foreign Trade Convention turned tonight to the Orient and Latin America in their quest for new arteries of trade.

James A. Farrell, founder and chairman of the trade council, which sponsors the meeting, opened the three-day sessions this morning with assurances that he felt recovery is near.

"The most pressing need at present is the establishment of sound currencies in all countries," said Farrell.

The industrial "doctors" advanced China and Latin America as the golden fields ripe for trade, once currency has been stabilized.

Far East Good Buyer.

Raymond Mackay, a Far Eastern expert of the State Department, told the convention that American traders in general, and exporters in particular, may well give constant attention and thought to developments in the Pacific area.

"I hope that all of you will carry a vivid recollection of one outstanding and utterly important fact: During 1932, our exports to the Far East amounted to 20 per cent of our total—its largest ratio in history—and its decrease is the smallest of any zone."

Mackay said competition is tightening, with Japanese firms doubling and tripling their exports since going off the gold standard in December, 1931. This action caused the yen to decrease in value from 50 to 23 cents.

Latin-America Ripe.

Col. Henry Breckinridge, former Assistant Secretary of War, opened the Latin-American market discussion, suggesting that since America has more money invested there than anywhere else, excepting Canada, more study should be made of the Spanish-American. He said:

"He is as different from the European Spaniard as the American is from the Britisher."

"Good roads and airplane lines are opening the country up for development as never before and I think America can profit most there. Particularly is there a need for more study of the language and customs in our schools."

In private conferences delegates were assured by four Department of State representatives, headed by Walter C. Foote, that a solution of foreign exchange problems seems only a matter of time.

Foote asserted: "If your meeting had been one week later, we believe we could have brought you a message of great import from the President."

Arlington Aroused By Utility Charges

Campbell Demands Data on Tax Collectors Getting Lion's Share.

In a letter sent last night to the Virginia Public Service Co. by Edmund D. Campbell, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission of Arlington County, the company is asked to furnish figures upon which it bases a statement that tax collectors get more of the money from bills paid by consumers than does the company.

The statement is in the form of a sticker in red type attached to all bills now being received by residents of the county, which read: "When you pay this bill, please remember that the tax collectors will get more of the money than will the owners of the company that rendered the service."

The matter was called to the attention of Chairman Campbell by L. C. McNemar, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation. He said that before the statement was issued the company should have submitted to the public for examination the information upon which the statement is based, "and until this information is forthcoming it would be very unwise to accept the statement at its face value."

HOUSE SEEKS CURBS ON CONTRACT POWER

matically retired, including bureau chiefs with that length of service.

Previously, the preponderant bulk of testimony had favored "optional," as opposed to "compulsory" retirement. Representative Buchanan said this late correspondence had not changed the subcommittee's attitude, but declined to disclose specifically what that attitude is. It is known, however, that Chairman Buchanan favors giving the President a free hand in retiring 30-year personnel, on the basis of efficiency.

Big Contracts Affected.

Chairman Buchanan and Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, former chairman of the independent offices subcommittee, plan to whip the independent offices measure and its general legislative features into shape this afternoon. The bill probably will not be reported to the House until Tuesday.

There is some $35,000,000 in foreign ocean and air mail contracts, and $15,000,000 in domestic air-mail contracts, which might be reached if the President is empowered to cancel this class of Government contracts. Besides moneys on hand, $50,000,000 was appropriated last session for public building construction that might be stopped by the President.

WIDE STEPS TOWARD RECOVERY APPARENT

Wall Street Feels Concrete Preliminaries Made to London Parley.

(Copyright, 1933, by the Associated Press.)

New York, April 26.—Far-reaching steps toward reopening the world's great marts of trade appeared to have been taken today.

While these steps are merely preliminary, and definite action will presumably not be taken until after the World Economic Conference, tentatively slated to convene June 12, completes its labor, high financial quarters felt that sweeping progress had been made.

The developments of the past few years have been toward economic nationalism rather than toward international economic cooperation. The contentious problem has been aroused as to whether the United States should seek to isolate itself from the rest of the world, or should seek to restore world stability through cooperation. President Roosevelt has taken the latter course.

Repercussions of Two Years.

How important international financial affairs are to the life of the Nation, according to the proponents of this course of action, may be realized from the repercussions of the past two years. Some economists and financial authorities insist that international cooperation might have been effective in checking the course of depression long before.

It is true that the proportion of the United States total production of goods exported appears to have been declining for a number of years. Exports in 1899 were more than 14 per cent, and in 1929 less than 11 per cent.

But, according to the proponents of international cooperation, that 11 per cent included a large proportion of many key items. Of cotton, it was 55 per cent; tobacco, 41 per cent; copper, 36 per cent; lard, 31 per cent; agricultural machinery, 23 per cent, and wheat, 18 per cent.

Long Years of Privation.

Those who deplore the trend toward economic nationalism in recent years assert that the clash of economics leads inevitably to the clash of arms, and while wars have at times resulted in temporary flurries of what seemed like prosperity, they have been followed by long years of privation. With the economic and social structure growing constantly more complex and interdependent, the question arises as to whether further violent disturbances might not lead to complete breakdown.

Economic nationalism might work if nations would practice it to the letter, economists point out, but in actual practice, each nation while trying to keep out the goods of her neighbors has tried to maintain its own foreign markets.

The tendency has been for each country to try to build up productive machinery to meet all of its requirements, while also trying to sell abroad. Furthermore, debtor countries, like Germany, have been forced to sell goods in foreign markets to get foreign exchange, and with the appearance of hard times, this could be done only by cutting prices. The result has been more goods than markets would take, and sweeping declines in price levels.

Virginia Suspect Held On Burglary Charges

Jefferson D. Broddus, of Merrifield, Va., was held for grand jury action at a hearing yesterday before Judge Paul E. Brown, trial justice at Fairfax, Va., on a charge of breaking into the garage of J. E. Vincent, at Merrifield. He was held in bond of $1,000 pending the convening of the grand jury of the Fairfax County Circuit Court next month.

It is charged that Broddus entered the Vincent garage Tuesday night and stole parts from a truck valued at $35.

RENOVIZE CAMPAIGN MEETING IS TONIGHT

Philadelphia's Successful Big Drive Will Be Described to Board of Trade.

The method in which Philadelphia conducted a renovize campaign of the type being inaugurated in Washington will be described by I. D. Gindhart, of the Quaker City, at the annual meeting of the Washington Board of Trade tonight, at the Mayflower Hotel.

Mr. Gindhart will tell of the benefits derived by Philadelphia, of how employment increased 20 per cent in March and February, and other benefits.

The local campaign heads are planning the renovation of an old house, to be placed on the plot of ground across from the new Department of Commerce Building. Materials, labor and supervision for the project have been volunteered.

The campaign is being conducted here by the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Architects and the Washington Board of Trade. Arthur B. Heaton is general chairman in charge.

Dr. L. H. Reichelderfer To Receive Boys' Group

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the D. C. Board of Commissioners, will receive a delegation of boys Saturday morning following the free show for boys at the Fox Theater, which marks the opening of the city-wide celebration of National Boys' Week.

This delegation will pledge the loyalty of all boys to the Government under which they live, explaining to the Commissioner that Saturday, the opening day, is "Loyalty Day" of the celebration. Because of heavy traffic at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, it was decided to abandon the former plan for a parade to the District Building and to send a representative delegation instead.

ALEXANDRIA COUNCIL AGREES TO REZONING

Freight Trucks Are Rerouted and School Report Is Received.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The city council of Alexandria at its weekly meeting granted permission for the erection of a gasoline filling station at the southwest corner of Washington and Franklin streets, by rezoning that section of the street from residential to commercial. This request has been before council periodically for the past three years, and Mayor Ticer and Councilman Lawler have consistently opposed it, the former while still a councilman, during the term of office of Mayor Albert Smoot, and Mr. Lawler as an interested citizen before his election to the council.

Councilman Lawler stated his stand was that the city authorities had employed men to zone the city, with regards to the proper situation of business properties, and also he has for several years opposed the placing of any more filling stations on Washington street, particularly since it has become a part of the Mount Vernon Memorial boulevard. Mayor Ticer spoke along the same lines.

Councilmen Barley, King, Dwyer, Cooper and Davison voted for the rezoning, and Mayor Ticer, Councilman Lawler, Herbert and Garrett against.

B. B. Ezrine, the owner of the property, stated he will present a properly filled in petition for the erection of a gasoline filling station, with blue print attached, at the next meeting of council.

Freight Trucks Rerouted.

A proposed ordinance to reroute freight auto trucks through the city was passed, allowing northbound trucks to operate on Patrick street to Duke, west on Duke to Henry, north on Henry to Cameron, east on Cameron to Patrick, where they will take up the present northbound truck route. A maximum fine of $300 or 90 days is provided for violations, and copies of the new ordinance will be sent to all available truck owners and additional signs will be placed directing truck drivers over the new route. This ordinance becomes operative ten days after date of publication. This does not apply to local trucks making deliveries in the city.

Dan S. Hollenga, business manager, and J. William May, president of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce, appeared before council to present a resolution adopted at a recent meeting of the chamber, urging the city council acquire the right of way of the old Alexandria-Washington and Mount Vernon Electric Railway, from King street to Four Mile Run, and convert same into a driveway for property owners adjacent thereto.

R. L. May, owner of this right of way, recently presented a proposal to council to turn over to the city this roadway in lieu of paying for the removal of the old car tracks from King street. The removal of the tracks would necessitate repaving King street.

School Finances Reported.

Attention was called to the fact that should this roadway be closed up many houses will be practically "bottled" up without proper outlet to a driveway.

Mayor Ticer stated this matter is now under consideration of a committee from council.

The city school board presented a financial report for the period from July 1, 1932, to March 1, 1933, and copies of it will be made and furnished each member of council for study, as many items are not clear upon a cursory reading, but require close study.

The report of the jail commissioners was received and accepted.

Councilman Barley urged that steps be taken to see that all persons owning automobiles pay their personal property taxes before they can purchase an automobile license.

Compensation for Injuries.

A recommendation was received from the city manager that the rental on the Community Building in Potomac be reduced from $5 to $4 per night, this amount to include heat, light and janitor service, and this was adopted. Several organizations using the hall constantly had asked for a reduction in rent.

Attorney Charles Henry Smith appeared in behalf of Lester Myers, who is seeking additional compensation for injuries received while fighting a fire, and asked council to defer action, which request was granted.

The city manager and city engineer were instructed to investigate the need of a sanitary sewer on Russell road, near Mount Ida, and report to the next meeting of council as to the conditions and probable cost.

City Attorney Budwesky requested for Mrs. Ben B. Cain, chairman for the local chapter of the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, permission to have members of the Alexandria and Washington branches solicit memberships on the street Saturday, Monday and Tuesday next. This permission was granted.

Elks' Request Granted.

Attorney Gardner L. Boothe submitted a petition to council to make some adjustment on taxes for the Mount Vernon and Marshall Hall Steamboat Co. for the years 1931 and 1932. This matter was referred to the city attorney to render a decision as to an equitable adjustment, and report his decision at the next meeting of council.

The city manager and city engineer were instructed to investigate a condition at the Mount Vernon School annex, reported by Gilbert J. Cox, jr., clerk to the Alexandria School Board, and report to council their findings and recommendations as to the best way to correct same, also estimated cost.

The application of Alexandria Lodge, No. 758, B. P. O. Elks, through the Exalted Ruler John W. Brookfield, for permission to conduct a show in Baggett's Field, upper King street, May 1 to 6, was granted.

The city manager reported the cost of a sewer on Overlook place, George Washington Park, would be $600, and the appropriation was voted.

$5,000 FIRE DAMAGE AT HISTORIC HOTEL

Carroll Springs Inn, Near Silver Spring, Burns Several Hours.

Fire yesterday caused damage of approximately $5,000 to historic old Carroll Springs Inn, near Silver Spring, Md. Fire apparatus from Silver Spring, Kensington and Takoma Park battled with the flames for several hours before getting the fire under control, while nearly 500 spectators looked on. Defective wiring was blamed.

The inn, formerly a sanitarium, had been remodeled in preparation for opening as a hotel and the fire was discovered on the second floor by painters who were putting on the finishing touches. The fire ate its way through the cupola and the third floor and was spreading along the roof when firemen chopped away a section of roof to stop its advance.

Clifford Beall, assistant fire chief of the Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department, had a narrow escape when the roof section he was crossing to get to Chief Charles Deffinbaugh caved in. A partition held the roof long enough for him to jump to safety.

The firemen pumped water from as far away as 1,000 feet in five streams. The inn is operated by Mrs. James H. Henderson, manager of the Southern Club in Washington, and is leased from the owner, Mrs. C. W. Wright.

Voters of Takoma Park Eagerly Await Election

Indicative of heated interest in the town election to be held Monday, residents of Takoma Park, Md., yesterday and Tuesday registered almost 100 per cent in the town registration held at the firehouse. The registrars placed the names of 1,690 persons on the town's registration books.

H. H. Cobban yesterday withdrew from the campaign for a place on the town council for a two-year term. He said he had intended running for the one-year term and did not want to run against Councilman John R. Adams, who is campaigning for re-election.

BOULEVARD OPENING IS PROBABLE TODAY

Woodside Road Action Is to Depend on Completion of Topping Work.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 8706 Georgia Ave., Silver Spring, Md. Telephone Shepherd 2363.

Opening of Columbia boulevard to Second avenue in Woodside, to connect with the extension at Sixteenth street and the East-West highway, is expected to be possible today, according to Lacy Shaw, president of the Montgomery County Commissioners. The road will be opened to traffic if the top seal is finished today. Otherwise it probably will not be opened until tomorrow.

The boulevard connects Georgia avenue at Montgomery Hills and Forest Glen road to the East-West highway. The connecting link has been built from First avenue, near G street in, and crosses F street and intersects with Second avenue at E street in Woodside, Md. It provides outlet for the Montgomery Hills, North Woodside and Woodside residents to Sixteenth street, without he necessity of using the heavily traveled Georgia avenue.

Eventually it will connect with Dale drive, which will begin at Georgia avenue and Columbia boulevard and pass the proposed new Eastern, Suburban High School, which is expected to be started this summer, and through to Blair road.

The road was built by hand labor in order to keep county road men working through the winter and has been worked on practically every good day this winter. It also completes a campaign pledge of Lacy Shaw and the county Democratic administration, that the outlet would be provided for the residents of the Woodside area as soon as possible. The road was included in the May 1931 road building program, which was approved by the county commissioners. Plans for the road and supervision of the construction was in the hands of Harry B. Shaw, county engineer.

Marylander Sentenced to 15 Months for Kicking Woman in Face.

Arraigned in the Hyattsville Police Court yesterday on a warrant charging him with kicking Mary Allen in the face, Richard Gaines, of Hyattsville, was convicted and sentenced to fifteen months in jail. The assault occurred in Edmonston, Md.

In another case, heard before Judge J. Chew Sheriff, of the police circuit court, Clarence W. Gibbs, of Baltimore, pleaded guilty to the charges of illegal possession of 85 gallons of alcohol, no registration card and speeding through Hyattsville. He was remanded to jail in default of the payment of $102 in fines.

The case of Charles Gibbs, of Atlantic City, brother of Clarence Gibbs, who was also charged with illegal possession, was dismissed.

HYATTSVILLE FIGHT TURNS TO FINANCES

Willis Administration Called Extravagant; His Faction to Answer Today.

The Hyattsville, Md., mayoralty fight quieted down on the fire department front yesterday, but opened up in a new sector when an attack developed on the fiscal affairs of the town under the administration of former Mayor H. T. Willis. Today Dr. Willis' supporters will issue a counter statement, assailing the financial methods of the present administration.

The administration, whose ticket is headed by Caesar L. Aiello, issued two statements yesterday. One of them, signed by Mr. Aiello set forth the platform of his party. He pointed out possible tax reductions and pledged support to the public library. He also promised the continuation of all-night street lighting and said that a reduction in electric rates would reduce this cost next year by about $600. He promised that the trash and garbage collection would be continued, and that parks and playgrounds would be developed. The program of street repairs also will be continued, he said.

The other statement was signed by C. D. Anderson, chairman of the finance committee of the council and a candidate for reelection to the council. This broadside charged that Dr. Willis' administration, which ended in 1931, cost the town $18,000 more than any previous regime. When the present administration came in, it immediately reduced the tax rate from 70 to 55 cents on $100. In two years, the statement goes on, the present administration spent $5,000 less than was spent under Dr. Willis' administration.

The statement to be issued today will go out over the signature of E. B. Hilley, former councilman and chairman of the citizens and taxpayers committee. It will charge that the present administration spent $12,663 more than it took in during the fiscal year ended April 8, 1933. It also points out that during 1931, when Dr. Willis was mayor, the town's surplus was $13,377, but that for the last fiscal year it was only $3,772.

The statement to be issued today will also point out that if the town government is to be operated at this rate, the tax rate will have to be raised to 80 cents on $100. It also charges that Mr. Aiello, who is now town attorney, not only received a salary of $240 last year, but in addition received about $300 more for preparing town ordinances.

OFFICIALS INSPECT PROGRESS IN PARKS

Engineer Root Instructed to Prepare Estimates of Recreation Costs.

Preparatory to launching a program of recreation facilities construction in the Montgomery County parks, members of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission have made an inspection of the Sligo and Rock Creek Parks.

Chief Engineer Irving C. Root has been instructed to prepare estimates for the proposed recreational facilities which will include picnic groves with fireplaces, tennis courts, baseball diamonds and other sports grounds. He will endeavor to have the program ready for submission at next week's meeting of the commission.

It is probable that the program will be discussed at the meeting of the commission tonight in the Tower Building as well as continuance of the clearance work in Rock Creek, where part of the creek now is free of snags and obstructions but where a large section still requires intensive work to save the District Rock Creek from debris when the spring freshets start.

The work on the creek has been done with unemployed men certified by the Montgomery County Social Service League and has cost about $350 a week. Use of unemployed men serves a double purpose. It enables the commission to clear the parks and creeks at a cost much less than day labor would cost ordinarily and which it would be unable to pay for at present and also provides work for needy family men.

The members of the commission, George P. Hoover and James Herbert Cissel, were accompanied on their tour of inspection by Chief Engineer Irving C. Root, Curtis Walker, land purchasing agent, and William R. Hall, landscape architect.

CHAMBER TO BATTLE FOR SPAN APPROACH

County-Wide Campaign to Be Put Under Way in Arlington.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Determined to throw its united strength behind a movement advocating construction by the county of an adequate approach to the Arlington Memorial Bridge, the board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce last night voted to inaugurate a county-wide campaign to that end.

As set forth by many of the members, it was the view that nothing can be accomplished relative to the extension of the Lee boulevard until the General Assembly meets next January, and even at that time, should legislation be enacted whereby the State highway department can proceed with the construction of the boulevard, it will still have to be resurfaced before being fit for travel. With the extension of the boulevard to the bridge, members claim it will be of no great advantage to the traveling public of Arlington County.

The board further claims that many promises have been made by the county officials that efforts were being made to provide an adequate approach to the bridge, but the time for promises has long since passed and action is now demanded.

The plan of the campaign as set forth by President Walter U. Varney, which has been placed in the hands of a special committee headed by Monroe H. Stockett and J. A. Deuterman, provides for stickers to be placed on all automobiles reading "We Want an Adequate Approach to the Memorial Bridge."

ANOTHER MORATORIUM?

Prime Minister MacDonald is on his way back to London after his momentous conferences with President Roosevelt. The public is not favored with specific information as to the understandings arrived at, particularly as to the war debts, but there can be no doubt that Mr. MacDonald does not return empty-handed. Indeed, it is already intimated that Congress will be asked to consent to a moratorium on war debt payments until after the world economic conference. From Paris comes the statement that if President Roosevelt offers such a moratorium Premier Daladier will ask Parliament to approve payment of the $19,000,000 war debt installment which was due last December.

Evidently all the debtors hope for a moratorium which will enable them to avoid payment of the installments due on June 15. They seem to believe that Americans have such faith in the successful outcome of the economic conference that they will be glad to waive debt payments temporarily. The debtors offer the vague and extremely uncertain outcome of the world conference in exchange for a solid and tangible concession by the United States. Americans apparently are to be asked to pay Great Britain $75,000,000 and France $40,000,000 for participating in a conference whose chief purpose, so far as the debtors are concerned, is to bring about complete cancellation of the debts.

The objectives of the proposed conference are outlined to the public in very general terms, omitting entirely the real object of the debtors, which is the shifting of the debts to American shoulders. The conference, it is said, is to deal with moderation of trade restrictions, expansion of credit, stimulation of enterprise by governmental expenditures, stabilization of exchange, and improvement of the status of silver. Nothing whatever is said regarding revision of the debts.

Americans are patiently waiting for the foreign debtors to offer something tangible in exchange for revision of the debts. A disarmament agreement, relieving all nations, including the United States, from unnecessary expenditures for maintaining excessive war forces, would be regarded as evidence of good faith. But no such agreement is in sight, although the conversations between the President and M. Herriot may be productive of something practical in that regard.

In the absence of agreement upon armaments, why is it necessary that the United States should waive collection of what is due it on June 15? Why should not the debtors pay their installments, thereby demonstrating that their object in entering the economic conference is genuine mutual co-operation for world betterment?

There is no assurance that the economic conference will result in an agreement among the nations, and still less assurance that any agreement would benefit the United States. The preliminary studies and conferences by experts instructed to prepare the program for the conference has shown that the nations are very far apart. Their interests do not coincide. In order to "moderate" trade restrictions they must exact sacrifices from their own people, which may be impossible to obtain. The fixing of an international basis of exchange is a task so difficult that no sane investor would dare to risk money on its successful issue. Yet apparently Americans are to be asked to wager $117,000,000 that the effort will succeed. No other nation offers to risk anything to insure the success of the conference. On the contrary, the debtors stand to gain, whether the conference succeeds or fails.

Senator Lewis, of Illinois, sounded a warning in the Senate last Saturday that if debt concessions are to be demanded before any trade concessions are given to this country, the plan will not succeed. He predicted that the American people would not consent to a surrender on the debts, and that the usefulness of the conference will be destroyed if the people should suspect that the conference is merely a means of juggling this country out of money borrowed.

Congress in 1931 unanimously adopted a resolution stating that the Hoover moratorium was not to be regarded as a precedent, and that no debt revision negotiations should be begun. But that was in 1931. It may be that the people and Congress are now ready to contribute the $10,000,000,000 of war debts to the debtors, without demanding a disarmament agreement or any other concession by foreign nations.

OPPOSED TO MINIMUM WAGES.

Organized labor does not agree with Secretary Perkins that the lot of the workingman would be improved by the fixing of minimum wages. "That would be a dangerous experiment," William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, told the House labor committee. "While it might help some, it would tend to injure the efforts of the great bulk of labor to bring about increased standards of living. It would be a risky adventure. It would tend to drive down the man at the top. It would establish the minimum wage as the maximum wage."

During this period of hard times employers would feel justified in reducing wages to the minimum fixed by the proposed boards. The net result of the 30-hour week under these conditions, Mr. Green admits, would be a further shrinkage in the purchasing power of the workingman. That, of course, is the very opposite of the effect contemplated by the Perkins plan.

Mr. Green is not entirely consistent, however. He shies away from the fixing of wages by boards organized by the Government, but he approves the limitation of industrial operations by the Government. Secretary Perkins has suggested that where industries are operating over excessively long hours she should be authorized to impose restrictions upon them. Labor leaders would be quite content to see over-ambitious industries throttled by bureaucracy, but they don't wish bureaucracy to get control over wages.

The whole scheme of governmental regulation of working hours, wages and competition between plants is obnoxious to the people. If industry should be strangled by red tape issuing from Washington, the loss to the American people would be far greater than any hardships that are now imposed by temporary industrial stagnation. Hours of labor should be adjusted by each industry according to its needs, and not fixed by legislative fiat. Wages should equal the ability of the earner to produce, and should not be pressed down to a minimum arbitrarily fixed by an agency of the Government. The grave danger of fastening the grip of bureaucracy upon American initiative and enterprise should steer Congress away from fantastic legislation of this kind.

CRUMBS FROM OTTAWA.

Prime Minister Bennett, of Canada, is not less welcome in Washington because the problem with which he is chiefly concerned has been overshadowed by issues of more vital importance to the United States. The friendship between the United States and Canada is recognized the world over. Mr. Bennett may be assured that the American people are as anxious as he is to preserve cordial and mutually beneficial relations between the two countries.

It is significant to note, however, that on most occasions when relations between the United States and Canada have been strained, attempts at economic bargaining have been the cause. Efforts to let down tariff bars on both sides of the Canadian border have been peculiarly unsuccessful. The last attempt failed in 1911 when Canada rejected a reciprocal treaty that had been negotiated at Washington. On previous occasions the United States had upset one reciprocal agreement and had refused to ratify others, much to the displeasure of Canada.

Now it appears that Canada has given most of her trade favors to Great Britain, and Mr. Bennett is able to bring to Washington only the crumbs from the Ottawa conference table. Canada would like to have the United States buy her lumber, cattle, fish, copper and farm products on a free-trade basis, or on a basis as near to free trade as possible. But what does she have to offer in return? Aside from the inability of Canada to make any concessions that look attractive to the United States, Congress must recognize the welfare of the farmer, the lumber man, the copper miner, the fisherman and live stock interests in the United States. All of these groups are dependent upon a protective tariff against Canadian products. The commodities in question are produced in abundance in the United States. It would be absurd for this country to begin purchasing abroad commodities of which it has a surplus at home.

Canada imports a large volume of American goods, for the most part manufactures. That country sells to the United States a large volume of pulp wood, newsprint and similar items of a non-competitive nature. Canada also takes in many millions of dollars from American tourist trade. The two neighbors can engage in mutually profitable transactions without trying to encroach upon the domestic markets that each wishes to preserve for its own producers. Prime Minister Bennett will doubtless find that the field for economic concessions is so extremely limited that it may not be worthy of further consideration.

INFLATION AND THE BONUS.

Revival of the bonus issue is a natural result of the inflation measure with which Congress is struggling. The bonusites were the original inflationists, so far as the present emergency is concerned. A year ago they were demanding that the Government print money to pay the bonus, expand the currency and start the Nation on the way to prosperity. The House of Representatives accepted their program, but it was emphatically defeated in the Senate. Now, when the Senate is rushing headlong into depreciation of the currency, the bonusites think they see a great opportunity to win their case.

If the Government is going to raise billions of dollars to aid the farmer, the home owner, the unemployed and the railroads, and if Congress is going to cheapen the dollar in a frantic effort to create more money and send commodity prices upward, why shouldn't it raise a few billions more and pay the bonus? That is the reasoning behind the present drive. The bonus advocates also count upon an appeal to Congress to help the veterans, who are to suffer from reductions in the economy act.

If Congress is going to issue greenbacks to enable corporations to pay their debts, why should it not issue greenbacks to pay the veterans their bonus? It is difficult to refuse the bonus, if there is to be an ocean of cheap money for everybody.

When it comes to inflation, the House has a little bonus scheme of its own which it offered to the Senate nearly a year ago.

LIGHTNING

By HOWARD S. WARREN, in Bell Telephone Quarterly.

Because of its magnificence and grandeur, lightning with its sudden and uncontrollable outbursts of power has always been an object of admiration as well as awe. No wonder that in the ancient days, when the gods were associated with visible objects such as land, sea, trees and the heavenly bodies, lightning was supposed to be the special weapon of mighty Jove himself. Even up to modern times, lightning was widely regarded as a sign of divine displeasure and attempts to escape its baneful effects were decreed sacrilegious.

While lightning is no longer regarded as anything but a natural phenomenon governed by the immutable laws of physics, still because it is mysterious in character and unique in aspect while yet directly related to our daily life, lightning is a subject of widespread interest and even curiosity.

Lightning occurs all over the world, both on land and sea, but its distribution is very nonuniform. In the United States some regions have a hundred times as many thunderstorms as others, the area of most frequent occurrence centering around northwestern Florida where there are on the average about 90 thunderstorms per year. Severe lightning is also experienced in the northern New Mexico and southern Colorado area, where the average number of thunderstorms per year is about 70. In the vicinity of New York City the yearly average is about 30, while around San Francisco it is only 1. Lightning is much more severe in some thunderstorms than in others, but nothing indicates that on the average the storms occurring in different localities differ much in severity.

If Benjamin Franklin had never done anything else, he would have immortalized his name by his famous kite experiment of July 4, 1752, by which he showed that lightning is electrical in character. At that time electricity was known only in its static form, it being 44 years later when electric current was first produced from batteries and 79 years later when the principles underlying the production of currents from inductive mechanisms were experimentally demonstrated.

During its brief duration, a lightning stroke develops enormous power. The potential of a typical stroke may be 100,000,000 volts and the current 200,000 amperes, corresponding to perhaps 20,000,000,000 horsepower. If the duration of the surge is 50 microseconds this would mean some 200 kwh. of energy. These figures are very rough and intended merely to indicate the order of magnitude. Fortunately an object struck by lightning receives only a small percentage of the total energy of the stroke, most of the energy being dissipated in other parts of the lightning path.

The area affected by a single lightning stroke, or by a single ramification in case of a branched stroke, is not large. Inductive effects at distances of 100 feet or more from the lightning channel are seldom severe enough to cause damage. Sometimes however, over ledgy or other high resistance formations, lightning will plow along the surface of the ground for a considerable distance before the charges are dissipated.

The Jail Breaker.

POST HASTE.

Well, didn't the Senate majority announce that it would keep an open mind for three days and then vote for inflation?

The inflation bill, in its least objectionable feature, would provide for an increase of bank credit double the amount available in 1929, so no wonder Wall street is first to prepare.

With due foresight the date of the economic conference is set for June 12, which allows three full days for discussion before the next debt payments.

Incidentally it will be interesting to learn whether Miss Perkins will decide to order individual factories to restrict output on the advice of an army of official snoopers, or depend on complaints from jealous competitors.

Chicago had better fix up her school problem and pay the teachers if she doesn't want all the beneficial advertising of her world's fair nullified.

Mid-week attendance might be increased with promise of fisticuffs on the side, but it is hard enough to keep a quorum on Capitol Hill with the competition of just plain baseball.

Should Griff find he needs an emergency measure, arrangements must be made to liberalize the rules so that cash customers can get into the diamond fights more promptly.

Mr. Douglas will have to keep busy if his evictions make room for 800 boards to regulate the hours of work in as many industries and twice as many boards to fix wages.

You must not be disappointed if there are not more concrete results from the salons of the solons. The official statements make it clear that these conversations are only the start to begin to get ready to commence to prepare for the economic conference.

The most telling argument offered in either house of Congress for inflation was the assurance that there was a majority ready to pass it.

If "Silver Threads Among the Gold" does not displace the new Woodin ditties as the Treasury theme song it won't be Senator Wheeler's fault.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE ROBINS HAVE DIFFICULTIES.

There came a snowfall just the other day
And every robin, summoned by the spring,
Awoke upon a cold and cruel day
To find his food a deeply covered thing.

I know some must have perished with the cold.
Hunger, I'm sure, was every robin's fate.
Spring had a wealth of provender foretold,
Yet gruff old winter lingered over late.

Some kindly people threw out bread and grain,
But for the most was nourishment forbid.
Great must have been the hardship and the pain,
I wonder in those dark days what they did.

Stanch must have been their courage and their will!
Somehow they must have kept their faith in spring,
For just this morning on my window sill
I saw and heard a pair of robins sing.

Even the Deer and Wolf Make Truce When Flood Waters Threaten Both.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

ONE day last year a rural region in the South reported the presence of a wild man.

He appeared at a Negro cabin, making strange sounds and gestures, and refused to leave until threatened with a shotgun. Later he was seen sleeping in a pine wood, from which he fled when the aroused natives approached with weapons. Travelers saw him darting into brush thickets. Officers were called to catch and subdue him.

Of course you have guessed the explanation. He was a harmless Swiss, without knowledge of English, making his way from New York to Florida, where he had a brother. He had stopped at the Negro cabin to ask for a drink of water.

Ignorance made him seem a menace; being threatened, he tried to hide; hiding made him seem more dreadful to the frightened natives.

There is no other cruelty like the cruelty of ignorance.

It makes a robber or a madman of the harmless stranger; it persecutes the scientist who finds truth to replace error; it hangs hysterical girls and witless old women as witches; it ridicules and persecutes and somehow crucifies its saviors.

But all of that, you will say, is a thing of the past. Men are wiser now. They have learned compassion.

That is true in a measure. Men have made progress. But ignorance remains, and where there is ignorance there is cruelty. Those who have no understanding have no mercy

Look about you now and you see a world of cruel contrasts. One half of the world, having more than it needs, uses its advantages to get more; the other half, handicapped by nature or law or custom, struggles in vain to get enough.

Can you imagine a system more cruel? It is ignorance that makes it. Man's inhumanity to man is caused by want of understanding.

When people are shipwrecked together, or beset by flood or famine, they forget self and become noble. The strong care for the weak. All share the good as they share the bad. A common disaster makes them brothers.

Well, is there a greater disaster than the shortness of life and the certainty of death? We are all doomed together—great and small, strong and weak.

The strong can gain much by snatching it from the weak, but to what purpose? Tomorrow or another day he would give it all for another breath. Why struggle so hard for the right to "own" something that others must take in a month or a year when you are dust?

If men could understand the certainty of their doom, they would carry lighter loads to the grave. Jewels can not tempt a thief who is on his way to be hanged.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Calumny as a Privilege.

Minneapolis Journal.

The Constitution throws a mantle of protection about the members of Congress, when it says that they "may not be questioned in any other place for any speech or debate." The origin of this privilege runs back to the days of the English revolution, when the House of Commons was striving to protect its members from arrest by the Stuart king, because of utterances on the floor which he held to be treasonable.

Many an American Senator under this aegis has indulged on the floor in outrageous attacks on political opponents or personal enemies who did not happen to be senators. In no court could the senatorial utterer of libel be questioned. "Senatorial courtesy" usually protected him from being questioned in the Senate. And the Congressional Record helped him circulate the libel far and wide.

Up to the Brewers.

Isle (Minn.) Messenger.

The brewers put themselves in the same class with the distillers when they joined them in fighting against prohibition, and they can prove their reformation, if they have reformed and are ready to be ruled by law, by keeping their business decent. They should refuse to sell beer to any retailer who uses the old saloon methods of urging it upon his customers. Let's see if they want to make their product as decent and wholesome as they say it is. Let's give them all the rope that Congress has given them, and see if they can avoid hanging themselves.

Such as It Is.

Indianapolis Star.

They don't know what becomes of the money, of course, but there is considerable feeling among the plain people that beer costs too much.

Tremendous Powers.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

There is considerable anxiety in many quarters about the tremendous powers which have been asked by the President and which Congress is disposed to grant. Inflation of the currency and reduction of the gold content of the dollar present extremely serious and dangerous problems. The only excuse for the course which is being assumed is that we are confronted with an emergency requiring drastic measures.

A Mixture of Good and Bad.

Minneapolis Journal.

President Roosevelt's somewhat grandiose project for Government development of the Tennessee River Valley will probably be authorized by Congress. The much disputed question of utilizing the Muscle Shoals works is thus to be resolved in favor of Government operation, if Senator Norris' bill goes through. But, in addition, it is the President's idea that the problems of flood control, soil erosion and afforestation for the entire valley are to be solved at the same time.

In this respect the project appeals to the judgment. Conservation experts have long held that the problems of a great river valley could best be solved by treating them as a whole and not in detail. Millions have been poured into flood control projects for the lower Mississippi with poor results, when the real solution lay in treating the river as a single problem. This would mean concentration upon afforestation and water control along the upper reaches of the river and its tributaries. If the waters of the upper Mississippi system were held up for release as needed, there would be fewer and more easily controlled floods in the lower Mississippi.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Disabled Veterans Protest Against Threatened Cancellation of Insurance Policy Contracts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In view of your editorial of April 25 protesting breaking of contracts by the U. S. Government, I think the following letter which was sent by the Disabled American Veterans to the Appropriations Committee yesterday, will be of interest:

"Accompanying estimates for the annual appropriations for the independent offices is a recommendation that whenever it shall appear to the President that the interests of the United States will be best served thereby, he is hereby authorized, in his discretion, to modify or cancel any contract to which the United States is a party, and which was executed prior to the date of this act • • •.

"There are today in force more than 600,000 Government insurance policies held by World War men, upon which a vast amount of premiums have already been paid. In many cases these constitute the only savings of these former service men.

"About a month ago Congress voted sweeping powers to the President on the matter of relief to disabled veterans. As the administration of this new plan has been in effect only a short time, complete reports are not yet in. However, from the information we have already gathered there are unmistakable indications that unbelievable devastation and suffering, affecting hundreds of thousands of men, women and children, are following in the wake of this legislation. Of course, we know that the people and Congress were told that the purpose of this authorization was merely to eliminate payments to persons disabled since the war. But, I am sure it will be interesting to your committee to know that under the new rating table, just issued, our battle casualties—the men actually blasted to pieces by enemy fire—are to average a cut of approximately 50 per cent each.

"It is not my intention at this time to go fully into the wreckage resulting from the act of March 20, but I am merely citing this to show what may be expected if such authority as is proposed in the independent offices appropriation bill is to include insurance policies.

"It is, therefore, most earnestly urged that all Government insurance be specially exempted from this provision to cancel contracts.

"The favor will be appreciated if you will have this letter read before your committee."

Compulsory Retirement Plan Would Cripple Postal Service—Retirement Should Be Optional.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is understood that the President, through the advice of the Director of the Budget, has requested power to retire all Government employes who have as much as 30 years' service to their credit, effective July 1, regardless of their age.

The order, if made into law, would affect the postal service and the public (especially the business world) more than any of the other departments of the Government, as it would retire those who hold supervisory positions, who have been directing the management of the large postoffices and the many details of the service and it would cripple the railway mail service for a year. At the present time while many new postmasters are being appointed, men who have never had any postoffice work, the services of these trained and experienced supervisors will be needed to maintain the kind of service the public demands and is entitled to.

Wouldn't it be better to make this law of retirement optional, or at least exempt those in supervisory positions and let them retire when they desire and not retire all of them at one time? Many of these men are not over 50, who want to continue in the service.

Railroad Safety Contrasted With Automobile Traffic Killings.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There was only one killed for every 101,141,000 passengers carried on this country's steam railroads in 1930. In 1931 the ratio was 1 to 149,807,000.

"Not a single paying passenger was killed on an American steam railroad in the year 1932, a record of safety believed to be unique in railroad history. The one passenger fatality of the year was a railroad employe, off duty, riding 'deadhead.'"

This one "deadhead" passenger killed was out of 480,000,000 passengers carried in 1932, which makes a sad contrast with the thirteen already at this writing killed in automobile accidents in Washington alone in 1933.

With there figures staring us in the face, I think we will have to admit there must be something wrong with automobile driving or traffic regulation, or both. So the question again arises, is the speed too great, or is it lack of hard-boiled law enforcement which is responsible for the frightful total of deaths and cripplings?

Baseball Fan Shocked by Headline Showing Nats Swamped, 16 to 0.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Although I am not what you would call an unduly devout baseball fan, I was somewhat shocked at the headline in The Post, April 26, "Nationals Swamped, 16-0." The "16-to-1" with which Uncle Sam is threatened is bad enough, but "16-to-0" is something else again, as they say. At that rate, it won't take much more to have the die-hard fans talking about a moratorium for the Griffs.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

ALTHOUGH nothing has been made public on the subject, it is learned on excellent authority that the reorganization plan involving radio now before President Roosevelt contemplates the following set-up.

There would be appointed an Assistant Secretary of Commerce. This Assistant Secretary would have under him a communications commission of three members. He would also have under his jurisdiction a transportation commission, likewise in the Department of Commerce, which would take over, among other things, the railroad regulatory functions of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Communications Commission would include the regulation of cable, telephone and telegraph, as well as radio, absorbing those duties of the Interstate Commerce Commission as well as the Federal Radio Commission.

Then there would be a Director of Communications, under the direction of the commission. This director would make decisions, and there would be appeal from his decision to the commission. There would, of course, be the same right to appeal from the decisions of the Communications Commission to the courts as there now is with the Federal Radio Commission.

The Director of Communications would be in charge of the personnel of the commission.

EVEN if President Roosevelt were to appoint members of the present Radio Commission, there would still be quite a casualty list. There are now five Federal Radio Commissioners.

It would seem highly improbable that three of the present five radio commissioners would be appointed to the Communications Commission, inasmuch as there would also have to be representation for telephone, telegraph and cable as well. It is more probable that only one man with radio experience would be appointed. There is also a chance that a radio man might be appointed Assistant Secretary of Commerce, but again it might be some one with special transportation knowledge.

It is assumed, if the new Communications Commission plan is adopted by President Roosevelt, Judge E. O. Sykes, a Democrat, of Mississippi, chairman of the Federal Radio Commission, would be appointed to the new organization.

Also there is some talk that the new set-up may include Gen. Charles McK. Saltzman, U. S. A., retired, former chairman of the Federal Radio Commission. Gen. Saltzman is a member of the committee which framed the new plan. As chief of the Army Signal Corps he became familiar with telegraph, telephone and cable.

Representative Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, will talk about "Juvenile Delinquency" tonight at the Washington Community Forum (WMAL, 9 o'clock). On the George Washington University Forum William Cabell Van Vleck, professor of law, will have as his topic "Some Movements Toward Law Reform" (WMAL, 7:30 p. m.).

JAMES ROOSEVELT will discuss "MacDonald, Herriot — Their Visit and American Prosperity." Mr. Roosevelt, who is the son of the President, will speak over Station WJSV at 8 o'clock tonight.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor of the Chicago Tribune, will be heard through WJSV today at 1:15 p. m., when he is the guest of the New York Advertising Club.

Another adventure into the realms of the unbelievable will be recalled by Jack Pearl, alias the modern Baron Munchausen, when he and his friend Cliff "Sharlie" Hall meet again over WRC at 10 p. m. Paul Whiteman and his orchestra will furnish the musical highlights. The broadcast will come from Dallas, Tex.

The Boswell Sisters will also present their program of harmonies from Dallas over WJSV at 10:30 p. m. eastern standard time. The girls are making a series of one-night stands with Paul Whiteman's Orchestra and Jack Pearl.

William Rhinelander Stewart, jr., scion of one of New York's old families, will talk on "Old New York" this afternoon over WMAL at 3:30 o'clock.

Stewart was on an extensive voyage in tropical waters with Vincent Astor aboard the Astoria, yacht. Mous... [illegible] ...than having...

mahal, on which President Franklin D. Roosevelt took a prelnaugural vacation last February. They brought back many interesting specimens of tropical fish and birds for the New York Aquarium and the Bronx Zoo.

ONE Hour in Vienna, a program made up entirely of the works of Johann Strauss, sr., and his two sons, Johann, jr., who became known as "the waltz king," and Joseph, will be played by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra over WMAL at 11:30 p. m. The orchestra, conducted by Eugene Ormandy, will open the program with the stirring "Radetzky" march by Strauss, sr. A number of familiar waltzes by Johann, jr., will be played, including "Artist's Life," "Tales From the Vienna Woods," "The Emperor" and "The Beautiful Blue Danube." The composition of Joseph Strauss will be the polka-mazurka, "Fraunenherz."

Will Rogers will come to the air for a new series of broadcasts, beginning next Sunday night.

Benny Rubin, comedian and master of ceremonies; Oliver Wakefield, the English chap with the scrambled diction, and Natalie Hall and Tullio Carminati, stars of "Music in the Air," will be among the headliners to be brought to the microphone by Rudy Vallee on the Sunshine Hour at 8 p. m. over WRC.

The dramatic bit will be from the current success "One Sunday Afternoon," with Lloyd Nolan and Francesca Bruning, young players.

A NATION-WIDE celebration of the 142d birthday of Samuel F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph, will be featured by a portrayal of Morse's life in a series of dramatic episodes at 8:15 p. m., over WJSV.

Climaxing the radio production will be the receipt of a message from Mrs. Leila Morse Rummel, 82 years of age and only surviving child of Morse, in Paris. A Western Union transatlantic cable has been extended into the N. Y. studio and will bring to the microphone the sound of the arrival of Mrs. Rummel's message, which will be read by Miss Leila Livingston Morse, granddaughter of the inventor.

When the moment comes for Mrs. Rummel to send her message from Paris, the cable operator at New York will signal: "O. K. Paris." Mrs. Rummel will then tap a key in the Western Union Paris office to start her message to America. The letters of her message will pass through thousands of miles of cable in the valleys and over the hills of the ocean bottom, arriving in a fraction of a second at the studio.

Lyman Beecher Stowe will speak on "Samuel F. B. Morse" over WJSV at 2:45 p. m.

Gov. Talmadge Demands Two Road Chiefs Resign

Atlanta, April 26 (A.P.).—Gov. Talmadge, acting quickly on the reply of two members of the State Highway Board refusing to accept his demands for drastic cuts in personnel and expenditures, today requested the resignations of Chairman J. W. Barnett and W. C. Vereen of the State Highway Board.

Lady Astor Raps Cut in Beer Levy

Drinking Fund Given Call Over Sinking Fund, She Tells Commons.

London, April 26 (A.P.).—Nancy, Lady Astor, although a Conservative in politics and therefore an administration supporter, gave the government a piece of her mind in the House of Commons tonight for presenting what she called "a brewers budget." Referring to the £14,000,000 cut in the beer tax, she said:

"What the government has done is to suspend the sinking fund in order to create a drinking fund."

If the chancellor of the exchequer had wanted to help the nation as a whole, she continued, he should have taken the £14,000,000 and put it into milk, which is a far more important agricultural product than barley.

Bermuda Storm Causes House and Ship Damage

Hamilton, Bermuda, April 26 (A. P.).—A brief but violent hurricane struck Bermuda today, unroofing a few houses and disrupting shipping but causing no great damage and no loss of life.

The yacht Orion, owned by Julius Forstmann, of New York, was swept ashore in Hamilton Harbor. Two liquor carriers were grounded at St. Georges, and harbor ferry services were interrupted for a short time.

40,000 Gallons Petrol Lost as Boats Crash

Philadelphia, April 26 (A.P.).—The maritime exchange reported that 40,000 gallons of gasoline were lost in a collision today between the steamer Fairfield City and the barge Leonard B., in the Delaware River below New Castle, Del.

The barge was bringing about 150,000 gallons of gasoline from Baltimore to the Major Petroleum Co., of Philadelphia. The steamer was bound from Boston. The barge was beached to save it from sinking.

Buenos Aires, April 26 (A.P.).—The body of Perfecto Blanco, a merchant kidnaped April 7, was found buried today under a suburban house. It was reported that he had been killed after the family refused to pay a ransom of 50,000 pesos (almost $3,000). Police said some of the abductors had been arrested.

New Fashions in Charming Knit Wear Discovered by Meanderer.

FEATURES FOR WOMEN

Let Dare Advise You About Buying That Gown for Evening Wear.

The Meanderer

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extention 19; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Finds a Simple Dress That Looks Like a Puzzle; Materials for Summer Sewing.

Jig-saw patterns in knitted wear are one of the newer results of the puzzle craze. Prominent in a display of sportswear for women by an F street haberdashery that is famous for its tailored wear for women is a brown and beige knitted suit in a jig-saw pattern.

Silk jacket suits for summer wear for the low price of $14.75 are featured by an F street department store near Thirteenth street. The quality of the suits is obvious to those who have examined them closely.

A new group of washable cotton jackets—in white and bright colored matelasse—has arrived in one of the smaller F street shops, and sells for $5.95 each. The cut of the jacket is quaintly interesting, most of them showing wide shoulders and full sleeves.

Cross-bar organides made into puff sleeved evening dress cost $15.75 in a small shop on F street. The cross-bars are in large red, blue, green patterns on white or pale colors. Sashes with oversize taffeta bows in the back finish these picturesque frocks.

A counter filled with many colors of organdies—including black and brown and eggshell—is attracting shoppers to a Seventh street store. Four shades of pink, two of yellow, three of green, two colors of blue and three of orchid are in the display—for only 29 cents a yard! About as many colors are in a display in the same store for 39 cents a yard—and the newest of patterned and plaid organdies sell there for only 59 cents. Some of the darker plaids, and dotted patterns, used in the new evening frocks for spring and summer are in the 59-cent group.

"These organdies are the kinds that sold for 85 cents and $1 a yard two or three years ago," the saleswoman in charge told the Meanderer. "We shall have to ask a little more than this sale price after this week."

In still another big department store on Seventh street the Meanderer found dress materials that should be mentioned. They are all silk printed chiffons, featured for 59 cents a yard. Alluring pattern designs from current pattern magazines are featured near the even more alluring materials, so that many shoppers are fashioning their own summer chiffons to the comfort of their pocketbooks.

The Meanderer begs to correct a statement in a recent column about gloves for gardening and housework which she priced at 50 cents a pair in a G street hardware store. The gloves cost 75 cents a pair. Due apologies are offered to readers and the hardware house.

A Style A Day

Something new in evening dresses is a white satin bodice with a black chiffon skirt. It is fashioned by Chanel.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS.

ELECTRICITY IN THE MOUTH.

DR. E. S. LAIN has proved that some kinds of dental "work," to use the vernacular, are responsible for metallic taste, salty taste, too much saliva, various sensations in the mouth, including soreness of the tongue, and different conditions of the mouth, including some ulcers, leucoplakia, galvanic burns, and pigmentation. By dental work he includes plates, crowns, bridges, and fillings.

But not all these are at fault, in the opinion of Dr. Lain and other authorities in America and Europe. The trouble is not the result of poor fitting or poor dental manipulation but of putting in one mouth dental repairs composed of more than one metal.

A mouth may carry a good deal of plate work and have many fillings, but it will not be harmed if they are all made from the same metal. Therefore, the cause is not the use of metals but rather the use of several of them. If there is a gold bridge or band in the upper jaw and amalgam fillings in the lower, galvanic action goes on between the two. One acts as a positive pole, the other as a negative one, and electricity flows through the tissues between them. The metals are broken away from the one pole and carried toward the other. Some are caught in the tissues, causing the symptoms complained of.

The greater the difference between the elements in their galvanic ratings the greater the amount of electricity set up. Dr. Lain rates 29 metals in relation to their distance from the positive pole and toward the negative. Of those of more or less use in metallic dental work the rating is as follows.

Aluminum	10th
Manganese	11th
Tin	12th
Nickel	17th
Zinc	18th
Copper	21st
Mercury	25th
Silver	26th
Platinum	28th
Gold	29th

If one piece of work were made of aluminum and another of gold, the galvanic action and ionization would be at a maximum. If, on the other hand, the work on the upper teeth was gold and that on the lower silver there would be a minimum amount of galvanic action.

Rarely are pure metals used and, in consequence, there is some galvanic action in the given piece of work. Amalgams often contain 67 per cent mercury, 29 per cent tin, 3.5 per cent copper, and 0.5 per cent zinc. Gold crowns and bridges contain 75 to 91 per cent gold and 8 to 15 per cent copper, and some silver and nickel.

The amount of electricity generated in the mouth by work composed of different metals can be measured. The metal deposited in the tissues can be demonstrated. The electric action is increased by the use of tobacco, sour foods, bacteria, and decaying food remnants.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Two lovely midsummer evening dance frocks of organdy. (Dah-ray designs.)

IT has been ages since the first lovely lady who had to make one evening dress do for years decided on black—or white. The decision in favor of these colors was because of their durability. A black evening gown was supposed to defy detection as the same gown after the twentieth wearing—and white was supposed to lend itself to a couple of dyeings.

And don't let me dissuade you! These are facts about black and white, but facts that can not bear too much strain. The strain on the idea that a black evening dress defies detection is that it does not defy detection entirely. The further strain is that a black evening dress to be beautifully elegant must start out by costing three times what a more simple dress does—and also, it must be the last word in style. Something which robs it of the possibility of remaining chic for years, you see. And in the meantime its original cost might be spread thinly over two or three or even four evening gowns, each one more newly stylish.

As to white—the white evening gown can be worn a few times, and often can not even be cleaned once successfully without being yellowed. Then the first dyeing takes a certain amount of the life out of the fabric, actually—although it does not in any way ruin the dress, you know. After taking the life out of the fabric once, though, a second dyeing practically finishes it. Then the dress is no longer a really desirable and lovely thing. So Miladi doesn't feel so happy in it, and that is desirable and important.

What then? I am only telling you that you should give considerable thought to your decision for a white or black evening gown if you are exceedingly limited in your choice . . . because these colors aren't just all they are supposed to be in the way of red-hot economy.

* * * *

Now, you tell me what you would call the very shapely and colorful hand-knitted, detachable, big-like front which has just been designed for sports wear? That's just how hard it is to name all the different and offerable things that are so much the mode! We made you the sketch and directions for making yourself a number of these, but we have been trying ever since to find a title for the leaflet which would not be misleading. We'll just have to call it a leaflet on jackets, even though some of the so-called jackets are a thing made out of about a quarter of a yard of material. Anyhow, a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Washington Post will bring the leaflet to you, and you can see for yourself how many of these, whatever they are, you want to make for yourself.

* * * *

And then all the summer dresses of the summer midnight moon type seem suddenly to just be all wrong. Or maybe it was just the last gap of a love affair—well, anyway, they all had to be given away (to sister Dionne, of course), and a whole lot of new ones had to be made before anything would induce me to board that boat! Well, anyhow, I have not boarded the boat yet, but the dresses are made, and I simply couldn't resist sketching a couple of them for you today. They are both in organdy and the one with the three-tiered skirt is rather pale in color. The other is in yellow, and found itself all tucked up—or down rather. And the armholes outlined in my favorite four-cornered "foufs" are going to win me at least a first officer.

Au revoir.

Culbertson on Bridge

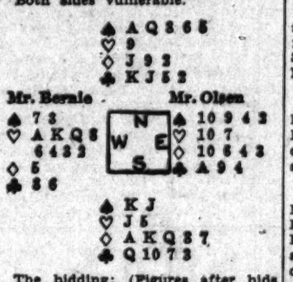
THE ARTISTIC PLAY.

ORCHESTRA leaders have never been especially known as Bridge players. Actually, however, a great many of these leading musicians are tremendously interested in the game and are always willing to avail themselves of the opportunity to play.

Two of the most prominent of these are Mr. Ben Bernie and Mr. George Olsen. Although their opportunities for indulging in the game are quite limited, this can hardly be said to reflect on their skill. In a game played in a New York club this pair cut against two of the leading younger players, whose names I will not mention. Mr. Bernie sat West on the hand below, and Mr. Olsen, East.

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding: (Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

North	East	South	West
Pass (1)	Pass	1◇ (2)	1NT (3)
2♠ (4)	Pass	Pass (5)	3♡ (6)
Pass (7)	Pass	Dbl. (8)	Pass
Pass	Pass (9)

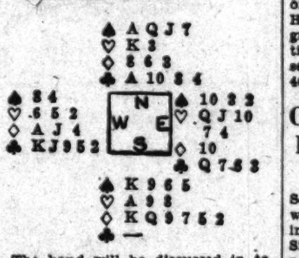
1—A one-spade bid could not be criticized in this position, and with this bid the result for North and South would probably have been more favorable.
2—A sound Third Hand bid.
3—An inhibitory notrump Overcall. Mr. Bernie evidently felt that North and South could make a game, and did his best to confuse the situation. This was his first psychic of the evening, and for this reason caught his opponents unprepared.
4—Obviously the logical bid.
5—South holds a slight Redbl, but prefers not to take the chance of getting the bidding too high.
6—Finally showing his own suit.
7—Leaving the final decision to partner.
8—This bid is not as bad as it looks. North has made a free bid of two spades and has failed to show support in diamonds. Also, Mr. Bernie's notrump bid has confused the situation and it looks very much as though he is out on a limb.
9—Mr. Olsen could have made matters very much worse by attempting some sort of a rescue at this point. If Mr. Bernie had held only a four-card heart suit, the three-heart contract would have been worse than three notrump. Mr. Olsen, however, decided that his partner was up to something, and passed.

Obviously 9 tricks must be taken by East and West. The contract was made due to the fact that West held an eight-card heart suit, which he managed to disguise very completely in the bidding.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

How should North and South bid the hands below, and what should be the final contract?

West, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

A New Yorker at Large

By MARK BARRON.

NEW YORK—A motorcycle cop sped into action early the other morning when he saw a car driving down the wrong side of the street. As he motioned the car over to the curb, he noticed that the driver was one of our better known novelists.

"Just what are you doing on this side of the street?" asked the cop.

"I was passing another car," quickly alibied the bookish chap.

"Where's the other car?" went on the officer.

Looking around, the novelist observed that there wasn't a single other car in sight.

"Well," he confessed, "you've got me there."

"Then keep on the right side of the street," warned the cop as he motioned him on. "You can't drive a car and wool gather at the same time."

Wealth and Show People.

It is one of the favorite axioms of the bangtail fraternity that "all hoss players must die broke," and the same is almost equally true of the theatrical profession. But many show people do leave considerable fortunes as may be observed in the new edition of John Parker's "Who's Who in the Theater."

P. T. Barnum left the largest sum—$5,000,000. Avery Hopwood had amassed a million dollars when he drowned off the coast of France. Anna Pavlowa, dancer, left a half million, while Dame Nellie Melba's fortune was approximately $350,000.

One of the exciting impromptu shows which New York offers almost weekly happens in that West Forty-seventh street block just off Fifth avenue when a burglar alarm is sounded. In this block are crowded the offices of many diamond merchants and every one of them is wired up to shrieking sirens in case of an attempted hold-up.

The alarms are sounded often, too, because these dealers in precious stones are a nervous lot and they'd rather sound a false alarm than take a chance with a suspicious character.

I was passing through there the other morning when one of the alarms sounded. Within 40 seconds there were six uniformed policemen and eight plain clothes detectives on the spot. It is probably the most heavily policed block on Manhattan.

Free Meals.

Chorus girls never object to playing in benefit shows. Free buffet suppers are always served back-stage at the benefits, and a gratis meal comes in mighty handy to these girls who rarely earn more than $35 a week nowadays, and not too many weeks at that.

Tallulah Bankhead accentuates her exotic beauty by wearing frocks of very simple designs.

What Today Means

"TAURUS."

IF April 27 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 a. m. to 10:50 a. m., from 7:30 p. m., to 8:45 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 10:55 p. m. The danger periods are from 11:15 a. m. to 12:20 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m.

It is probable that you will feel oppressed and shut in on this day. Forces operating will be of a stifling nature and you will find it a struggle to accomplish whatever you succeed in doing. Social gatherings will not radiate with good humor and geniality. Children, however, will be in gay spirits and up to much mischief.

The child born on this April 27 will show himself in every way to be a real little man or woman, as the case may be. You will find these little ones ever on the go and invariably doing something of a constructive or helpful nature. At school you can expect these little ones to do well in their studies and to take part in various activities.

If April 27 is the date of your birth, you are quite likely a person who will derive little pleasure or benefit from other people. Yours is a solitary nature and it is probable that you will lead a rather lonely and isolated life, from choice, and not from necessity. You are the sort of person who likes to delve painstakingly into the intricacies of this or that problem, be it one of physics, of religion or of social welfare. It would not be surprising to find you the discoverer of some great truth of science, or in the field of medicine. You are sober and industrious, a hard and plodding worker and surely you will reach your goal.

Born on April 27 you are probably lacking a sense of humor and for this reason life will at times be very difficult for you. You will quite possibly suffer considerable hardship during the middle years of your life, probably from financial reverses, though quite possibly due to your health. In time, these should be overcome and you will go on to a ripe old age of good health and ample prosperity. You may or may not marry, but if you do, it should be someone with a compromising nature.

Successful people born on April 27:

Samuel F. B. Morse, inventor.

Amasa Stone, financier and philanthropist.

Ulysses S. Grant, eighteenth President of the United States.

Charles J. Van der Poele, inventor.

Alice Morse Earle, author.

Victor Harris, composer and conductor.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE

BERTRAND RUSSELL tells of a boy who, on being spoken to for hitting children much smaller than himself answered: "The bigs hit me, so I hit the babies; that's fair."

"In these words," says Mr. Russell, "he epitomized the history of the human race."

Always the individual who is ill treated tends to get even as he can by giving the same sort of treatment to those weaker than himself. This is as true among children as it is among adults.

The boy who is bullied by the big boys of the neighborhood revenges himself on his little brothers and sisters at home.

The child who is beaten for punishment beats smaller children and animals in turn. It appears an inevitable reaction to what he has endured.

There is no use in pointing out to the child how mean he is to do such things, for he is under the stress of an emotion which hardly permits him to think or to do other than vent his injured feelings upon other creatures.

Since in childhood no code of ethics will stand up under strain, the only way to meet this problem is to see to it that the child is not bullied and brutalized.

Where the neighborhood happens to abound in big mean-spirited older children, the young child can be kept in his own yard with a few suitable invited playmates or go in turn to visit with them.

Kindergarten and afternoon play groups for the school child are a great help, since they permit free play under the proper kind of direction.

Hudson Threatens New Power Marks

Terraplanes Seeking More Tests After Townhill Records Fall.

With a total of 30 new records already claimed to its credit, the Hudson Motor Car Co. is continuing its attack on other stock car records of the American Automobile Association with its Essex Terraplane cars.

Last week the cars smashed the records on Townhill Mountain of Cumberland, Md., and Avalon and Quaker Hills near Baltimore, Md. The official A. A. A. Townhill Mountain record was 1 minute 52.4 seconds. The Terraplane six made the climb in 1 minute 43.54 seconds, and a Terraplane eight took the grade in 1 minute 30.53 seconds.

The record of Avalon Hill, 23 seconds, was lowered to 22.8 seconds by the Terraplane six and the Terraplane eight dropped the record to 22.1 seconds. The official time on Quaker Hill was 55.2 seconds for the 7-mile grade with three bad turns. The time for the Terraplane six was 48.8 seconds and for the Terraplane eight, 46 seconds flat.

Randolph Favors Political Recess

Speaker Urges Unity Until Nation Has Recovered From Depression.

Disregard of all political affiliations until the dawn of national business recovery was urged by Representative Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia, at the annual "ladies' night" meeting of the Washington Lions Club in the Hotel Mayflower last night.

"Now is the time to wipe away thoughts of party until the restoration plans can be carefully planned and put into execution," he said. "For the first time in many years, Wall street does not dictate to both ends of Pennsylvania avenue. There is now too much talk of gold and too little attention to the golden rule."

W. C. Miller presided as toastmaster following an address of welcome by L. W. DeGast, the president. Members on the entertainment program included John Mitchell, Dr. Guy Leadbetter, Randolph Myers, Sam Holland and Charles H. Hillegeist. Dancing followed the dinner.

Stocks Continue Advances As Undertone Turns Firm

Cheerful Trade News Aids Rise; Sales Drop to 2,914,890 Shares.

New York, April 26 (A.P.).—Cross-currents rippled over the stock market today, but closing prices provided a balance of net gains that reflected the firm undertone which has supported leaders on recent reactions.

Strength of dollar exchange suggested a more conservative view of inflationary prospects for this country, though it was probably also a result of the reported cooperative effort between France and England to protect themselves against the decline of our money. Trading in most markets returned to more normal volume and turnover in stocks was reduced to 2,914,890 shares.

Business news was cheerful. It included announcement of another upturn for the steel industry and higher electric power production, as well as word that March bookings of one of the electrical equipment companies had been the largest in several months. Rail stocks, whose afternoon rise helped pull up sagging industrials, could scarcely take much comfort from March operating figures, but loadings appear to be holding up and Wall street's interest is in prospects rather than history.

Utilities, particularly communication issues, tended to move forward. American Telephone gained 2 points and, though its rise was lost, International Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey and American Water Works had better net results. U. S. Steel moved narrowly and closed unchanged while the preferred rose a major fraction. Union Carbide, Case, Harvester, Montgomery Ward, National Steel, Bethlehem, Borden, Beech-Nut, Anaconda, International Nickel, American Smelting, Aviation Corporation, Safeway Stores and National Biscuit improved fractions to about 2 points. Tobaccos rallied, American Tobacco "B" advancing 2⅜ net. In rails, Southern Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Louisville & Nashville, Reading, Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio and Union Pacific were up 1 to nearly 3. Allied Chemical was heavy.

Some brokerage houses commented on the current trade news, suggesting that it undoubtedly was exerting a distinct market influence at a time when the effects of inflation talk appeared to be waning. Wall street has long been looking for a sound basis on which stocks might advance; such a foundation appeared to be in the making last summer and fall, but, as is well remembered, it crumbled rapidly when bank troubles became so pressing.

Five-Tenths Gain Is Added as Turnover Climbs to $14,978,000.

New York, April 26 (A.P.).—Corporation bonds today responded smartly to reports of business improvement throughout the country, increased steel production and electric power output and an apparent betterment of sentiment generally.

The average for 60 dometsic corporate bonds advanced half a point, its seventh consecutive gain. Sales totaled $14,978,000, par value.

Only United States Government securities, uncertain regarding future financing plans of the Treasury, eased moderately. With the exception of Liberty fourth 4¼s, trading in this section was somewhat inactive. Losses ranged from one thirty-second to fourteen thirty-seconds of a point.

Utilities were strong most of the day and the rails joined the upturn in late transactions. A number of industrial specialties were also in demand at substantial advances.

The most active gainers of 1 to 4 or more points included some issues of American & Foreign Power, American Metal, American Telephone, Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Boston & Maine, Chesapeake Corporation, St. Paul, Rock Island, Cincinnati Union Terminal, Chile Copper, Consolidated Gas, Columbia Gas, Denver & Rio Grande, Dodge Bros., Great Northern, Illinois Central, Interlake Iron, International Cement, International Telephone, Louisville & Nashville, National Diary, National Steel, New York Central, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Philadelphia Reading Coal & Iron, Postal Telegraph, Portland General Electric, Shell Union Oil, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, U. S. Rubber, Wabash, Western Electric and Western Union.

Foreign obligations were mixed. Loans of Cuba, Denmark and Japan rallied 1 to 2 points, but French, Belgian, German and Argentine bonds were heavy. British 5½s eased after early firmness, and United Kingdom 4s lost 2⅛ points.

WHEAT VALUES RISE ON BETTER DEMAND

U. S. Accord With Britain Aids Upturn; Corn Records Drop.

Chicago, April 26 (A.P.).—Surprising power to rally developed in wheat prices today, and the market rose 2⅜ cents a bushel maximum, as compared with early bottom figures.

One of the quickest jumps of wheat values came in the late trading, and by some observers was associated with enlarged speculative demand apparently owing to reports of agreements between the United States and Great Britain looking to world economic recovery. Earlier, the market had fluctuated rapidly, averaging higher, largely on prospective prompt senatorial approval of inflation.

Wheat closed unsettled, fractionally below the day's top, but ⅞ to ⅞ above yesterday's finish; corn, ⅛ to ⅜ off; oats, unchanged to ⅜ higher, and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to 20 cents advance.

Opinion of Traders.

Many professional traders apparently believed that wheat prices had advanced enough to discount enactment of inflation proposals. Such traders sold persistently on all bulges in price today, but the general run of speculative investors differed from this opinion, and were confident buyers, especially on market setbacks. Strength of securities at New York operated also as a notable uplifting factor in the wheat market toward the close.

Tending further to promote rallying power of wheat were reports emphasizing the lateness of seeding in domestic spring wheat territory. Some of the reports said the crop showed two to three weeks' delay, and indicated even greater reduction of spring wheat acreage than was suggested by the latest official advices on farmers' intentions to plant. Predictions of augmented demand for immediate delivery of domestic wheat to mills were heard, coupled with announcement that the Red Cross had ordered out the last of its wheat.

Corn was bearishly affected at times by selling from Eastern sources. Oats were relatively firm, with an improved demand ascribed chiefly to New England.

Provisions averaged higher with grains.

COTTON PRICES CUT ON SELLING DRIVES

July Closes at 7.60, With Market 1 Point Higher to 4 Lower.

New York, April 26 (A.P.).—Cotton prices fluctuated irregularly today, with final quotations a shade lower.

July closed at 7.60 or about 14 points off from the best of the day, with the general market closing steady net 1 point higher to 4 points lower.

The opening 10 to 12 points lower with May off to 7.32 and October to 7.70 under liquidation, southern and foreign selling promoted by disappointing Liverpool cables and the gain in the dollar as against sterling.

Initial offerings were readily absorbed by trade and commission house buying, and the market firmed up on bullish interpretations of the weekly weather report.

May advanced to 7.57 and October to 7.96, but offerings increased on the rally and closing quotations showed reactions of 10 or 15 points from the best.

Much of the late selling was attributed to a disposition to even up accounts pending further developments in Washington.

30 AMATEUR MUSIC CLUBS ENTER TEST

Loew's Fox Theater Will Be Scene of Festival From May 5 to 11.

Thirty nonprofessional music clubs, composed of adults and juniors in local high schools, colleges, conservatories and business concerns, are announced today by Carter Barron, Loew Theaters manager, as enrolled in the Third Annual Music Week Festival to be held at Loew's Fox Theater during the week May 5 through 11.

The list of entrants, who will participate with 10-minute programs on the Loew's Fox stage along with the theater's regular features, includes a wide representation of the city's music lovers, such as a Russian Chorus, singing exclusively Russian folk songs—the mixed choristers appearing in native costumes—orchestras, bands and glee clubs from colleges and junior and senior high schools, a glee club and a band composed of utilities companies' employes, several church choirs and a symphony orchestra made up of conservatory students.

The Loew's annual festival, one of the city's outstanding features of its National Music Week celebration, is being conducted this year by the Loew management in collaboration with Mrs. Gertrude Lyons, president of the District of Columbia Federation of Music Clubs, who will introduce the participants to their audiences.

Participating Clubs Listed.

The following are serving as judges: For the senior high school and senior choral and instrumental groups—Edward Potter, composer, and the Misses Jessie McBride and Alice Eversman, music critics.

For the junior choral and instrumental groups—Dr. C. Christiani, director of the Institute of Musical Art; Mrs. Fannie Roberts, of the Washington College of Music, and Mrs. Edna Bishop Daniel, vocal instructor.

Participating clubs are as follows:

Senior choral group—American University Girls' and Men's Glee Clubs, the Russian Chorus, Calvary Baptist Sunday school adult chorus, and Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. Men's Glee Club.

Senior instrumental group—Washington Orchestral Society, the Chadwick Orchestra, George Washington University Band and the Washington Gas Light Co. Band.

Senior high school glee clubs—Central High School Boys' Glee Club, the Central Songsters, McKinley High School Boys' Glee Club and Roosevelt High School Boys' Glee Club.

Senior High Schools.

Senior high school grade instrumentalists—McKinley High School Cadet Band, Washington Boys' Independent Band, violin ensemble of the Ralon School of Violin and Roosevelt High School Orchestra.

Junior high school grade glee clubs—Jefferson Junior High Girls Glee Club, Elliott Junior High boys and girls glee clubs, Gordon Junior High girls and boys glee clubs and Foundry M. E. Church Junior Chorus.

Junior high school instrumentalists—Inter-Junion High School Orchestra, Langley Junior High School Band, Gordan Junior High School Orchestra and Harmonica Band, and Stuart Junior High School Orchestra.

Festival entrants not competing for trophies offered by the theater management include: George Washington University Glee, McKinley High School Orchestra and Opera Club, presenting songs from "The Pirates of Penzance," and the Washington Boys Club Harmonica Band.

UNITED ORCHESTRA PRESENTS CONCERT

Program of Latin-American Music Makes Hit With Notable Audience.

The United Service Orchestra presented last evening in the great Hall of the Americas what was probably the finest concert of Latin-American music ever to be offered under the auspices of the Pan-American Union. Played before a distinguished audience of more than 1,200 and conducted jointly by the service orchestra leaders, the program was freely studded with United States premieres and embellished further by the voices of Rodolfo Ducal, Argentine tenor, gayly togged out as a gay gaucho, and Clarita Sanchez, distinguished Mexican soprano, clad in her native costume.

On a program of such well-selected numbers, brilliantly played and sung, it is difficult to single out any one or group of selections for especial mention. Perhaps the honor belongs to Elisabetta M. S. de Pate, who for the presentation of her bolero, "Gypsy," conducted the orchestra, the first woman ever to wield a baton over that distinguished group of 110 musicians picked from the three service orchestras.

Senorita Sanchez Scores.

Senorita Sanchez sang five numbers, of which the colorful "Aleluya" (de Tejada) best displayed her exceptionally fine voice and ability, which has won for her the title of the "foremost exponent of Latin-American song in America."

Of Senor Ducal's four numbers, the premiere of "Estilo Criollo" by the singer's countryman, Tucci, was given with great feeling. Although somewhat lacking in volume for the Hall of the Americas, the senor's voice is of rare beauty and particularly adapted to the lyrics composing his selections.

Among other first renditions, "La Culebra," from Roldan's suite "La Rebambaramba," the joropo "Alma Llanera" (Gutierrez), both numbers employing native instruments; "La Huerta," a novelty by Patina, and Lieut. Charles Benter's "Querida Mia," a habanera dedicated to the musicians of Cuba, may be mentioned.

Other Fine Numbers.

Other outstanding and more familiar numbers included the tantalizing excerpt from Gomez' "Salvador Rosa," "La Princesita" (Perez-Freire) and the Aztec characteristic "El Condor Pasa" (Robles).

Much credit must be given the arrangers of this excellent program, as well as to Capt. William J. Stannard, U. S. A.; Capt. Taylor Branson, U. S. M. C., and Lieut. Charles Benter, U. S. N., and to the solo musicians, John Baumann, Winfred Kemp, Louis Goucher and William Cameron. George H. Wilson accompanied the guest soloists on the piano in all but one number.

About the Show Shops

With NELSON B. BELL

IT IS that veteran showman, Mr. Theodore Mitchell, whose present activities are dedicated to the forthcoming "Lambs' Gambol," who suggests that Joseph Jefferson is to be credited with the idea which led to the famous "all-star" tours that have been more or less prevalent in America for the past 50 years and of which the "Lambs' Public Gambols" are perhaps the most familiar and most successful. To many, the genesis of the idea and its first practical application is not known.

It seems that back in the early '80s William J. Florence, the celebrated comedian, got caught in a Wall street crash—even as you and I—and searched out Mr. Jefferson for a loan to tide him over the summer—ditto. Jefferson saw an opportunity to put a plan he had been incubating to the test.

Instead of advancing the money to Florence, he proposed that they organize an "all-star" tour of "The Rivals," and make a great deal more money than even Mr. Florence thought he needed. The comedian agreed and together they enlisted the aid of Mrs. John Drew and thus assembled the nucleus of the first "all-star" cast, with Florence as Sir Lucius, Mr. Jefferson as Bob Acres and Mrs. Drew as Mrs. Malaprop, in Sheridan's immortal comedy.

On the wall of Mr. William Harryman Rapley's office in the National Theater, where the Lambs will present their all-star show Sunday evening for its only performance outside of New York, hangs a program heralding that memorable cast. In addition to Jefferson, Florence and Mrs. Drew, it included the names of Edwin Varrey, Frederick Paulding, George Nash, George W. Denham, Joseph Warren and Viola Allen.

Miss Allen and George Nash are the only survivors of that illustrious group and Mr. Nash, to demonstrate that he has not outgrown the "all-star" habit, will be one of the luminaries with the Lambs when they repeat at the National Sunday night the entertainment they gave with such signal success in New York last Sunday night.

In the matter of single performances, it might be observed that when the last curtain falls on the Mask and Wig Club's "Out of the Blues," at the Belasco tomorrow night, the histrionic young gentlemen from the University of Pennsylvania almost will have reached the end of this season's tour. There will remain only a matinee and evening performance at Wilmington, Del., to cap a successful year.

Before reaching Washington, the club will have visited Atlantic City, N. J.; Lancaster and Harrisburg, Pa., and will have played a full week, with the two regular matinees, in Philadelphia.

This tour, it is pointed out, is somewhat shorter than usual, but, even so, it is not so easy to catch up on all those lectures, lessons and laboratory experiments missed while out on the road donning the grease paint and pounding the boards for dear old alma mater!

Incidentally, a skit humorously satirizing "The New Deal," is expected to draw a good laugh in the Capital, where the references, not too heavily disguised, are expected to "get over" in a big way.

Today and tomorrow, according to a late bulletin, the Rialto Theater will present as an added feature of the program the film showing the arrival of the distinguished guests who attended the recent invitational premiere of "Be Mine Tonight," now nearing the end of its successful run.

Under the glare of the brilliant spot and floodlights, motion picture cameras clicked away as senators, representatives, diplomats, statesmen and representatives of the Capital's social and professional sets stepped from their cars and passed into the theater. What they caught upon their celluloid ribbons may be seen on the screen today and Friday.

You might have known it. I mean about that mysterious stage attraction to headline next week's bill at the Earle Theater. Certainly it will be an organization that has appeared here many times, is popular on both stage and radio programs and is weekly being heard through millions of radio loudspeakers throughout the land! That, I should say, is putting it conservatively.

Oh, all right, if you haven't guessed by now, you probably never will—Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, including Tom Waring, the Lane Sisters, Babs and her brothers, and Johnny Davis, the popular "scat" singer, are being held over for a second week, thus achieving a departure from house policy and precedent that only little Gracie Barry before them ever has paralleled.

An entirely new program will be presented of a quality which Fred guarantees has never before been offered in Washington. That, it occurs to this credulous column, ought to be a pretty good program!

On Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, as a part of the silver anniversary celebration of the founding of the Women's Congressional Club, Manager Hardie Meakin will entertain the membership of the club and their friends as guests of RKO-Keith's Theater at a complete screening of the current bill. On this occasion the younger members of the congressional set—the daughters and wives of senators and representatives—will serve as ushers.

The general public—if any of them are up at so extraordinary an hour—will not be admitted to this performance.

Having been submerged this week in a comparatively minor role, Leona Powers, leading woman of the National Theater Players, will come into her own, as the saying goes, next Monday night, when the bill at the National will be a revival of one of the funniest farces ever produced on the American stage. For their second week, the Players have elected to present "Grounds for Divorce," Ina Claire's famous stage success.

This is in consonance with the company's avowed policy of mixing old plays and new, mystery-comedy and drama, romance and realism, in the season's repertoire. From "Riddle Me This," the opening play, to "Grounds for Divorce" marks a leap from a comparatively new play, never before seen on a Washington stage, to an old favorite which has triumphantly undergone translation to the screen and back again. Suitable parts are afforded for a majority of the popular troupe so royally welcomed "home" last Monday night.

Speaking of next week's attractions, Panjandrum Jimmy Lake, of the Gayety, has insured fourteen capacity houses for the second week of his stock burlesque company by announcing Hinda Wasau, the guest star who outstrips them all, for the seven-day period beginning with next Sunday's matinee performance.

The incoming features for the new week in the motion picture houses will be approximately as follows: Palace, Clive Brook and Diana Wynyard in "Cavalcade;" Earle, Richard Barthelmess and Sally Eilers in "Central Airport," and Waring's Pennsylvanians headlining the vaudeville for a second week; Loew's Fox, Loretta Young and Gene Raymond in "Zoo in Budapest," and Olsen and Johnson headlining the vaudeville; Rialto, ZaSu Pitts and "Slim" Summerville in "Out All Night," opening Saturday; RKO-Keith's, Fay Wray and Ralph Bellamy in "Below the Sea," opening date to be announced; Columbia, Dorothy Jordan and Alexander Kirkland in "Bondage," opening Monday; Metropolitan, Maurice Chevalier in "A Bedtime Story," second week.

At the Madrillon, girls completely dominate the floor show. Carlotta Montez, Valencian dancer; the Yates Sisters, a trio of pretty steppers, and Elsa Lang, charming soprano, whose engagement has been extended, are foremost in acclaim.

Stealing the floor show at the Russian Troika are Edna and Annabelle, a diminutive dance team, pupils of Fokine, in their own arrangement of character dances.

The Club Michel, temporarily deprived of the services of Marty Rubin by an appendectomy, still has Pete Macias and his boys and enough additional features to make it a favorite night spot among the cognoscenti.

Times being what they are, I'll be seeing you around the better hot-dog stands!

Shakespeare Group Banquets at Hotel

Mrs. Henry Clay Folger and Mrs. James Parmelee Guests of Honor.

The Shakespeare Society of Washington held its annual banquet last night at the Burlington Hotel. Dr. E. V. Wilcox, president of the society, acted as toastmaster. Mrs. Henry Clay Folger, widow of Henry Clay Folger, donor of the Folger Shakespeare Library, and Mrs. James Parmelee, were guests of honor.

H. H. B. Myer, of the Congressional Library, who has long cherished the hope of a Shakespearean theater in Washington, asked for contributions toward such a fund, and his request was enthusiastically received by the society.

James Waldo Fawcett spoke on Shakespeare's ability to write the plays, claiming that Shakespeare was the supreme journalist of all time; that he needed no formal academic degrees, but absorbed and reflected the activities of the entire pageantry of all mankind.

same basis as other employes, something more than $450,000 would be paid into the Treasury in the next fiscal year, he told the House. Their contributions this fiscal year would amount to $250,000, he said.

The Virginian related how one Federal judge remitted two checks for $125 in September of last year, then stopped. Another Federal judge remitted one check for $200 and another for $100, but has sent back none since. A third sent two checks for $83.33 each, and a fourth recently wrote the Treasury he feels he should contribute 15 per cent of his salary.

"The splendid manner in which the employes of the Government have accepted their reduction in compensation is a testimony to their patriotism and to their willingness to make their contribution in the present emergency," he said.

"Personally, I am at a loss to understand how a member of the Federal judiciary would be content to draw his full salary, knowing full well it is only the provision of the United States Constitution which prevents him from taking the same cut as every other employe of the Government has been compelled to take."

There are 151 district judges drawing $10,000 a year; 40 circuit judges drawing $12,000; 8 members of the United States Supreme Court getting $20,000, and the Chief Justice, $20,500.

Fall From Fence Breaks Arm.

Mary Nichols, 6-year-old, 1224 Corbin place northwest, suffered a fracture of her right arm yesterday when she fell several feet from a fence on which she had been playing near her home. She was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Nonsupport Case Won By Directed Verdict

Challenging the jurisdiction of the District Courts, Richard R. Carman, jr., well-known trainer of race horses, yesterday gained a directed verdict in the District Supreme Court when Chief Justice A. A. Wheat ruled his contention was correct.

Carman, through attorneys E. Russell Kelly and Raymond Neudecker, claimed the local courts had no right to try him on an indictment charging him with failure to support his 11-year-old son. Mrs. Angela Rosch Carman, Carman's first wife, and mother of the boy, testified that she considered her residence to be in California.

$25 for Names of Kittens

The Washington Post and Loew's Fox Theater Will Give Cash for Labels on Pair of Baby Jaguars, Born at National Zoo.

Do you want to earn $25 in cash or win tickets to Loew's Fox Theater by simply submitting two names to that theater?

If so, just consider yourself entered in The Washington Post-Loew's Fox contest to name the two baby jaguars recently born at the national zoo.

Tomorrow, on this page, pictures of the baby juguars will be published together with a description of them, of the life and habits of jaguars and much more information which may help in selecting names for the two animals.

To the person whose two names for the two jaguars are deemed best, The Washington Post will pay $25 in cash. For the ten next best pairs of names for the jungle babes, Loew's Fox offers sets of tickets good at that theater either during the showing of "Zoo in Budapest," which opens tomorrow or any time later.

"Zoo in Budepest," deals considerably in action among wild animals although its main theme is romance. Dr. William Mann, director of the National Zoo, and William Blackburn, head keeper there, have consented to assist in selecting the winning names for the latest additions to their collection.

Remember, watch this page tomorrow for pictures of the baby jaguars and then send in your name selections. All entries must be received at Loew's Fox Theater by 6 o'clock next Monday night.

HOUSE PLANS PROBE OF LOWELL RULING

Representatives Britten (Republican), Illinois; Lehlbach (Republican), New Jersey, and Black (Democrat), New York, joined in the protest, the resolution was pressed to roll call passage following an hour's debate.

Representative Luce said he was a close personal friend of Lowell and had served with him in the Massachusetts Legislature. He said "no man could stand higher in the respect of those who know him."

"There is no ground for impeachment in these charges," said the Massachusetts representative. "These suggestions of malfeasance are absurd."

Smith declared a judge is impeachable who is either "so ignorant of the law as to amount to flagrant incompetancy, or who knowing the law, deliberately, willfully and knowingly, in direct contravention of the Constitution and well-established precedent and authorities of the court of last resort, releases on the world a self-confessed murderer of the most vicious type."

"Contempt of Congress."

He charged that Judge Lowell "did deliberately and wilfully, by ordering the release of said George Crawford unlawfully and contrary to the law in such cases made and provided, seek to defeat the ends of justice and to prevent the said George Crawford from being duly and regularly tried in the tribunal having jurisdiction thereof for the crimes with which he is charged."

Representative Black objected to Smith terming Crawford a "self-confessed murderer" when his confession had not been written, but the Virginian replied there were "plenty of witnesses" who heard his confession.

Smith declared Lowell "has publicly expressed his contempt for those members of Congress who would dare to rebuke him." He gave the detailed history of the case, leading up to the freeing of Crawford in Boston on a habeas corpus writ.

The Virginia representative conferred with House Judiciary Chairman Sumners following the House vote with a view to early action. His resolution appropriates $5,000 to pay the expenses of the investigation and empowers the committee to compel attendance of witnesses and to produce records.

Virginia Joins Appeal.

Richmond, Va., April 26 (A.P.).—Gov. Pollard today said he would ask the attorney general of Virginia to participate in a hearing on an appeal from the decision of Federal Judge James A. Lowell, of Boston, in the George Crawford case.

Making this announcement, the Virginia Governor said he was "astounded beyond measure" at the action in Boston. He added that "fortunately there is a higher court to review Judge Lowell's opinion, and our remedy lies not in abuse but in appeal for redress to duly constituted authorities."

"I consider the principle involved so important that I shall ask the attorney general to participate in the hearing on an appeal," he said.

Special Court Possible.

Boston, April 26 (A.P.).—The possibility of a special session of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals to hear the appeal of the State of Massachusetts in the granting by Federal Judge James A. Lowell of a writ of habeas corpus for the release of George Crawford, Negro, wanted in Virginia on a charge of murder, was seen today in action of his counsel.

J. Weston Allen, former attorney general of Massachusetts and chief counsel for Crawford, conferred with Assistant Attorney General Stephen D. Bacigalupo, of Massachusetts, regarding such a request.

Bacigalupo said he had no objection to Allen's reqquest. The court will adjourn soon to convene again in October when the Crawford case has been set for hearing.

Judge Gives Reasons.

While action of Representative Smith, of Virginia, to impeach Judge Lowell for his decision in the Crawford case received support in Congress, the eminent jurist continued to withhold comment on condemnation in Virginia of his action. Judge Lowell granted the writ because, he said, the United States Supreme Court would nullify a conviction in Virginia because Negroes do not serve on juries there. The writ was sought after Gov. Joseph B. Ely had acceded to the request of Virginia that Crawford be extradited on charges of having slain two women at Middleburg, Va., in 1932.

Interracial Committee Protests Impeachment

Protesting the impeachment of Judge John A. Lowell in Congress yesterday for his decision in the Crawford case, members of the Interracial Committee of the District of Columbia last night adopted a resolution stating that Congress has no right to give to itself the power of reviewing the decision of the courts.

The resolution stated that the impeachment proceedings were a menace to the rights of citizens for justice in the courts of this country. Charlotte Atwood, secretary of the committee, submitted the resolution.

Hotel and Cafe Union Cuts Own Wage Scale

The Hotel and Restaurant Employes Alliance Local, No. 781, announced a temporary reduction in rates of service by waiters yesterday. The object of the reduction, it was stated, is that there will be more work for members of the union.

A request to employers to use as many men as possible was issued. The new wage scale will go into effect Sunday.

SEWING PRODUCTS OF CHARITY SHOWN

Red Cross Pays Tribute to 600,000 Women Who Made Cotton Clothes.

Products of thousands of sewing machines which clicked busily last year for charity under the directing hands of 600,000 women received honor last night in a unique fashion show at the American Red Cross Building.

Garments for the needy, the origin of which was the cotton holdings of the Farm Board and which became dresses and suits and found their way to the distressed and threadbare through the Red Cross, were "modeled" before the Red Cross national convention.

Two hundred Washington children, young women and men, paraded the garments, which show the use made of more than 75,000,000 yards of material. Other articles, such as handmade quilts and rag toys stuffed with the cotton scraps, were also shown. There was music by the Marine Band Orchestra.

Miss Boardman Is Chairman.

Ingenuity of the volunteer workers of Washington was displayed following the opening, which was an interlude from the gay nineties, with Misses Frances Hill, Jean Peoples, Lilla LaGarde, Isabelle Perry, Alice Emery, Ida Claggett and Ruth Riley modeling gowns of that period. Last shown were the products of the colored sewing unit.

The committee which arranged the show under the direction of Miss Mabel T. Boardman, national chairman of volunteer service, included Miss Elizabeth Brawner, Mrs. Lawrence S. Carson and Mrs. William Willard, who are staff assistants in the District chapter.

Montana to Receive Flag.

The President's wife will be the guest of the convention at its closing today. She will present to the State of Montana the roll-call flag won this year by that State. Mrs. John A. Johnson, roll-call chairman of the District chapter, will surrender the flag which the local chapter has won for the past two years.

Both the adult and junior delegates to the convention dispensed with session yesterday afternoon and journeyed to Mount Vernon, where the juniors laid a wreath upon the tomb of Washington.

Harvey D. Gibson, chairman of the Emergency Unemployment Relief Committee of New York, told the convention at its session yesterday morning that the relief situation in New York is even more serious now than last year.

The Capital City Spelling Club will journey to Baltimore tomorrow night to compete in a contest with the Waverly Club of that city. Final plans were completed last night at a meeting of the local club in the home of J. Louis Bixler, 500 A street southeast.

The spelling bee will be held on the occasion of the Waverly Club's thirty-fifth anniversary.

GRIFFITH READY TO DEFEND WHITEHILL AND MYER

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

Boston, Mass., April 26.

IT was no surprise to Buddy Myer that he was spiked by Ben Chapman in the little incident at second base at Griffith Stadium last Tuesday that kindled the flame of open warfare between the Nats and the Yankees.

For two seasons it was noised among the Nats that Myer was the target of the Yankee speed king, but Myer had evidence of his own—a gaping 4-inch wound along his right calf—that he will carry to his grave with the compliments of Chapman.

The day before the battle of Griffith Stadium, Myer was wounded on his chin by a Chapman slide and it is not difficult to imagine that Buddy was making great haste to get his feet out of the way when Chapman slid into the bag on Tuesday again, but to no avail. The Yankee's spikes tore the heel completely off Myer's shoe and it was only because of the double-thickness of the leather that Buddy escaped serious injury.

Last Tuesday's throw-back to the rough-and-ready era of baseball reminds us that this is grim business for the ball player whose career is at the mercy of an errant spike.

That Chapman happens to be an outfielder, far removed from the dangers of being spiked himself, is not being overlooked by Myer's team mates. Out there in right field, Chapman is safe from any retaliation by the opposition and can hardly be harmed even if the opponents have the intent.

If League President Harridge is looking for intent in his final ruling on the suspensions of Myer and Chapman, Owner Griffith intends to go to bat for his second baseman with evidence of Chapman's previous brushes with Myer, who can display a badly gashed leg that ought to win the sympathy of the league head.

Clark Griffith was surprised at the failure of Harridge to take action against Dixie Walker and Vernon Gomez, the Yankees, who, with Chapman, figured most prominently in the battling with players and spectators in front of the Nats' dugout.

According to Griffith, any report of Umpires Geisel and Moriarty to the league chief should have contained the notations concerning Walker's furious fighting with the cops and fans, whether, as Harridge said, he was attempting to protect Chapman or not.

The Nats' owner was vehement also against Gomez, who appeared on the scene with a bat to offer his assistance, and his only conclusion is that the umpires neglected to make mention of the actions of Gomez in their report to Harridge.

The only beneficiaries of the battle of Griffith Stadium seem to be the club treasuries of the Washington and New York teams, who will benefit to the extent of several thousand added customers in the two-game series starting in New York on Friday.

Had the schedule not routed Washington to Boston and New York to Philadelphia for the game today, but listed Washington to New York, a sell-out crowd was possible following the Griffith Stadium excitement, but even with two days interim to cool the temper of the fans, an abnormal attendance is anticipated at Yankee Stadium over the week-end.

Baltimore Ring Show Off; Customers Lacking

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., April 26.—Only a handful of fans turned out for the fights scheduled tonight at Carlin's Park, and Joe McCubbin, of the Melrose Club, postponed the show indefinitely. The fans filed out of the arena, formed a line in front of the box office and had their tickets refunded.

Joey Britton, Charley Von Reeden, Jimmy Tramberia and Eddie Burl were to have been the principals in the two main bouts of eight rounds.

CARDS RELEASE PAIR.

St. Louis, April 26 (A.P.).—Jim Lindsey, pitcher, and Charley Wilson, shortstop, today were notified of their release by the St. Louis Cardinals to one of the numerous farms of the local club.

Cardinal officials made no definite announcement, but it was assumed they would go either to Rochester or the International League or Houston in the Texas circuit.

BARBERS WANT ACTION.

United Barbers, piloted by Tony Burrutto, are desirous of playing some crack unlimited baseball team Sunday, and managers interested are requested to call Metropolitan 7959.

Manager Burrutto has a diamond available.

Hildebrand, of Indians, And Parmelee, Giants, Hold Foes to But One Hit

Scharein Singles in Third as Tribe Wins From Browns, 2-0.

Hildebrand Walks 2 But No Foe Passes Initial Sack.

CLEVELAND, April 26 (A.P.).—Lanky Oral Hildebrand missed the goal of all pitchers—a no hit game—today by the narrow margin of a single safe blow as the Cleveland Indians made it two in a row over St. Louis, 2 to 0.

The bludgeon of Art Scharein, the Browns' third baseman, ruined Hildebrand's bid for the baseball hall of fame in the third inning. Scharein cracked a whistling blow to right center, and Averill had to hustle to keep it to a single.

No Brownies Reach Second.

Only two other Browns reached first base—both on passes—and none got as far as second. It was Hildebrand's third victory in as many appearances this season.

Bissonette Is Hero As Dodgers Score

Brooklyn, April 26 (A.P.).—The slugging of Del Bissonette behind the four-hit pitching of Owen Carroll gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 5-to-1 victory over the Boston Braves today.

The Dodgers' veteran first baseman, who returned to the game this season following a year on the side lines with an injured leg, cracked out a home run, a double and a single to drive in four runs.

Miss Sard, of D. C., Hot Springs Victor

Hot Springs, Va., April 26 (A.P.).—Play was confined mostly to doubles matches in the Hot Springs tennis tournament today, but two of the singles exhibitions found the most favor with the galleries.

Alex Keiles of Baltimore, put up a great fight against the favored Francis X. Shields, of New York, seeded No. 1 in the tournament, but went down battling, 6—3, 6—4.

Lester Stoefen, of Los Angeles, seeded No. 2, defeated Charles Lockhart, of Pittsburgh, 6—4, 6—2.

In the mixed doubles Alex Keiles and Miss Abigail I. Sard, of Washington, took a seesaw match from Stoefen and Dorgas Stranahan, of Toledo, 8—6, 1—6, 6—0.

Favored combinations took the first round matches in the men's doubles with compartive ease. Stoefen and Shields eliminated Point Johnson, of Wilmington, and Eddie Reeves of New York, 6—0, 6—1, while Marcel Rainville, a member of the Canadian Davis Cup team, and Eddie Jacobs, of Baltimore, were defeating Dr. M. M. Flies and Robert Van Lear, both of Clifton Forge, Va., by the same score.

Cards Held to Five Hits As Reds Triumph, 2-1

St. Louis, April 26 (A.P.).—Silas Johnson held the St. Louis Cardinals to 5 hits and the Cincinnati Reds took the first game of the series today, 2 to 1, largely because Leo Durocher, usually a weak hitter, pounded everything that Paul Derringer offered him. Durocher drew a pass and hit a double and two singles for a perfect day at bat. The second single started a one-run rally that scored the winning run in the ninth.

Finn's Scratch Two-Bagger Ruins Day for Parmelee.

Error Helps Giants to Nose Out Phils by 3-1 Score.

NEW YORK, April 26 (A.P.).—By the narrow margin of a double, which might have been scored as an error, Roy Parmelee, making his first 1933 appearance, today missed baseball's hall of fame when he held the Phillies to one hit in the New York Giants' 3-1 victory.

In the third inning, Mickey Finn, Phillies' second baseman, cracked a fast hopper down the third base line. Johnny Vergez got his hands on the ball, but was unable to hold it and Finn pulled up at second. An outfield fly and a wild pitch sent him across the plate.

Error Helps Giants Score Twice.

The one run appeared good enough to win the game until the seventh inning, when the Giants counted twice on a daring bit of base running. With Ott on first base, Leslie, subbing for Manager Bill Terry, drove a double into left. Ott took a chance in trying to score, but was safe when Bartell threw past Virgil Davis. Leslie also completed the circuit before the Phillies' catcher could retrieve the ball. Singles by Ryan and Ott, mixed with Parmelee's sacrifice, gave the Giants their third run in the eighth.

Jim Elliott kept the Giants' six hits well scattered except the two innings the Giants scored. Parmelee was invincible, however, striking out six men. Finn was the only Phillies player to get as far as second base, although Parmelee walked four men.

Tiger Rally in 11th Beats Chisox, 6 to 4

Chicago, April 26 (A.P.).—Detroit overcame a 3 run lead in the closing innings today and then went on to defeat the White Sox, 6 to 4, in a tight 11 inning game in which 32 players, including 7 pitchers, saw action.

Three singles by Fox, Webb and Gehringer, plus a long fly by Walker, pushed over the 2 winning runs for the Tigers in the final inning and ended the three-game winning streak of the rejuvented White Sox.

Sam Jones held the Tigers to two harmless hits over the first six innings as the White Sox piled up 3 runs with Minter Hayes leading the attack with a home run, a double and a single. A hit batsman and three singles gave the Tigers 2 runs in the seventh. They tied it up in the ninth on a single by Earl Webb after Reiber, a pinch hitter, and Owens drew walks. Gregory relieved Jones at that point and stopped the rally only to give up a walk and two singles in the tenth that sent Detroit ahead by a run momentarily, the Sox tying it again on a walk and Berry's triple.

Hoppe Runs Record 53 To Win Over Schaefer

Chicago, April 26 (A.P.).—Willie Hoppe, of New York, established a new world record for high run in carom billiards tonight by clicking off 53 points in the twentieth inning of his special match against Jake Schaefer of San Francisco Hoppe won the night's block, 250 to 150, in 22 innings.

It was the second time in two nights that the record high run was broken. Schaefer broke the world record of 38, which stood for 50 years, last night with a high run of 39.

Hoppe now leads Schaefer 750 to 642 in 109 innings of the 1,500-point match.

Suspended Nats and Their Substitutes

Failure of Umpires to Enforce Rules Seen Responsible for Ball Field Fights

Officials Are Slow to Rule on Interference, Says Writer.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

WHILE President Will Harridge, of the American League, is deciding upon the amount of fines and suspensions to be doled out to Messrs. Buddy Myer, Ben Chapman and Earl Whitehill, it might be a good idea for him to go a little farther and to take steps to prevent future fights such as staged first by Myer and Chapman, later by Chapman and Whitehill, and still later by two hundred or more of the fans who attended Tuesday's Nat-Yankee game in Griffith Stadium.

Instead of warning players against fighting on the field, the cause of 99 out of 100 fistic exchanges could be eliminated by instructing the American League umpires to strictly enforce the rules. When Chapman, Yankee base-runner charged into Myer, covering second, with his spiker covering a wide territory, he was violating a baseball rule. Myer was on the pivot of a possible double-play, and the twin-killing was blocked by Chapman, who almost cut off one of Myer's shoes while dumping him.

Interference Seldom Called.

While baseball rules give base-runners the right of way, they do not give them the right to try to maim rival players in a mad desire to win. Umpires good enough to land American League jobs know when a base-runner exceeds his prerogatives on the paths and should be instructed to watch for violations of base-running rules. If, in each case, the runner was declared out for interference and banished, or fined, or both if his rough work injured a rival player, acts such as Chapman's soon would become as scarce as dodo birds.

A few exchanges of blows, like Tuesday's fracas between Myer and Chapman, do no particular harm; in fact, they add a fighting touch to the game which many of the fans seem to enjoy. But miscellaneous throwing about of spiked shoes may cripple rival players for life, while the aftermaths of fights on the diamond may do even more damage.

Had the Myer-Chapman bout ended when the players were separated on the field, little would have been said of the encounter. But Washington players on the home bench called Chapman some ugly names as he passed nearby en route to the locker-room and he took a clout at Pitcher Whitehill, who happened to be nearest to him. Immediately a good-sized riot was in the making. Fans rushed on to the field from the stands, fists flew thick and fast in all directions and it was not until a quickly reinforced police force swooped on the field that peace reigned again.

Spike Flying Not Unusual.

The writer is not taking sides in the Myer-Chapman controversy. There is no question but what Chapman went into second base with his spikes flying, but that is baseball as it is played today. Some of the Washington players do it, too. In the case at hand, it so happened that Chapman had done the same thing too many times to suit Myer. Once last year, he almost injured the Nat second-sacker, while only the previous day Buddy had received a cut shin from one of Ben's spikes. So he saw red, took a poke at Chapman—and the trouble started when Chapman roughed him up a third time.

As long as no steps are taken to stop this type of sliding, it will continue as part of baseball, there will be more fights and, probably more riots. Let the league head instruct his umpires to check this spreading evil before some player is crippled for life or some fans are killed in the rioting which so often follows fights on the playing field.

Tardugno Annexes U. S. Boxing Crown

Special to The Washington Post.

Boston, Mass., April 26.—Angelo Tardugno, of Washington, was crowned national amateur bantamweight boxing champion when he blasted his way to the top of the 118-pound class in the semifinal and final bouts of the thirty-third annual national A. A. U. Boxing Tournament at the Boston Arena here tonight to become the only Washingtonian to win a title.

Tardugno, the only survivor of three brothers, all former residents of Lawrence, this State, to come through the three-day mill, whacked out a well-directed left-hand attack which won him a clear three-round verdict in the semifinal over Julie Katz, of New York City, and then went on to outscore Willard Walker, of Kansas, in the final in a close three rounds of fighting.

Harry Rice Arrested On Complaint of Wife

St. Louis, April 26 (A.P.).—Harry Rice, right fielder for the Cincinnati Reds, was arrested at Union Station upon his arrival with the team on a nonsupport charge brought by his estranged wife, Lillian, who lives here.

Mrs. Rice married the ball player in 1924 and separated from him five years ago when she had him arrested for nonsupport. Rice said his wife deserted him fifteen months ago after a reconciliation. He was released on bond arranged by officials of the Cincinanti Club and was played against the Cards this afternoon.

Nats' Owner Seeks Equal Ban for Walker, Gomez; Linke May Face Sox Today

Rotund Rookie Seen Cronin's Choice for Boston Opener.

Kerr to Play Second; Bluege May Lead Off in Shift.

Special to The Washington Post.

BOSTON, Mass., April 26.—Looking ahead to the important series with New York over the week-end, Manager Joe Cronin was undecided tonight on his pitching nominee for tomorrow's battle with the Red Sox, following the rain which washed out today's game.

Deprived of the services of Earl Whitehill for the opener in New York, at least, as a result of the suspension of both Whitehill and Buddy Myer, Cronin was debating the possibilities of starting his rookie, Ed Linke, who has been showing impressive form in the bull pen.

The intimation that Linke may get the assignment indicated that Bob Burke will pitch at least one of the New York games, unless an overnight change of heart finds Cronin starting Burke tomorrow. Walter Stewart, the only other left-hander available, is hardly ready after working Monday, and Cronin is partial toward southpaws against New York.

Long Suspension May Be Costly.

Any lengthy suspension of Myer and Whitehill will be a body blow to the Nats' hopes, with Cronin forced to campaign with two reserves in the line-up. The team can ill afford to spare the services of the regular second baseman and the left-handed pitcher with the New York series and the first Western trip in the offing.

Johnny Kerr will be seen at second base tomorrow, Cronin announced, with a possible change in the batting order that may find Bluege leading off. If Bluege does not get the top spot in the line-up, it will be Kuhel who will be the first to face the Red Sox pitching.

In Boston, the Red Sox are giving grand indications of supplanting the Braves in the affections of Hub fans. The rout of Lefty Grove on Tuesday, the first time the A's ace has been beaten in Fenway Park since 1929, was hailed with loud acclaim by the rapidly increasing Red Sox supporters.

Hodapp Sets Fast Pace.

The Boston club also is boasting at present the league's leading hitter in Johnny Hodapp, formerly of the Indians, who always maintained a respectable average at the plate but was no great shucks as a second baseman.

Hodapp is 15 pounds under his weight of last year and is taking care of the second sack in great style, but baseball men are awaiting the hot weather and faster diamonds before passing final judgment on the former Indian.

Two District Golfers In Pinehurst Finals

Pinehurst, N. C., April 26 (U.P.).—Dick Wilson, former Georgetown star medalist, and Richard P. Davidson, of Washington, advanced to the finals today in the mid-April golf tournament.

Wilson defeated Walter D. Hyatt, of Toledo, Ohio, 6 and 5, going out on a par 36, leading five up.

Davidson, former Chevyhouse Club champion, won over Howard G. Phillips, of New York, by the same score. He went out in 37, standing six up.

In the second division, former Senator James H Walker, of Massachusetts, was eliminated by Jack Gutfrund, of Unwood. N. Y., and H. F. Seawell, jr., of Carthage, N. C., defeated C. A. Warren, of Kingston, N. Y.

The Nats' war with the Yankees echoed from Chicago this afternoon, where League President William Harridge pronounced Buddy Myer and Earl Whitehill indefinitely susp

BONANZA, SARADA WINNERS IN HAVRE DE GRACE FEATURES

Ziegler Colt Equals .53 Record

Early Light Beaten 5 Lengths; Wise Daughter Third.

Sarada Surprises by Downing Preakness, Derby Hopes.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 26 A.P.).—Bonanza, owned by William Ziegler, jr., and the fancy of the clockers, raced to a scintillating victory in the Abredeen Stakes, first important 2-year-old fixture of the season, here this afternoon. The son of Swift and Sure, a winner here in his only previous start, ran the 4½ furlongs in :0:53, to equal the track record. Five lengths behind came Mrs. J. H. Whitney's Early Light, to take the place from the Everglades Stable's Wise Daughter, the favorite, by a head. Brown Jack was a fast-closing fourth. The winner, coupled with Aunt Flor, paid $10.40. The race was worth $11,300 to the winner.

Wise Daughter's vaunted speed held good in the early running, but she could not shake off the Ziegler youngster. The latter took command entering the stretch, and drew far clear like a good colt. Wise Daughter weakened and Early Light came along on the outside to take the place. Fogbound ran a good race to be fifth.

Sarada Beats Candidates.

The hopes of four highly regarded Kentucky Derby and Preakness eligibles suffered an unexpected setback as Sarada, also a candidate for the spring classics, gained in popularity with a victory in the mile and 70-yard Shenandoah Purse.

Sarada, sporting the silks of F. A. Griffith, of Rochester, N. Y., was forced to step the distance within less than one second of the track record to defeat the lightly regarded M. L. Schwartz's gelding, Gold Basis, and Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Utopian. The time was 1:42 3-5.

Far back, out of the money, trailed James F. Johnson's Repaid, Mrs. J. H. Whitney's Crowning Glory, C. V. Whitney's The Darb and Leo Rosenberg's Kerry Patch, the latter two making their first start of the season. The Darb made the most creditable showing of the quartet, holding the lead to the stretch turn only to tire from his early efforts and drop back to fourth.

The lowly Gold Basis, not a derby candidate, took the worst of it by dwelling at the barrier, but closed with a burst of speed that left him only a nose back of Sarada at the finish. Utopian, also outrun early, closed fast to take the show position.

Entry Runs First And Second.

The S. W. Labrot entry of Toytime and Campaigna was made favorite at 1 to 2 in the event for maiden 2-year-olds foaled in Maryland which opened the card. They obliged by running one-two, Toytime driving home by a head. Dreel was third five lengths behind. The Labrot pair had the race between them all the way with Toytime heading her stablemate through the final furlong. Dreel was an easy third.

Levaal found his racing legs in the second race and led throughout to pay $30.20 for $2. Cattail was second a neck behind and four lengths before Crap Shooter. Jockey Morrison took full advantage of Levaal's high speed, the colt leading Cattail by nearly two lengths until the last sixteenth where Cattail began wearing the winner down with every stride. Crap Shooter raced well up but could never gain on the leaders.

J. E. Smallman's Boscobel made it two in a row when she won the third event by two lengths, to pay $7.60. Manya lasted to beat Lucky Racket by a neck for place honors. Manya dashed into an early lead, but gave way to Boscobel at the far turn. The latter never was threatened thereafter. Lucky Racket made up a lot of ground to land in the money.

Sweeping Light outfinished Springsteel, the favorite, to win the sixth event by a length. Glastonbury lost the place by two lengths. Springsteel raced Kakapo into submission and appeared a sure winner turning for home, but Sweeping Light crept up rapidly in the last furlong and won going away. Glastonbury found his stride too late. The winner paid $9.60.

Kneehigh, 2-to-1 choice, won the last race by a length. Ming Sun took the place by a half length from Tarnish.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LEVAAL, $30.20, $13.60, $7.60; CATTAIL, $4.80, $3.00; CRAP SHOOTER, $3.00.

LEVAAL, going in greatly improved fashion and breaking swiftly, drew clear in the opening furlong, responded stoutly when hard ridden during the stretch run and just lasted to withstand CATTAIL. Latter, followed in near pursuit of the winner, came to the outside when straightened into the home stretch and was steadily wearing the winner down. CRAP SHOOTER, outrun for the first half mile, secured racing room on the inside and then closed courageously. SNAPLOCK, slow to get going, finished with a rush. BRIAR BLUE was racing stoutly after losing ground all the way. LORD RAGLAN showed a good effort. ROCK COVENTRY had a rough trip in the early stages. SUN ALLEY tired. WALTER H. had brief early foot.

THIRD RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good from gate. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:45. Off at 3:48. Winner, J. E. Smallman's br. f. (4), by Sir Greystee—Shvieaks. Trained by G. Alexandra. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:12 3-5, 1:38 3-5, 1:43 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOSCOBEL, $7.60, $3.80, $2.60; MANYA, $5.00, $4.00; LUCKY RACKET, $3.80.

BOSCOBEL raied close to MANYA, moved into command when midway of the final turn, came wide into the home stretch, but held her field safe thereafter. MANYA, sent into a brief lead, was unable to stay with the winner when challenged. LUCKY RACKET worked her way up gradually, came around the leaders entering the home stretch and closed fast. BANNACH LATH, taken wide the entire trip, showed a good effort. BUBOLA raced well under mild pressure. HAPPEN was hard ridden and had no excuses. CHLOEDAIR stopped.

FOURTH RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. Purse, $7,500 added. The Aberdeen Stakes. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:20. Off at 4:28. Winner, W. Ziegler, jr.'s b. c., by Swift and Sure—El Dorado. Trained by J. Phillips. Net value to winner, $11,300; second, $1,500; third, $750; fourth, $350. Time, 0:23, 0:46 3-5, 0:53 (equals track record).

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BONANZA (William Ziegler, jr.-Middleburg Stable entry), $10.40, $6.40, $3.20; EARLY LIGHT, $12.00, $5.00; WISE DAUGHTER, $2.40.

BONANZA, under strong handling, raced WISE DAUGHTER into submission in the first half mile, and drew out smartly through the final furlong to win well in hand. EARLY LIGHT, unable to race along with the pacemakers in the early stages, came to the outside and closed full of run. WISE DAUGHTER displayed good speed from the barrier, saved ground but weakened badly in the closing drive. BROWN JACK finished with a rush and would have been third in another stride. FOGBOUND was in trouble soon after the start and could not reach racing stride until the last furlong. REBEL YELL raced green. IMPROMPTU stopped suddenly after a half mile. PIETY had early speed. BORDER KING raced very green. AUNT FLOR broke flatfooted.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Shenandoah. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate for all but Gold Basis. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:55. Off at 5:01. Winner, F. A. Griffith's dk. br. c., by Sir Gallahad III—Sari. Trained by W. Mulholland. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SARADA, $7.60, $4.60, $3.80; GOLD BASIS, $13.60, $6.60; UTOPIAN, $6.00.

SARADA, carried wide at the first turn, moved up fast on the outside when settled on the back stretch, drew to the pacemakers and finishing stoutly when placed to punishment, just lasted to stall off GOLD BASIS. Latter, dwelt and away very slow when the break came, moved to his field with exceptional speed and working his way around his company, fought it out with rare courage. UTOPIAN, a slow beginner, was forced to circle his field to close full of run. THE DARB, having good speed, raced CROWNING GLORY into defeat, but had too much taken out of him and he weakened slightly under a stiff drive. CROWNING GLORY set a fast pace, saved ground but was not good enough. KERRY PATCH showed good speed until he tired. REPAID was placed to early punishment, but failed to respond. SUN APOLLO had brief early foot.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Belair. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:30. Off at 5:31½. Winner, M. J. Lacey's br. c. (4), by Mama—Sweeping Glance. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:12 1-5, 1:38 2-5, 1:44 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SWEEPING LIGHT, $9.60, $3.40, $3.00; SPRINGSTEEL, $2.80, $2.40; GLASTONBURY, $5.20.

SWEEPING LIGHT, reserved while racing near to the pacemakers, gained fast when shaken up and finishing full of run were SPRINGSTEEL down wide in the final six-teenth mile. SPRINGSTEEL, under steadying restraint while racing with KAKAPO, took command when ready, was placed to punishment in the last furlong, but could not resist the winner. GLASTONBURY was making up ground slowly approaching the finish. ACTION saved ground all the way and had no excuses. CAESAR'S GHOST was outrun. KAKAPO was done after five furlongs.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KNEEHIGH, $6.00, $4.20, $2.80; MING SUN, $41.40, $18.20; TARNISH, $4.40.

KNEEHIGH, allowed to settle in her best stride, reached contention while kept on the outside, disposed of MING SUN entering the home stretch and had enough left to hold her lead. MING SUN, prominent all the way, shook off REDIVIVUS and held on well. MAINSHEET finished with a rush. TARNISH was racing strongly at the end. TUFFY G. moved into contention with good speed when kept on the outside, then was taken to the inside during the stretch run and Munden rode a very bad finish after having his mount in much trouble in the last furlong. SYRIAC went well placed and had no excuses. MATADI could not threaten the leaders.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: HAVRE DE GRACE, APRIL 26.

You count 'em—Toy Time, $3.00; Boscobel, $7.60; Bonanza, $10.40; Sarada, $7.60; Knee High, $6.00. You're right, kid, five winners, right on the snozzle. Like Longshot Riley says, "No humbug about it, I don't tell no lies about——." You know the line. Yes, and my two other win selections, Crapshooter and Springsteel, were third and second, respectively. By the time you read this you probably will have drunk up all the 3.2 along Ninth street. Mike wants you to know that what is said about Repaid being a flop still goes. I'm beginning to believe it myself. And for today—ah, for today.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—Elmer Trueman will send GOLDEN MEASURE after this maiden purse, and off that last effort I can't see how he will lose it. True, GOLDEN MEASURE has not been tried officially on a fast track, but has worked well on one. IPSE DIXIT is one that J. P. Jones sent out to trail a field the other day, and we look for McTaggart to have the filly close. BETIMES for the show.

SECOND RACE — BRAVE AND BOLD has been out twice this season and has tailed off in both races. I look for the necessary improvement tomorrow. ROCK POINT has good races to recommend him. TOWEE was speedy last year and has been out.

THIRD RACE — IMA QUEEN won four races at Havana and has been burning up the track here in works. Only a plater, but a reliable one, that's going to show a lot before she bows to this field. DARK VISION was traveling in fairly fast company last summer and is reported in shape. TOMMY LAD'S last was impressive.

FOURTH RACE—WEDDING RING did a nifty piece of running the other day, although losing a race. Seems to be on edge and ready to take care of these. AEGIS has that swift Miami form to recommend him, and he is the one to beat. If you must have price, go to DECANTER across the board. This one was practically left at the post behind Bally Bay the other day and he may take it all.

FIFTH RACE—GLIDELIA is fit and showed a neat effort opening day in waltzing home. Taking this one to beat MAD FRUMP, which I'd rather see with a race. OLD MASTER showed his caliber the other day and is a dangerous horse any time he starts hereabout.

SIXTH RACE—GOLDEN FATE gets a chance over a fast track, and I expect a different race tomorrow. WALTER H. has been going well in the morning and may open the campaign in the money. DUNAIR for the show.

SEVENTH RACE—I'm sticking to POLAR BRUSH, although I will admit it's a tight fit between this one and DAUDET and REVONAH. All three have the apprentice mark up.

British Stake To Son of Epinard

Rodosto, 9-1, Beats 26 in Two Thousand Guineas Race.

NEWMARKET, England, April 26 (A.P.).—The French colt, Rodosto, a son of the famous Epinard, today unexpectedly qualified for the Derby when he led a field of 27 over the mile route of the Two Thousand Guineas, first of the five historic classics of the English turf for 3-year-olds.

Lightly regarded at 9 to 1, Rodosto carried the silks of Princess de Faucigny Lucinge to a length victory over Sir Hugo Cunliffe-Owen's King Salmon, a rank outsider, quoted at 25 to 1. Gino, from the Aga Khan's stable, was third, beaten three-quarters of a length for the place. Victor Emanuel's Statesman, the only American-owned horse in the race, was unplaced, finishing far back in the field.

In scoring the first foreign triumph in the stake since before the World War, Rodosto, guided by his French jockey, Brethes, ran the distance in 1:40 2-5.

Rodosto, up with the leaders from the start, moved to the front at the half-way mark. King Salmon and Gino challenged during the stretch run, but the French speedster easily held his advantage.

Epinard, sire of Rodosto, raced three times in the United States in 1924, finishing second in each race. He was beaten by Wise Counselor at Belmont Park, Ladkin at Aqueduct and Sarazen at Latonia. Since then he has been brought to this country twice for breeding purposes, ending a three-year stay last fall when he was returned to France.

Swivel Made 2nd Choice For Derby

Odds On Repaid Up After Poor Races in Maryland.

By THOMAS H. NOONE.

NEW York, April 26 (U.P.).—Several important changes were made in the winter book on the Kentucky Derby by Tom Shaw, Eastern betting commissioner, when he learned the result of the Shenandoah Purse at Havre de Grace late today.

W. R. Coe's Ladysman continues favorite, at 5 to 1, but the Quincy Stable's Repaid lost favor with Shaw by the colt's listless performance over a fast track to finish seventh in a field of nine at the Maryland track. Repaid has been boosted from 12 to 1 to 15 to 1, with the possibility of a larger price being offered when full details of the race are available.

Adolphe Pons' Swivel has supplanted Repaid as second choice in the Long Island commissioner's list at 10 to 1, with Sarada, winner of the Shenandoah today, next in favor at 15 to 1.

The Dark Held At 20 to 1.

The Darb, finishing fourth in the same race, is still 20 to 1, with Lee Rosenberg's Kerry Patch, surprise winner of the Belmont Futurity last year, jumping to 30 to 1. Kerry Patch finished just ahead of Repaid with Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Crowning Glory fifth, behind The Darb. Crowning Glory is offered at 40 to 1 in the late quotations.

Other important changes in Shaw's revised list include Mrs. William Crump's Head Play, main reliance of the Western contingent, which has been dropped to 15 to 1; W. E. Smith's imported Knockaway, which has never been to the races, from 60 to 1 to 40 to 1, as the result of heavy commissions in the past few days, and the Audley Farm's Trace Call, which ran a brilliant race behind the Catawba Stable's Mr. Khayyam in the Glen Oaks Purse at Havre de Grace Tuesday, from 500 to 1 to 50 to 1. The rest of the field remains unchanged.

District League Pin Title to Occidental

Convention Hall bowlers last night lost two games to the Georgetown five on the latter's drives and, as a result, were beaten out in the District League race by the Occidental team. The two teams each had won 71 games and lost 37, but Occidental won top honors on a total pin basis. This was the first time since the 1925-26 season that the league title has been decided on this basis. That year, Convention Hall won on total pins after three other teams had matched it in games won and lost.

In last night's match, Convention Hall won the second game, 623 to 598, but bowed to Georgetown in the first, 600 to 558, and in the second, 617 to 611.

G. W. OPENS NIGHT BASEBALL SEASON AT STADIUM

Delaware U. Nine Here For Debut

Dignitaries Expected to Attend Benefit Game.

Commissioner Reichelderfer Will Toss Out First Ball.

WHAT might justly be termed "the noble experiment of intercollegiate sport"—George Washington University's night baseball games for the benefit of civic welfare—will be unreeled tonight in the illuminated Griffith Stadium, when the first Colonial nine in 30 years meets the University of Delaware, starting at 8 o'clock.

The first nocturnal college baseball game between major institutions will be witnessed, weather permitting, by an estimated crowd of more than 5,000, including notables of national, municipal and fraternal life, who will gather to celebrate "Shrine Night" as well as the "noble experiment." Uniformed bodies of Almas Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, will lend considerable color to the occasion in a series of field demonstrations beginning at 7 o'clock.

Arranged as one of the twelve night contests for the benefit of the National Capital Civic Fund, local sponsors of civic celebrations, the game will be officially opened by Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the District Board of Commissioners, who will toss out the first ball following a brief speech by William Montgomery, president of the N. C. C. F.

Dignitaries to See Game.

Flanking these dignitaries in the boxes adjacent the George Washington dugout will be a coterie of prominent invited guests, including Hon. Henry T. Rainey, Speaker of the House; Representative Robert G. Houston and Senators John G. Townsend, jr., and Daniel O. Hastings, of Delaware; Senators Arthur Capper and William King, Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, Dr. Stephen E. Kramer, Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, Mrs. E. K. Peeples, Warren W. Grimes, illustrious potentate of Almas Temple; Harry G. Kimball, grand master of Masons; Thomas P. Littlepage, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Ben T. Webster, president of the Board of Trade, and James E. Colliflower, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

All proceeds of this and subsequent night attractions scheduled by the George Washington athletic department in cooperation with numerous other organizations will be turned over to the fund, of which Robert V. Fleming is treasurer. Single game admission will cost the nominal sum of 25 cents, while a card good for ten admissions may be secured for $2.

G. W. Golf and Tennis Teams in Busy Week

George Washington University golf and tennis teams face an active week, with the golfers making their home debut this afternoon at Washington Golf and Country Club, and the racqueters journeying to Pittsburgh.

The Colonial golfers will meet North Carolina's team at 2:30, with Capt. Bill Coleman, Earl Kniebley, Craig McKee and James Suter or James Swindell carrying the hopes of the local aggregation. Tomorrow the linksmen meet the University of Richmond at 1:30 at Washington.

Tomorrow in Pittsburgh the G. W. netters battle the University of Pittsburgh. Lawrence and Raphael Sherfy, Ted Pierce, Randy Robinson, Clyde Smith and Ken Murayama will compose the Colonial lineup.

VIRGINIA 11-6 VICTOR OVER MARYLAND

VIRGINIA vanquished Maryland, 11 to 6, yesterday on the diamond at College Park. It was the fourth defeat in a row for the Old Liners, all of the losses being Southern Conference engagements. It was Virginia's second win against two defeats in the conference.

The Cavaliers hopped into the lead in the second inning and stayed in front. Maryland rallied briskly in the ninth inning, but was checked with the bases filled after scoring four runs.

EPISCOPAL'S TOSSERS EASY

EPISCOPAL HIGH SCHOOL was hopelessly outclassed by Tech High yesterday afternoon as the high-powered bludgeons of the local tossers beat a steady drumfire of base hits to blast out a 12-to-3 victory over the Alexandrians.

Prominent in the assault on Episcopal were Williams, Beach and Wheeler, who accounted for two hits apiece.

So potent was the pitching of Chewning, Turner and Wiles that Episcopal was able to gather but four hits, two of which were made by Gooch, centerfielder. Brookings, Episcopal catcher, smacked out a home run. Tech batted Backus and Lane for eleven safeties.

Young Evers G. U. Frosh Coach

Johnny, Jr., Takes Up Baseball Duties; Netmen Busy.

THE appointment of Johnny Evers, jr., son of the famous Chicago Cubs' second baseman, as coach of the Georgetown University freshman baseball team, was announced yesterday. He will assume his new duties immediately.

No regular team has been selected from among the group trying for positions. Happy Jacobs, well known Washington court star and former Western High School player, is the only one certain of winning a berth on the team.

The schedules follow:

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

VICTOR HERMON, of Carlinville, Ill., thinks nothing of having a heavy wine bottle, wagon spoke, or even a cast iron rod broken over his head. He feels no discomfort from it and suffers no ill effect. The bone structure of the skull has thickened to the point where a blow that would knock out the ordinary man does not even stun Hermon.

Hermon discovered his strange strength when a would-be bandit attempted to slug him. Hermon felt a slight tap on his head, but did not fall, as did his companion.

Yosemite Falls, in Yosemite National Park, drops 2,600 feet over a red and yellow sandstone cliff. The waterfall proper, the first section of the cascade, is more than 1500 feet high—a record in itself—and the whole stream plunges half a mile downward in a series of waterfalls. Judged by its width and volume, Yosemite Falls has little claim to fame. It is a mere creek, 35 feet wide, before it plunges over the canyon wall to form one of the most fascinating falls in the world.

To most people a tire puncture is a puncture, and what caused it is of little consequence, but to R. M. Smith a puncture is a potential source of wealth. Smith, driving along a street in Pen Yan, N. Y., one day, had a puncture. Seeking the cause, he found that his tire had been pierced by a diamond. The stone was appraised at $40.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

FIRESIDE INFLATION TALKS. Part II.

SHE—Honey, yesterday you promised to go over this inflation with me again so I could understand it.

He (apprehensively)—Did I?

She—Yes. Now what I can't understand is all this stuff about cheapening the dollar. How can a dollar be any cheaper than a dollar?

He (with a heavy sigh)—Well, for one thing, they may reduce the amount of gold in a dollar.

She—But that's what puzzles me, dear. There's no gold in any dollars except those you give out for Christmas presents. I never saw any other dollars with gold in them.

He—The dollar is made on a gold base, dear.

She—Oh, is it?

He—Yes; and one of the proposals is to give it a silver base. How would you like the dollar on a silver base?

She (quite delighted)—Oh, I think it would be very pretty with a silver base. I saw a silver base today in——

He (feebly)—You don't understand, dear. You don't actually see any silver base on a dollar. Every dollar bill that you get today has gold behind it.

She—But it looks the same on both sides. I've been studying every bill very carefully lately.

* * * *

HE—I mean the Government pledges so much gold to each dollar. Well, President Roosevelt may reduce the amount of gold.

She—But, honey, what difference would it make? Nobody ever goes around asking how much gold there is behind his or her dollar. A dollar is a dollar, isn't it?

He—In a sense, yes.

She—What I mean is that if we have inflation, is the grocer or the vegetable man going to tell me when I give him a dollar for some meat or potatoes that I am only giving him 30 cents or something?

He (quite despairingly)—No; he will still take a dollar for a dollar's worth of goods, but the dollar won't be worth so much.

She—But if the dollar isn't——

He—What you will get for the dollar will be less than what you got before. But you won't notice it.

She—Why, of course, I'll notice it. If the grocer gives me less next week for a dollar than he does this week, I'll know it at once.

* * * *

HE—I don't mean it exactly that way. Really, dear, the whole subject is too involved. We'll just have to wait and see what happens.

She—But what's this about a managed currency? What does that mean?

He—It means that we will have a managed dollar?

She—Who will manage it?

He—President Roosevelt or Prof. Moley

She—They'll manage my dollar?

He—Yes, dear.

She (quite indignantly)—But suppose I'm managing my own dollar all right and——

He (reaching for his hat and coat)—Don't get excited, dear. It's really a perplexing problem and——

She—But I want to know why——

He—I've to go to the office dear. Some other time. Some other time. Phew!

Elmer Twitchell says President Roosevelt will soon control everything except radio tenors, migratory birds and falling hair.

Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale, arguing for inflation, says the dollar today is worth $1.80 compared to the dollar of 1926. The professor obviously does not use a quarter gas meter

Women auto drivers have fewer accidents than men, a national safety organization says. Don't be silly; it's just bcause they talk faster when the police arrive.

Hoover men have started a movement to recapture Congress in 1934. That's the answer to "Pop, what's an optimist?"

"Mrs. Roosevelt Cooks for Roosevelt Party and Ends Cruise."—New York Herald Tribune headline. A slap like that at the First Lady's culinary abilities is pretty ungentlemanly.

CITY HEADS' NAMING IS LOOKED FOR SOON; DARK HORSES ACTIVE

Hazen and King Prominent in Discussion About Possibilities.

By F. BERNARD McDONNELL.

Melvin C. Hazen, District surveyor, and Harry King, of King's Palace Store, may be named the new District Commissioners.

Mr. King has been one of the dark horses in the terrific race for the job. His friends have demanded that he be given recognition as a representative of the Jews, as well as a representative of local business men.

Mr. King has carried on the tradition handed down to him by both his father and mother, who wrote new pages into the history of merchandising in the National Capital. Mr. King's father was the first to import from Paris those "creations" for the adornment of ladies' heads. The store then was down on Pennsylvania avenue and in the back yard Harry King paddled around in a tub when the Potomac decided to flood the southern part of the city. The Washington Chamber of Commerce would like to see their man named to the post.

McNamara Dark Horse.

Appointment of Messrs. Hazen and King is not assured. The principal backer of Mr. Hazen has been active in his protestations that he is not taking any part in the local political situation, despite the fact that Mr. Hazen has been heard to say that his backer would name whomever he wished for commissioner and some of the most prominent and high-class race horse people in New York and New Jersey and elsewhere have sought to bring pressure to bear on Postmaster General "Big Jim" Farley to have Mr. Hazen named. While Mr. Farley is said not to be committed to Mr. Hazen's appointment it is no secret that he has a receptive ear.

Another dark horse has been gradually emerging from the murk. He is Martin J. McNamara, who is associated with William E. Leahy, nationally known Washington attorney. Mr. McNamara is said to be under serious consideration.

Behind all of the gossip and the crosscurrents and whirlpools of influence are many elements. George Marshall, who glories in his description of "big wet wash man," has stepped into the picture and has sought to name Mr King, despite the fact that there are others of Mr. King's faith whom most of the same faith would like to see named. One of these is John Korman, who is in the oil business. Another is a dark horse whose name has not been publicly mentioned. He is a quiet man who has handled millions and is known to business men throughout the country, although he never has taken an active part in any publicity-gathering activity.

Action Expected Soon.

Action on the District Commissioners is expected soon. Who will be named no one knows, unless it is the President, and the best information is the President hasn't made up his mind. The sudden boom for the "dark horses" has shocked several persons in the National Capital.

If either Mr. King or Mr. Hazen is named for the post, however, their appointment can be construed as nothing less than a slap in the face of the local Democratic organization. The so-called "political" lobby, the "social lobby," the "relations" lobby, and the "pocketbook" lobby all are active. Which will name their man or men remains to be seen.

Nonetheless, unbiased observers believe that Ernest G. Walker, who has been inadequately described as a builder, will be one of the new commissioners, and the friends of Malcolm McConihe are making a drive for his nomination. In the background is John B. Colpoys, but it is reliably said that Mr. Colpoys wouldn't take the job unless the President put it up to him in such a way he couldn't refuse. There are one or two other "dark horse" candidates for whom influential persons are working.

TEACHERS' OUTSIDE EARNINGS MAY END

Two Resign That Husbands May Retain Positions in Government.

Notice was served by the Board of Education yesterday that it may discontinue the policy of permitting school teachers to engage in professions outside of the classroom.

The matter arose when the application of Harold S. Blackman, a teacher at the Gordon Junior High School, to practice law was taken under consideration.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, and Dr. Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent, recommended that the application be rejected because of the increase in unemployment.

Henry Gilligan leaped to the defense of the teacher, pointing out that as other teachers had been granted permission to engage in the professions, Mr. Blackman should not be singled out as an exception. It was finally agreed that Mr. Blackman would be allowed to practice law until the end of the present school year, but that the policy would possibly be changed at the begininng of the new school year after the summer vacation.

Teachers may do as they please during vacations.

A number of teachers follow professional work on the outside. Mrs. Phillip Sydney Smith expressed the opinion that a teacher can not give a class full value while expending part of his or her energies in outside work.

The board received notice of resignations from two teachers so that their husbands, engineers in the hydrographic office of the Navy Department, may retain their jobs. The teachers who have resigned are Mrs. Alice D. B. Sinder, mathematics teacher at Deal Junior High School, wife of Alexander R. Sinder, and Mrs. Olive Aldrich, teacher at Truesdale School, wife of Herbert F. Aldridge.

The board ordered the 15 per cent cut in pay applied to substitute teachers and custodians.

SCIENCES ACADEMY ELECTS 14 MEMBERS

Arthur L. Day, of Carnegie Institution, Is Chosen Vice President.

Arthur L. Day, of the Geophysical Laboratory, Carnegie Institution of Washington, yesterday was elected vice president of the National Academy of Sciences for four years, commencing July 1. He succeeds David White, who resigned.

Karl T. Compton, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and J. McKeen Cattell, Garrison, N. Y., were both reelected to membership of the academy council for three years.

Fourteen leading scientists were elected to membership in the academy, the highest honorary scientific society in the United States.

The new members are: Oswald Theodore Avery, bacteriologist, Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, New York City; Harold Delos Babcock, physicist, Mount Wilson Observatory, Pasadena, Calif.; Thomas Barbour, zoologist, Harvard University; Alphonse Raymond Dochez, medicine, Columbia University; Bernard Ogilvie Dodge, botanist, New York Botanical Garden; Eugene Floyd Dubois, physiologist, Cornell University Medical College; Griffith Conrad Evans, mathematician, Rice Institute, Houston, Tex.

Bancroft Gherardi, engineer, American Telephone & Telegraph Co., New York City; Herbert Eugene Ives, physicist, Bell Telephone Laboratories; Walter Richard Miles, psychologist, Yale University; Samuel Alfred Mitchell, astronomist, Leander McCormick Observatory, University of Virginia; Linius Paulisg, chemist, California Institute of Technology, and Joseph Fels Ritt, mathematician, and Henry Clapp Sherman, chemist, both of Columbia University.

YOUNG FOLKS URGED BY MRS. ROOSEVELT TO WATCH POLITICS

Bryn Mawr's President and Prof. Moley Address Women Voters.

Field trips for the young to observe the concrete and actual machinations of government were put forward as a way to inculcate in youth a political-mindedness by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt last night when she addressed the dinner of the General Council of the National League of Women Voters at the Washington Hotel.

The First Lady's brief talk was followed later by addresses by Marion Edwards Park, president of Bryn Mawr College, and Prof. Raymond Moley, Assistant Secretary of State, both on "Education for Responsible Citizenship."

Miss Park declared that the young woman of the day comes from college "a confirmed if not a total abstainer from politics. All of next year's voters," she declared, "need an emergency ration of politics."

Delegates From 30 States.

The President's appointments, she said, have done more than any other efforts to interest young educated people in politics and are a step in the making a dgnified profession of politics.

Prof. Moley stressed the need for hard and real thinking in present day politics.

In the company of guests, besides the league's national officers and council delegates from 30 States, were:

Secretary of War George H. Dern and Mrs. Dern, Postmaster General James A. Farley, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Senator Edward P. Costigan and Mrs. Costigan, Senator Augustine Lonergan and Mrs. Lonergan and W. W. Howes, wife of the Assistant Secretary of Agriculture.

Sees Welfare Menaced.

Any curtailment of the funds of the Women's Bureau, Children's Bureau, Bureau of Home Economics and the Office of Educaton would choke the progress of social and public welfare in every community, Mrs. Siegel W. Judd, of Grand Rapids, Mich., told the conference's day session.

She declared that the league "stands for constructive economy in Government. It understands such economy to mean a reduction in the cost of Government without injury to those services which are particularly essential to the social welfare during a depression."

Mrs. Judd called for the elimination of veterans' preference in Civil Service and also for the abolition of the married persons provisions of the 1932 economy act.

Particularly interesting was a report on the trends of the voter's mind made by Dr. Edward S. Robinson, of Yale University. His survey was made just before the November election.

"Voters Growing Liberal."

The primary conclusion which he drew was that the American voter is becoming more liberal in his political thinking, and that he is turning slightly toward socialistic doctrines.

Interesting political characteristics observed in the survey were commented on as follows by Dr. Robinson:

"The most distinct system of political ideas was possessed by the upper class group voting for Norman Thomas. Those who voted for Hoover or Roosevelt were distinguished mainly by the degree to which they approved or disapproved of certain political propositions rather than by the adoption of any unique political ideas.

"The political attitudes of those who voted for Roosevelt swung sometimes toward the ideas of Thomas and sometimes toward the ideas of Hoover, and sometimes they fell between. There is only one clear case where Roosevelt supporters took a more decided stand than did the supporters of the other candidates. This was in the case of the plank calling for the unqualified repeal of prohibition."

That women's political interest is a vital factor behind all governmental activity was brought out in reports summarized by Mrs. C. Shephard Barnum, of Los Angeles; Mrs. S. N. Campbell, of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Royal C. Taft, of Providence.

Two Indicted on Murder Charge.

Two colored men, James Penson and John Gray, were indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on charges of first-degree murder. Penson is charged with having shot Leonard Fields, also colored, while Gray is charged with having stabbed Samuel Riddles, colored.

MEANS AND KVALE RAP ECONOMY ACT

Audience Cheers as They Say Veterans' Slash Was Tragic Mistake.

While a cheering audience of more than 500 legionnaires and their friends filled to overflowing the Immaculate Conception School Hall, Eighth and N streets northwest, former Senator Rice W. Means, Colorado, and Representative Paul Kvale, Minnesota, denounced as "unbelievable" the recent economy act taking compensation from the disabled soldier.

The annual rally of the American Legion of the District of Columbia, held in behalf of the present membership drive, also heard George W. Offutt, president of the Potomac Savings Bank; Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police; Capt. Richard Mansfield, also of the Metropolitan Police Department, and others.

Predicts Reaction.

"God forgive those responsible for that act," said Senator Means, in referring to the recent economy bill. "But they have done it, I believe, not knowing what they were doing. Many are the members of Congress who have said to me, since the passage of this bill, that they didn't understand such tragedy was being incurred."

Representative Kvale, introduced by Chairman Norman Landreau as "one of the truest friends of the legion," launched into a fiery speech against the ill effects of the economy act, by calling on the patriotism of the legionnaires to be used as a bridge to span these troublesome times.

Just Passing Buck.

"It is time to stop to remind the American Nation," he said in continuing, "That this act is not going to effect a saving for the American public. The legislation will merely throw upon other agencies the brunt of caring for thousands. After July 1, when these thousands receive no compensation, the Government will realize, too late, that there has been a mistake and there will be a reaction."

Among those entertaining with music were Miss Ida Clarke, accordionist; Leslie Byron, soloist; Arthur McCreight and William Kilearlane, pianists; Henry C. Nester, "the singing cop;" Jack Mullane and his troupe, and Bill Kerchner, soloist. Capt. Mansfield entertained with a series of rapid cartoons.

BARRY CONVICTED OF MANSLAUGHTER IN DEATH OF SEIGEL

Effects Reconciliation With Common-Law Wife Over Whom He Slew Man.

Joseph T. Barry, 44, a bond salesman, was found guilty of manslaughter by a District Supreme Court jury late yesterday in the slaying of Israel Seigel, 26-year-old grocery clerk, last December. The verdict, returned before Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue, carries a maximum penalty of fifteen years imprisonment.

Barry shot and killed Seigel during an altercation at 3130 Eleventh street northwest allegedly over the affections of Mrs. Ruth Goebel, Barry's common-law wife. Barry admitted he killed Seigel, but declared he did so believing Seigel was about to attack him.

Sentence Next Week.

One shot was fired from a pistol Barry had purchased that day in Rosslyn, Va. The bullet plowed through Seigel's neck, severing his spinal column and killing him almost instantly.

Barry will be sentenced by Justice O'Donoghue next week.

Will Wait For Him.

Five minutes after the jury returned its verdict, Barry and Mrs. Goebel effected a reconciliation. Barry greeted the auburn-haired woman when his attorney, Cedric F. Johnson, escorted her to the cell room in the courthouse. They embraced, and Barry, his voice choking with emotion, asked Mrs. Goebel to be sure that their two children were kept together.

"You know I have always loved you, and I always will," he said.

As he was led away Mrs. Goebel sobbed that "she would wait for him, and would always think of him."

Boy and Girl Hurt When Hit by Autos

Halbert Berryhill, 6 years old, 408 Sixteenth street southeast, suffered severe scalp lacerations and a possible skull fracture late yesterday when struck by an automobile near his home. He was treated at Casualty Hospital. Police said the car was driven by Mrs. Eva Perrigo, 1449 Ridge place northwest.

Mary Davidson, 12 years old, 4430 Lowell street northwest, received a possible fracture of the right arm yesterday when struck by a car operated by Mrs. Nora B. Huffman, 3528 Fulton street northwest, at Wisconsin avenue and Thirty-fourth street northwest. She was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Harding Indicted As Slayer of Davis

Grand Jury Fails to Find Bill Against Olewack as Accessory.

The District grand jury yesterday indicted George P. Harding for the murder of Harry (Doc) Davis, prominent figure in race track gambling circles here, and at the same time refused to indict Bennie Olewack as an accessory.

Davis, brother of Police Inspector O. T. Davis, was fatally shot in the abdomen last Thursday when he attempted to stop an encounter between Harding and another man. The shooting occurred near Ninth street and New York avenue northwest.

Davis was taken to a doctor's office after the shooting and then to Sibley Hospital, where he died. Harding surrendered to police shortly afterward, claiming that the shooting was accidental.

Lillie Faces Writ Of Counterfeiting

Third Indictment Follows Two of Assault in Chase by Policemen.

In addition to two charges of assault with intent to kill and assault with a deadly weapon, Lester Lillie, who was arrested near Eighteenth street and Columbia road after he had shot down two policemen, yesterday was faced with a third charge when the District grand jury indicted him for counterfeiting.

Lillie was arrested when a lunchroom proprietor became suspicious of a $10 bill he was attempting to cash. While police were en route, Lillie walked out of the store and was apprehended at the Columbia road intersection. It was while he was awaiting the patrol wagon that he shot through his coat, felling two policemen.

After his arrest Lillie is said to have disclosed a plant at 1223 Twelfth street northwest, where paraphernalia discovered there was declared by the secret service agents to have been designed for counterfeiting. The youth is said to have evolved a plan whereby he considerably shortened the length of time ordinarily needed to turn out spurious money.

Beer Return Seen As Trade Booster

Lumber Spokesman Feels Action Is Boon to Many Lines.

The legalization of beer was hailed as a boon to many industries by Max Myers, of Cleveland, president of the organization, in his annual address at the opening session yesterday of the convention of National-American Wholesale Lumber Association in the Mayflower Hotel.

"Many lines of business are bound to show improvement, including lumber," Mr. Myers said.

Secretary W. W. Schupner, of New York, in his report said that even more drastic curtailment of production is necessary because of decreased consumption of lumber. Others who spoke at the morning and afternoon sessions were Otis N. Shepard, of New York City, treasurer; C. A. Mauk, of Toledo, Ohio, chairman of the legislation committee, and Henry J. Eckstein, of New York City, who explained the plans of the Ford company to market Brazilian woods in the United States.

No Beer Yet

Buyer of Truckload Waits in Vain for It and Then Appeals to Police.

Lost, strayed, or stolen—one truckload of beer.

Such was a report to police yesterday by Maurice Rosenfelt, of Florence, S. C. Rosenfelt purchased the beer in Philadelphia, and hired a man to drive the truck to Florence. He came ahead in his automobile. Suspecting the driver of the truck might need some gasoline he waited for the truck at the Highway Bridge.

He waited several hours, but the truck did not arrive. Finally he appealed to police to help him find his beer truck, which he believes is somewhere in Washington.

On Saturday he appeared to be suffering from some unknown ailment and he went to Gallinger, where he remained.

Mrs. Mary E. McHigh, 23, driver of the machine which struck Veit lives in Newark, N. J.

D. C. Supply Measure Report Due Tomorrow

The rewritten measure, which will not be made public until it is turned over to the full committee, is reputed to increase the Federal lump sum from $5,700,000 to $6,250,000, provide funds for four new school projects, authorize construction of Calvert Street Bridge and permit the Commissioners to make shifts of funds within certain departments.

Barnett Case Delayed Upon Technical Points

Technical questions of law took up the entire court day yesterday when the United States Government resumed its efforts to regain for Jackson Barnett, the country's wealthiest Indian, a $200,000 trust fund in the Riggs National Bank.

The fund was placed there by Barnett's wife, Mrs. Anna Laura Barnett, for her use. The Government seeks its restoration to Barnett on the ground that it should be administered by the Interior Department for the benefit of the 83-year-old Indian.
